Hotel Bombed

BRISTOW (Okla.) Oct. 13.—One man is dead, two other persons are injured, probably fatally, and a dozen others are suffering from minor injuries, as the result of the dynamiting of the Illinois Hotel here at midnight. A large charge of the explosive under the rear of the building almost razed the structure and shook the entire city.

Home Looted

Pass-key thieves last night looted the home of Mrs. M. G. Lewis, 1371 Vista del Mar avenue, of furs and jewelry valued at $2500, she reported to Hollywood police. During the absence of the family the prowlers cut the screen in a rear door, used a master key and escaped with valuables, including a sealskin coat, a beaver coat and a string of pearls.

Wobblies on Strike

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 13.—The second strike of longshoremen here this year was launched tonight along the waterfront. The move was characterized by employers as organized under the guidance of the Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union, No. 510, I.W.W., and supported by a group of the members of Union 38, Internaltonal Longshoremen's Association.

Killed by Mistake

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 13.—Mistaken for a grape thief Godfrey Preston, 54 years old, prominent orange grower of Rialto, was shot and killed there tonight by J. F. Bender, watchman at a vineyard. Preston was irrigating his grove and stepped over into the adjoining vineyard to get a bunch of grapes to eat. Bender called on him to halt and, apparently believing he was being held up, Preston started to run and the watchman shot him.

POLITICAL POT BOILS IN BRITAIN

Chamberlain, Facing Split in His Party, Pleads for Coalitionists

BY SIDNEY THATCHER
[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

LONDON, Oct. 13. — Austen Chamberlain, Unionist leader in the government, elected today to face a certain split in his party at the next election in order to maintain his allegiance to Premier Lloyd George. He pleaded that the continuation of the coalition system was the only feasible plan now, and dangled a labor government threat before the country in case the coalitionists failed to stick together. How successful labor may be depends on how the Tory party may be split.

It seemed certain tonight, or as certain as anything can be when a situation depends upon Lloyd George in political maneuvers, that the Premier, when he makes his anxiously awaited pronouncement at Manchester tomorrow, will answer his critics on the basis that the coalition government has "delivered the goods" under the most trying circumstances, and that the only plan for the immediate future is a coalition government.

"BACK TO THE WALL"

It is expected to be a "back-to-the-wall" speech without apologies for the Near Eastern policy, which has been responsible for the government's most severe criticism. It is unlikely the Premier will an-

The Crossing Is Safe!

TRANSPORT WILL BE ORDERED TO CHANGE COURSE

Capt. W. E. Griffith, manager of operations for the United States Shipping Board, announced at the Hotel Clark last evening that he will this morning direct the Army transport Thomas, bearing the passengers from the burned City of Honolulu, to make port at Los Angeles instead of San Francisco.

Capt. Griffith's action is due to the vigorous pleas by relatives of the passengers, the Chamber of Commerce and others that, by reason of this being the home port of the burned vessel and the destination of her passengers, Los Angeles would be the proper place to land the refugees.

These requests were directed to the Shipping Board officials at Washington, who last night decided to leave the matter in the hands of Capt. Griffith and F. W. Relyea, California representative of the Shipping Board. Capt. Griffith will confer this morning with Mr. Relyea and stated that the wireless ordering the Thomas to change her course will be sent immediately thereafter, assuming that Mr. Relyea approves, as he will undoubtedly do.

EASY TO DIVERT

It would have worked additional hardship on them to have them carried to San Francisco by the Thomas, when the ship can easily be diverted to this port instead, as will probably be done today.

Washington dispatches last night stated that the decision of the capital officials to change the Thomas's course was not reached until after conferences of length between War Department and Shipping Board officials.

At first they were disinclined to alter the course of the transport, but eventually the urgency of the shipwrecked passengers' case and the insistent pleadings of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and friends of Los Angeles and Honolulu survivors prevailed.

Vice-President Sheedy, in charge of operations, was reported to have left Washington for New York yesterday, but all other officials at the Shipping Board gave out the information that the whole matter had been left to Griffith and Relyea, and that their instructions would be supported in every detail.

Just what time the transport can reach Los Angeles depends on her course, her speed and at what time the official order to make for Los Angeles reaches her commander.

She was computed to be due at San Francisco at about 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. It is probable that the time of her arrival in Los Angeles will be about the same.

MAY SINK SOON

Late reports received by the Shipping Board headquarters at the harbor indicated that the City of Honolulu would sink before noon today. Capt. Lester's radiogram dispatched to Capt. Griffith yesterday afternoon also bears out the belief that the hulk cannot be boarded before late Sunday. The dispatch follows:

"Honolulu absolutely gutted beyond all repair. Will be two or

GERALDINE'S BELONGINGS AUCTIONED

Crowd of Curious Bargain Hunters at Farrar Sale Bids Low

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Her real life romance abandoned for the divorce courts and her countless opera romances forsaken for the concert stage, Geraldine Farrar, the American diva, offered for sale today at auction the household furnishings of her married days and the silk and tinsel of the stage.

A crowd of about 500 that filled the Fifth-avenue auction rooms, attested public curiosity in the singer, but even their sentimental attachment to her did not bring prices worthy of the effects on sale.

It was a crowd of bargain hunters. Bidding was spirited, but low. Perhaps this was due to the fact that few of Miss Farrar's intimate possessions were on sale today. The countless, gorgeous gowns she has worn in "Madame Butterfly," "Carmen," "La Tosca," "Madame Sans Gene," "Faust," and other operas will not go on the block until Monday.

Today's sale featured rather the other member of the blighted romance, Lou Tellegen, matinee idol of thousands, but no longer of Geraldine. His bedroom suite, a pretentious affair in the period of Louis XV, the golden canopy that draped it are gone—sold to the highest bidder. Even the good old rubber door mat that stood at the entrance of 20 West Seventy-fourth street when it was a "love nest" went under the hammer and will have to get acquainted with new feet tomorrow.

RIGHT OF RAIL WORKER TO STRIKE MUST END

Head of Pennsylvania System Says Unions Are Fighting Public; Favors Liberal Pay

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—Railroad labor must surrender the right to strike if the railway situation is to be stabilized and "the rights of the people to uninterrupted transportation service permanently secured," Elisha J. Lee, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Lines, declared in an address tonight at the annual banquet of the American Mining Congress.

"I am not prepared to say, at the present time," Lee said, "that we should go to the length of absolutely forbidding railroad strikes by specific statutes. Nor would I attempt otherwise to lay down any particular method by which acceptance of this basically correct principle may be brought about.

MUST BE ACCOMPLISHED

"I am only sure of one thing and that is that it must be accomplished in some way if the railroad labor situation is to be stabilized."

"Railroad management has the social duty of effecting a revival among working forces of the spirit of ambition, enterprise and social progress. I wish we could return to the condition which existed in the days when every man entering the ranks thought he had a chance to become president of his own company and he should work for that job if he had it in him, or at any rate for the best position which his abilities could win."

Lee declared that one of the public's rights was transportation

ATTORNEYS CALL POOR FISH WILD

Lowly Mussel Gets Court All Mixed Up on Natural History of Species

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Disciples of Izaak Walton and wearers of furs have much at stake in a case upon which argument was begun in the Supreme Court today, where it afforded much amusement to the justices.

The proceeding is docketed as James S. McKee and others against Benjamin Gratz, and was brought to have reversed the decision of lower Federal courts holding that the fresh water mussel, found in the Mississippi River and its tributaries and from whose shell "pearl" buttons are manufactured, when taken from non-navigable streams, is the property of the owner of the land.

Importance attaches to the case because it is expected to bring from the court a decision which will define the liabilities not only of fishermen and hunters, but of those who purchase fish, birds or game killed by trespassers as well as the pelts of animals trapped or killed by them.

Button manufacturers in Iowa are prosecuting the appeal, they having purchased quantities of mussel shells taken from Little River, Missouri, from streams upon property controlled by Gratz. During the litigation the mussel has been decided at various times to be a "migratory fish" and an "animal." Some courts have held it to be a "wild" animal and the property of the owner of the soil who takes.

In a brief presentation of the case, as the court was adjouring for the day, counsel for Gratz contended that the mussel was a "domestic" and not a "wild" animal. He insisted, as the Chief Justice and several of the associate justices broke into open laughter, that the phlegmatic, sluggish shellfish sometimes living in one place for twenty-five years, could not legally or otherwise be considered "wild."

POLICEMAN FIRES UPON AUTO THIEF

Asserted Bandits Flourish Gun When Officer Orders Them to Halt

Surprising two asserted automobile thieves who were attempting to steal a machine on Gower street near Hollywood Boulevard last night, Patrolman C. E. Clark of the Hollywood Police Station opened fire when one of them whipped out a revolver. They escaped, but the officer believes one of them was wounded.

Patrolman Clark reported that one of the men was in an automobile in the middle of Gower street. The other was attempting to fix a Dodge car parked at the curbing. At the sight of the policeman the man fixing the car at the curbing leaped into the car where his companion sat and started south. At the patrolman's command to stop he brandished a revolver and the former started shooting.

"He fell over against the wheel," said the officer, "and the car lurched. His companion shoved him aside, took the wheel himself and stepped on the gas. They got away."

In the belief that the man may have been killed or seriously wounded, Hollywood police last night kept in touch with various hospitals in the city.

Huge Red Army on West Front is Well Armed

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WARSAW, Oct. 13. — Russia has 1,600,000 men under arms, mainly concentrated along the western frontier from the Baltic to the Black Sea, while the Baltic states have only 130,000 men under their colors, and Poland 250,000, according to figures compiled here.

The newspaper Kurjer Porany declared that Russia has an agreement with the Kruppa under which arms and munitions are being produced on a considerable scale in their Russian works. It is reported that the factory at Tula is turning out 20,000 rifles and 20,000,000 cartridges monthly, while the establishment at Lutilove is producing heavy artillery.

OKLAHOMA BANK ROBBED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OSAGE (Okla.) Oct. 13.—Five bandits, two of them dressed as women, held up the First State Bank here late today and escaped with $1188. A posse numbering more than 150 persons set out in pursuit in motor cars but tonight had not overtaken the robbers.

RELEASE OF GERMANY IS PROPOSED

Crash of Marks Leads All Allies to Fear Berlin Can't Meet Payments

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Oct. 13.—A proposition to release Germany from cash payments for the next years has been submitted to the Reparations Commission by Sir John Bradbury, the British delegate. Under this plan the cash payments will be set nominally at about 720,000,000 gold marks (about $180,000,000) annually, but Germany actually will hand over only paper obligations which the Allied government must guarantee individually and individually try to sell.

The crash in marks has cause the commission to begin serious consideration of Sir Johnson's plan, even the French delegate admitting that it is hopeless to expect cash payments from Germany now.

It is openly remarked that the end of the German cash payments has wiped out the last chance of any of the Allies, but Great Britain paying war debts.

TO PROTECT SETTLERS

State Real Estate Commissioner and Colonization Men Form Land Settlement Body

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13. — A conference of landowners and colonization promoters called here today by State Real Estate Commissioner Keiser to consider land settlement problems resulted in a decision to form an organization to be known as the California Land Settlement Association.

Under the resolution calling for formation of this association the Real Estate Commissioner will be asked to pass upon all colonization projects in which lands are being offered for sale to the public.

The conference also recommended that an advisory committee consisting of various State and Federal officials be formed to assist the commissioner in supervision of colonization and land settlement work.

The organization committee is composed of J. V. Mendenhall and H. R. Klingensmith, Sacramento; Bruce Cornwall, San Francisco; Charles Teague, Fresno; Herman James, San Joaquin, George S. Springer and W. I. Hollingsworth, Los Angeles.

Fraudulent and unwise land settlement and colonist schemes, coupled with deceptive advertising have victimized so many persons that it is hard to get good settlers to come to California farm lands, according to Keiser and several other speakers.

They urged that settlers not be left to carry on the development of land without proper financing and that every attempt be made to prevent failures.

There was a large attendance of landowners and others interested from all parts of California. Keiser, C. L. Seagraves, general colonization agent of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company; Dr. Elwood Mead of the University of California, L. A. Nares of Fresno and M. V. Hartranft of Los Angeles, president of the California Home Extension Association, were among the speakers.

HINT NEW ARMS MEETING

Washington Officials Silent on London and Paris Reports, but Make no Denials

BY GRAFTON WILCOX
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. — Administration officials today would not discuss reports emanating from London and Paris that the United States is sounding out European powers on the proposition of an international land disarmament conference.

There were no denials of the reports, however, and there is a well-defined belief here, that the President and Secretary of State Hughes are planning to issue an invitation to the powers for such a conference which would be operated on lines similar to the Washington conference last year that resulted in the naval treaty and the four-power Pacific pact.

At that conference land disarmament was included in the agenda, but the time was unpropitious for its consideration. It was the general understanding that a future conference would be called when European nations would be in a better position to discuss this feature.

Officials today would not indicate how soon the United States contemplated such a conference, but it is intimated that it would not be until some time next year. Ambassador Harvey's conference yesterday with Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Minister, is believed here to have included some reference to this government's ideas on the land disarmament question.

It was disclosed here today that another three-power conference to revise the naval treaty is within the range of possibilities. The

TULSA (Okla.) Oct. 13.—The suspension from the ministry of the Rev. Thomas J. CAPTAIN TO GO ON CARPET

West Faralon Master Must Explain Delay in Giving Position; Story to Press Criticised

Capt. H. M. Walk, master of the Shipping Board freighter West Faralon, will be asked to explain several points in his conduct during the rescue of passengers and crew of the City of Honolulu, according to a dispatch received at Shipping Board headquarters here last night from James Sheedy, vice-president of the Shipping Board at Washington.

Radiograms were sent to Capt. Walk last night demanding an explanation of why he did not report his position immediately upon receiving the first S.O.S. call from the City of Honolulu.

STORY CRITICISED

Shipping Board heads at Washington are also reported to be highly critical of Capt. Walk's story of the rescue and burning of the liner. Mr. Sheedy's dispatch to local Shipping Board officials said in part:

"Also ask Master West Faralon to advise why he did not report his position upon receipt of first distress call from City of Honolulu. Morning press carries signed story by him of rescue in which he reports City of Honolulu to be settling. Suggest that you intimate that he confine his literary efforts to official reports to you."

Mr. Sheedy instructed local officials to order Capt. H. R. Lester of the burned ship to make a full report of the disaster immediately, explaining the likely cause of the fire and whether it started in the machinery section or cargo holds.

TO STAND BY

He ordered the West Faralon to stand by to assist the Coast Guard cutters Tamaroa and Shownee upon their arrival before proceeding on her way to the Orient. In the event that the City of Honolulu remains afloat, Mr. Sheedy ordered her towed to San Francisco on account of the better drydocking facilities at that port. In case she is injured only to the extent that drydocking will not be required, he instructed that she be brought to Los Angeles Harbor.

Twenty-first Installment

CHAPTER IX.—ARMY AND NAVY

My close relations with the army are a matter of common knowledge. In this direction I conformed to the tradition of my family. Prussia's kings did not chase cosmopolitan mirages, but realized that the welfare of their land could only be assured by means of a real power protecting industry and commerce. If, in a number of utterances, I admonished my people to "keep their powder dry" and "their swords sharp," the warning was addressed alike to foe and friend.

I wished our foes to pause and think a long time before they dared to engage with us. I wished to cultivate a manly spirit in the German people; I wished to make sure that, when the hour struck for us to defend the fruits of our industry against an enemy's lust of conquest, it should find a strong race.

In view of this I attached high value to the educational duty of the army. General compulsory military service has a social influence upon men in the mass equaled by nothing else. It brings together rich and poor, sons of the soil and of the city; it brings acquaintanceship and mutual understanding among young people whose roads, otherwise, would lead them far apart; the feeling that they are serving one idea unites them.

BOYS MADE HEALTHY

And think what we made out of our young men! Pale town boys were transformed into erect, healthy, sport-hardened men; limbs grown stiff through labor were made adroit and pliable.

I stepped direct from brigade commander to King—to repeat the well-known words of King Frederick William, III. Yip is there. I had climbed the steps of an officer's career. I still think with pleasure of my pride when, on the May 1, 1860, during the spring parade, I first stood in the ranks before my grandfather.

Relations with the individual man have always seemed valuable to me, and, therefore, I particularly treasured the assignments, during many military service, where I could cultivate such relations. My activities as commander of a company, a squadron and a battery, likewise as head of a regiment, are unforgettable to me.

I felt at home among my soldiers. In them I placed unlimited trust. The painful experiences of the autumn of 1918 have not diminished this trust. I do not forget that a part of the German people, after four years of unprecedented achievements and privations, had become too ill to withstand being corrupted by foes within and without. Moreover, the best of the Germans lay under the green sod; the others were thrown into such consternation by the events of the revolution which had been held to be impossible that they could not spur themselves to act.

Compulsory military service was the best school for the physical and moral toughening of our people. It created for us free men who knew their own value. From these an excellent corps of noncommissioned officers was formed; from the latter, in turn, we drew our government officials, the like of whom, in ability, incorruptibility and fidelity to duty no other nation on earth can show.

BELIEVES OFFICERS LOYAL

And it is from these very elements that I receive nowadays signs of loyalty, every one of which does me good. My old Second Company of the First Infantry Guard Regiment has shared through good and evil days, the vicissitudes of its old captain. I saw them for the last time in 1913, in close formation—still 125 strong—under that excellent Sergt. Hartmann, on the occasion of the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of my accession to the throne.

In view of its proud duty as an educator and leader of the nation in arms, the officer corps occupied a particularly important position in the German Empire. The method of replacement, which, by adoption of the officers' vote, had been lodged in the hands of the various bodies of officers themselves, guaranteed the needed homogeneity. Harmful outcroppings of the idea of caste were merely sporadic; wherever they made themselves felt they were instantly rooted out.

I entered much and willingly into relations with the various officer corps and felt like a comrade among them. The materialistic spirit of our age, to be sure, had not passed over the officer corps without leaving traces; but, on the whole, it must be admitted that nowhere else were self-discipline, fidelity to duty and simplicity cultivated to such an extent as among the officers.

A process of weeding out such as existed in no other profession allowed only the ablest and best to reach positions of influence. The commanding generals were men of a high degree of attainment and ability and—what is even more important—men of character. It is a difficult matter to single out individuals from among them.

Though the man in the ranks at the front was always particularly close to my heart, I must, nevertheless, give special prominence to the general staff as a school for the officer corps. I have already remarked that Field Marshal Count Moltke had known how by careful training to build up men who were not only up to requirements, technically speaking, but also qualified for action demanding willingness to assume responsibility, independence of judgment and far-sightedness. "To be more than you seem," is written in the preface to the "Pocket Manual for the General Staff Officer."

STAFF PRAISED

Field Marshal Count Moltke laid the foundations for this training; and his successors—Count Waldersee, that great genius, Count Schlieffen, and Gen. Von Moltke—built upon them. The result was the General Staff, which accomplished unprecedented feats in the World War and aroused admiration throughout the world.

I soon realized that the greatest possible improvement of our highly developed technical department was absolutely necessary and would save precious blood. Wherever possible I worked toward the perfection of our armament and sought to place machinery in the service of our army.

Among the new creations, the very first place is taken by the heavy artillery of the army in the field. In bringing this into being, I was obliged to overcome much opposition—particularly, strange to relate, in the ranks of the artillery itself. It is a source of great satisfaction to me that I put this matter through. It laid the foundation for the carrying out of operations on a large scale, and it was long before our foes could catch up with us in this direction.

BETTER EQUIPMENT

Mention must be made of the machine gun, which developed from modest beginnings to being the backbone of the infantry's fighting powers; the replacement of the rifle by the machine gun multiplied the firing power of the infantry, while, at the same time, diminishing its losses.

Nor can I pass over without mention the introduction of the movable field kitchen, which I had seen for the first time at some maneuvers of the Russian army. It was of the greatest value in maintaining the fighting efficiency of the army, since the possibility of getting sufficient nourishment kept our troops fresh and healthy.

All human work remains unfinished. Nevertheless it may be said without exaggeration that the German army which marched to battle in 1914 was an instrument of warfare without an equal.

Whereas, at my accession to the throne, I had found the army in a condition which merely required development upon the foundations already laid, the navy, on the other hand, was in the first stage of development.

After the failure of all the attempts of Admiral Hollmann to move the recalcitrant Reichstag to adopt a slowly progressing, systematic strengthening of German sea power—largely due to the cheap catchwords of Deputy Richter and the lack of understanding of the Liberals of the Left, who were fooled by them—the admiral requested me to retire him.

Deeply moved, I acceded to his request; this plain, loyal man, the son of a genuine Berlin bourgeois family, had become dear to me through his upright character, his devotion to duty and his attachment to me. My friendship with him, based upon this estimate, lasted for many years up to the moment of the admiral's sudden death; it often caused me to visit this faithful man, endowed with fine Berlin wit, at his home, and there to associate with him as head of the German Oriental Society, as well as to see him in a small circle of intimates at my own home, or to take him with me as a treasured traveling companion.

He was one of the most faithful of my faithful friends, always remaining the same in his disinterestedness, never asking anything for himself. Happy the city which can produce such citizens! I preserve a grateful memory of this tried and trusted friend.

Admiral Tirpitz succeeded Hollmann. In his very first reports, which laid the foundation of the first naval law, he showed himself thoroughly in accord with me in the belief that the sanction of the Reichstag for the building of warships was not to be gained by the old form of procedure. As I have always pointed out, the opposition was not to be convinced; the tone of the debates conducted by Richter was unworthy of the importance of the subject; for instance, the gunboat obtained in the Reichstag by the Poles, under Herr von Koscielsky, was jokingly dubbed "Koscielska." Ridicule was the weapon used, though the future of the Fatherland was in question.

It was necessary that the representative of the navy should have a solid phalanx behind him, both among the Ministers of State and in the Reichstag, and that it should, from absolute conviction, energetically support him and the cause.

Therefore, there was need of communicating to the Reichstag members, still rather ignorant in naval matters, the details of the great work; moreover, a great movement must be engineered among the people, among the "general public," indifferent as yet, to arouse its interest and enthusiasm for the navy, in order that pressure from the people itself might be brought to bear upon the Reichstag members.

To this end, an energetic propaganda was needed, through a well-organized and well-directed press, as well as through eminent men of science at the universities and technical high schools.

FIGHT IN REICHSTAG

There was need of a complete change in the whole method of handling the matter in the Reichstag. There must be no more bickerings about individual ships and docks. In making up the military budget, no arguments arose over the strength of the army, unless it was a matter of new formations.

The make-up of the navy, like that of the army, must be settled by law once for all, its right of existence recognized and protected. The units composing it must no longer be a matter for debate. Moreover, not only the officer corps but that of noncommissioned officers must be strengthened and trained, in order to be ready for service on the new ships.

At the beginning of my reign, sixty to eighty cadets, at the most, were enrolled every year; in the last few years before the war several hundred asked admission. Twelve precious years, never to be retrieved, were lost by the failure of the Reichstag; it is even harder to create a navy overnight than an army.

The goal to be striven for was implied in the law, which expressed the "idea of risk;" the aim was to cause even the strongest hostile fleet to think seriously before it came to blows with the German fleet, in view of the heavy losses that were to be feared in a battle, which put the foe in danger of becoming too weak for other tasks. The "idea of risk" was brilliantly vindicated in the Skagerrak (Jutland) battle; the enemy, in spite of his immense superiority, dared not risk a second battle. Trafalgar was already dim; its laurels must not be completely lost.

The total number of units (ships) on hand—it was principally a matter of ships of the line—was taken as a basis for the naval law, although these, with the exception of the four ships of the Brandenburg class, were little better than old iron.

The naval law was looked upon by many laymen, in view of the numbers involved, as a naval increase. In reality, however, this was a false view, since the so-called existing fleet was absolutely no longer a fleet. It was slowly dying of old age as Hollmann said when he retired; included in it were almost the oldest ships still in service in all Europe.

ANALYSIS OF THE MEMOIRS

German Army Built Up in Preparation for War, Not to Protect

BY S. FRED HOGUE

"To be more than you seem," comments the Kaiser, "is written in the preface to the pocket manual for the staff officer."

How impersonally he makes this observation, failing utterly to grasp its significance in relation to his own position!

Yet the continuous complaint that runs through the Memoirs is that the world blames him personally for what was, in reality, the fault of the chancellors and cabinets. He takes frequent occasion to remind one that he was a "constitutional monarch," and to tell us that the papers which he signed and many of the addresses that he delivered were written by others, that he was frequently constrained to act against his own better judgment.

POSED AS HEAD

But he has not explained why he continued to pose as the active administrative head of the German government if he was little more than what would be termed a "dummy director" in an American corporation.

His vanity led him to seek invariably the glory for all the government, forgetful that he who claims the glory cannot evade the blame.

Significant too, as an indication of the Kaiser's mental complex, is the justification he offers for making Germany a purely military state, a nation continually under arms.

"I wished to make sure that when the hour struck for us to defend the fruits of our industry against the enemy's lust of conquest it should find a strong race."

It is evident that the Kaiser confuses a "manly spirit" with a military spirit. He wished every German mother to raise her boy to be a soldier. He was well aware that Germany's predatory foreign policy would lead to armed resistance from other peoples; and when "der Tag" should arrive, he wanted Germany to be ready to strike quick and hard.

This is the crux of the whole German idea, that commerce and industry could be developed only by force of arms. Yet, all about him were proofs that this was not true. Holland and Belgium were making industrial strides almost proportionately equal to those of Germany. The United States was outdistancing her. And they were employing only the arms of peace.

WAR DUTY TAUGHT

If the German state had been built on justice in place of might; if the cement used had been truth and equity in place of blood and iron, a mighty army and navy would not have been necessary. The German youth were taught in the schools and in the barracks that the time would come when their country would be engaged in war, possibly in a series of wars. They were taught that peace was a respite, not a fixed condition, that every generation must expect to fight at least once for the Fatherland.

Perhaps the Kaiser is not aware how antiquated are his arguments in favor of compulsory military service in times of peace. He is still living in the past. He imagines that progress can turn backward and the Europe of the years before the war can return.

I recall my own experience with compulsory military service in Germany. I first visited that country in the summer of 1906. As I rode by rail from the Dutch border to Hamburg I marveled at the number of women I saw working in the fields. I remember that I made a computation for an hour, looking through the car window, and found the number of women exceeded that of the men.

Coming fresh from the West, this sight was revolting to me. I wondered what manner of men these Germans could be who had so little pride, or so little love for their womankind, that they would send them to do a man's work.

REVIEW TAKES MEN

Two weeks later I passed through Cologne. A great military review was on. I saw as many troops under arms in an afternoon as I had seen in my whole life before. Then I understood what compulsory military service meant; understood why those women were working in the fields. For everyone so engaged a man or boy was somewhere wearing the king's coat."

When the Kaiser now writes about compulsory military service that experience comes back to me. I know not what the men of Germany may think; but I am convinced that the free peoples of the world performed an almost priceless service for German womanhood when they limited the force that might be kept under arms to a point where compulsory military service will not be necessary.

While the Kaiser waxes a bit vainglorious over what he did personally to secure an efficient and powerful German navy, it may be interesting to the readers of The Times to know what the navy heads thought about his collaboration.

NAVAL EXPERT, TOO

Admiral Von Tirpitz in "My Memoirs," published since the war, relates some amusing anecdotes concerning the Kaiser's ambitions to pose as a naval expert. He tells how the Emperor sent for him and told him with much self-glorification that he had found a solution to a problem of motion that had, to that time, been considered insoluble. He writes:

I had to receive the inventor of a perpetual-motion machine, who had been recommended to the Emperor. . . . I had to allow his "engine" to be demonstrated, until Emil Rathenau, who had also been invited by the Emperor, was able to deprive the miracle man of his nimbus.

Von Tirpitz tells also about sketches which the Emperor drew of battleships with weird displacements and impossible of construction; and insisted that ships should be builded from those models. He would not be dissuaded, and tens of thousands of marks were thus squandered in hulls that would not float, much less be of actual naval service. He claims that he has narrated these things in order that his own reputation may be cleared; because, when the ships refused to float, he was generally made a butt of ridicule, not then daring to let it be known that it was the Kaiser who had drawn the sketches and insisted on their construction.

It is probably true, as the Kaiser asserts, that "the German army which marched to battle in 1914, was an instrument of warfare without an equal." But how are we to reconcile this with the statement which he makes later in his Memoirs that "Germany was not prepared for and not expecting war in 1914?" If Germany was not expecting war, why all that armament? Why had so many million men been withdrawn in time of peace from industry? It is difficult to believe that the breaking out of the war just at the time when the German military machine had reached the zenith of efficiency was merely a coincidence. Men and nations go about armed to the teeth only when they are looking for or expecting trouble.

OUR AMERICAN ADVENTURE

Conan Doyle Upon Receipt of Assurances from "Other World" of Success of Mission of Spiritualism in This Country Brings His Message

BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

Copyright by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, 1922, for the United States and Great Britain. Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.

Article I

The Doyle family arrives in New York—Sir Arthur Says of the ship news reporters, "They are America"—The psychic movement and religion—"Sherlock Holmes" met by William J. Burns.

The low shores of New Jersey rise slowly on the port bow. We have passed the Fire Island signal boat, the outlying picket of America, and now the good old Baltic turns her broad prow toward the Sandy Hook point where the great salt highway leads to what will surely some day be the metropolis of the world. I sit alone on the hurricane deck—and I think.

It is hardly a year since we returned from Australia, and yet here we are, my wife, my two boys, my little girl and myself embarked upon this new, more formidable, venture. We are seven in all, for Mr. Preston a young Cambridge graduate, hardly recovered yet from a wound in the war, and Miss Stabbs, the daughter of an old friend, have come to help with the children.

What with the complex cares of so large a party and all the difficulties ahead of us, our hearts might well have failed us and we might have wished ourselves back in the deep peace and comfort of our pleasant Sussex home, if it were not that there is something in this errand which insures that when once you have set your feet upon the path it smooths out before you, and you never doubt that you will attain your end.

SPIRIT ASSURANCE

We had high assurances from that other world which is so close to ours, if we will but heed it, as to the need and the outcome of such a mission. "You have no idea what great and glorious work you are going to do. You will leave your mark forever upon America. We will all be with you, giving you inspiration and power and health." Such was the cheering and wonderful message which I had received on March 17 in that home circle which had never yet said the thing which did not come to pass.

Some one had to do it. That was very clear to me. The work was there and the work was to be done. If not me, then some one with greater powers. My own personal powers were little enough, but when immortal forces are behind you your real personality counts for nothing. Therefore I was bound to try. And one could only try, for if one failed what then? It was but time and energy, misspent with a little ridicule thrown in.

SIR ARTHUR'S PURPOSE

But no failure could be permanent. The churches had to be spiritualized. Mankind had to face its problems. The new facts, as clear as daylight, had to come into their own. Materialism and comfort and legend had to yield to truth and duty and the beauty of the new revelation. All this had to be done, and it mattered nothing who did it. I must try, since I was guided that way and if they would not take my message seriously, then another would surely come who would compel belief. The eternal forces would find their right agent somehow and somewhere. The great generals use the small privates, and whether we stand inside the fort or lie in front of it matters little so long as the fight is won.

At my age I am in a position where I have nothing either to fear or to hope for from any worldly source. I desire nothing further that the world can give me, and I dread nothing which it can either do to me or say of me. Therefore my one desire is to say exactly what I believe to be true, and there I have indeed a fear, for it would shock me greatly if ever I though that others had been misled by me. But I examine carefully and I weigh my words, and if ever I have erred that erring, for which I mourn, must surely count as a small thing compared to the amount of truth which I can vouch for from my own experience, confirmed by the testimony of many who are wiser and more learned than I. Therefore, it is that I spend the span of life which is left to me in helping a cause which cannot fail—since truth can never ultimately fail—to influence deeply the future of mankind.

And yet as I saw those white houses on shore growing larger and the bay, opening out before us I saw also the dangers that lay there, and how formidable they were. They have a keen sense of humor, these Americans, and no subject can be more easily made humorous than this. They are intensely practical, and this would appear to them visionary. They are immersed in worldly pursuits, and this cuts right across the path of their lives. Above all they are swayed by the press, and if the press takes a flippant attitude I have no means of getting behind it. These were the obvious difficulties. Well, one could only meet them with such fortitude as one might.

BESIEGED BY REPORTERS

And then next moment they were at close grips with me. A dozen rather unkempt, keen-faced, alert young or middle-aged men, slouch hatted, overcoated, rough and ready, had boarded our ship at the Narrows, as soon as quarantine was granted. They pinned me in a corner and were showering questions upon me. These eager men are not intruders. A private individual may resent their presence, but a man on public business has no right to do so. They are not there for their own pleasure. They are there for their duty—often an unpleasant one, and they do it with remarkable intelligence and discretion.

Of course they are human and they are out for copy. If they see a chink in your armor they will thrust for it. Thus poor Mrs. Asquith was bombarded with questions as to her private opinion of Mr. Lloyd George. If you are perfectly frank you are safe, but they are not men whom I would care to bamboozle. They have seen too much of men and of life, these sentries at the gut of the strait who challenge all who pass.

VERY GOOD TO HIM

Well, they were very good to me. Their questions were so clean cut and intelligent that I saw signs of organized preparation. They got to the heart of things at once. I asked nothing better, and so we had a lively hour together while the Baltic slowly made for her moorings. They like America, those men. The first word of your mission is sent from end to end of that great continent as it is impressed upon their minds. It is worth all the courtesy and charity that you can command. I am told that it was all very favorable and that their reports were both good and accurate.

I had prepared one or two vital headings for their reference, and I may as well hand them to the reader as to the pressman, that he may have a more intelligent idea of what was my line of thought.

SPIRITISM AND RELIGION

"Making every allowance," said this aide-memoire, "for fraud, which has been greatly exaggerated, and for self-deception, which is far more common, there remains a great residuum of proved fact which makes this psychic movement the most serious attempt ever made to place religion upon a basis of definite proof. It is the one great final antidote to materialism, which is the cause of most of our recent world troubles.

"If we can only make this good and the case has only to be clearly stated to carry conviction—then surely America has good cause to be proud that this great restatement of the fundamentals of religion should have had its origin upon her soil. It has been degraded by some who believed in it, and derided by all who did not, but the time has come to recognise the vital good that lay in it and to free it from sordid influences. High spirits did not descend upon earth to tell fortunes or to advise on business matters. Such uses bring a curse with them. The true aim of communication with spirits is consolation, knowledge of spiritual matters, including conditions of life after death, and, above all, self-improvement.

"Far from being antagonistic to religion, this psychic movement is destined to revivify religion, which has long been decaying and becoming a formality. This new knowledge makes it real and sure, and enables one for the first time to understand the actions and views of the early Christians and of their great leader. Without this psychic knowledge much of the New Testament is incomprehensible. With it one has renewed assurance of its essential truth.

"It unites real science and real religion, each supporting the other."

Such was my keynote, and it was of great importance that I should get it across in these, my opening interviews.

DOYLE CENSORS FILM

The interviewers and later the photographer are familiar incidents, but the cinema man adds something new to the difficulties of the traveler. It is a very real test of patience and temper when one is weary and unkempt. With the interviewer one can help oneself by the reflection that one is advocating and advancing one's cause, but one does not hope to gain much on one's personal appearance. The cinema ended it was once the occasion of a comic episode when my wife, seeing a machine erected before me, and thinking I was showing more curved waistcoat than was good, darted forward and readjusted me, unaware that the cinema handle was hard at work. When I shouted a word of warning she made matters worse by throwing up her hands and gasping. It was a delicious piece of natural comedy as it came out upon the screen, but I insisted upon a private performance and carried off that part of the roll for my own use in the future.

MET BY BURNS

So we passed the dragons at the gate and those other dragons of the Customhouse, being greatly helped in all things by the presence of an old friend, William J. Burns, the great secret service agent. It may sound sinister to admit that a famous detective was the first to accost you as you arrived, but William J. is a mighty useful friend in any tight corner. I found him the same as ever—quiet, gentle, efficient, with impassive face and eyes which miss nothing. He is now, I understand, in very special command of the secret service at Washington and in the immediate entourage of the President.

Late that night a weary and bedraggled party drove through the deep-cliffed canons with the thousands of twinkling lights, which cut their way through the great city. Tired as they were the children watched with wondering eyes, for it is a scene which can never be forgotten by a European. There is a rush and roar with a brilliancy and sense of motion and power such as can nowhere else be found. At last our two cabs pulled up at the famous Ambassador Hotel, where I found the manager, Mr. Kroel, to be an old acquaintance from the Berkeley Hotel in London. We had reached that domestic stage where a man's troubles end and a woman's begin. But we were all happy, for we were safe in our headquarters and the second act of our adventure was about to begin.

DENVER DRY AGENTS FIND RECORD STILL

SEIZED PLANT CAPABLE OF MAKING 150 GALLONS LIQUOR DAILY

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

DENVER (Colo.) Oct. 13.—A plant capable of producing 150 gallons of liquor daily and described by Prohibition Director E. H. McLenahan as the biggest moonshine distillery found in the United States since passage of the dry amendment, was seized by Federal prohibition agents today on a ranch twenty miles south of Denver.

The distillery, according to the Federal officer's statement, was located on a ranch owned by John Helmer, about a mile from the town of Kassler.

A tent 40x50 feet in size and camouflaged in war-time style, Mr. McLenahan said, covered the apparatus in clearing amid trees.

at a reasonable cost and that this entailed on the part of the railway management resistance against "expensive wage scales and unreasonable working conditions."

Excessive demands on the part of labor, he asserted, constituted questions not between labor and capital, but between railway labor and the public. "This does not mean that railroad men should be dealt with parsimoniously," he continued.

ONLY CONDEMNS WASTE

"They should be fairly paid; well paid. Personally I will go to the length of saying that I am in favor of railroad workers being liberally paid. And the hours of labor and working conditions should be compatible with proper rest, recreation and the enjoyment of home life. It is only waste that I am condemning."

Governmental "paternalism" was identified with Socialism by Frank E. Robinson, a former chief justice in West Virginia and a member of the War Minerals Relief Commission, who declared he saw a drift in the direction of both in the United States.

The closing session included addresses by G. A. O'Rielly, vice-president of the Irving National Bank, New York, and F. W. Fenn, Washington, of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Delegates passed a resolution declaring that "laws should be made and enforced by all the power of the government that shall forever strip labor organizations as well as employers of the ability to interfere with the production and distribution of the necessities of life."

UNIONIST HEAD BACKS PREMIER

nounces the date of the general election, which political prognosticators have set as anywhere from November 4 until after the first of the year, because Austen Chamberlain stated today that Lloyd George had told him he did not know when it would be held.

Lloyd's Agency is betting 3 to 1 the election will not take place this year, and even money that it will not come before next March. Notwithstanding that, all the political headquarters are busily getting their election machinery in order, particularly the Labor party, which already has designated 400 candidates for 647 seats in Commons. There are 707 seats legally, but seventy-three Sinn Feiners cannot be taken into consideration and thirteen are added through the organization of the Ulster Parliament.

WOULD SERVE BOTH

The critics of Chamberlain have repeatedly insisted that he could not be loyal to Lloyd George and also to the party he leads, but apparently he believes he can serve both. Though the position he would take had been questioned, his pronouncement today did not come as a great surprise. It has served to clear the most hazy political atmosphere only a little bit.

The question now growing bigger every minute is what percentage of the coalition Unionists are willing to pull away from old leaders, and attached to that question is the great contingency of whether Andrew Bonar Law would be willing to lead such a faction in the party. There have been many indications that he would, which has pushed him to the forefront very rapidly within the last ten days. That situation clearly is up in the air doubtless as much so among the leaders of the party as to those who are attempting to discern which way the wind is blowing.

Any hope of getting the two factions of Liberals together probably was dispelled today when Mr. Chamberlain bitterly attacked Herbert Asquith and Viscount Grey for their criticisms of the government when the Near Eastern war clouds hung low, and again assailed Grey on his policy which, he said, resulted in the World War. There was no olive branch extended in that direction.

POLICIES BALANCED

Balancing the Liberal policy of 1914 against the Coalition policy in the Near East during the last few weeks, Mr. Chamberlain said in effect:

"We kept you out of the war," and kept the Turks from doing in Southwestern Europe what they did in Asia Minor, but without showing any partiality between the Greeks or Turks.

With the Liberal split definite, and a very serious one threatening in the Unionists' ranks, there remains only one solid party—Labor. With 1,500,000 registered unemployed, and easily as many more on half time, and the dissatisfaction of the working classes over high taxes, the leaders of the older parties may well be worried over the outcome, and their pleas against "revolutionaries" gathering up the government reins rings truer than the old-time threats of like character.

EYES TURN NORTH

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MANCHESTER, Oct. 13.—The political limelight will shine upon Manchester tomorrow as it has not shone before since the memorable day when President Wilson visited this northern metropolis, which prides itself upon being the center both of industry and culture.

David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister, has chosen the home of his friends to launch his platform. The Manchester Reform Club, where the Premier will deliver an address at a luncheon, has stood behind the Premier while the National Liberal Club of London was taking down his portrait from the library and hanging it in the basement.

A LOCAL AFFAIR

Tomorrow's function will be a local, rather than a national, affair. The reform club can accommodate only a few of the guests.

Coalition Liberals will be nearly all the guests, those occupied by members of Premier's family and friends. Great efforts were made among the Manchester Liberals to be among the elect at the feast. There was even one with a typewriter at the luncheon table, and $100 for "it" from a correspondent was offered by a Londoner to some one for this seat.

Sir Edward Rhodes will preside and propose a toast to the Minister, whose address is expected to begin at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

HINT AT NEW ARMS MEET

view of the Harding announcement is that there is nothing in the Arms Conference treaties against the interest of France, therefore, it is hoped the French government will find it convenient to ratify them as soon as possible.

The fact that Great Britain, the United States and Japan accepted the naval ratio of 5-5-3 automatically more than doubled the strength of the French navy, considered from a point of view of relativity, administration pointed out, and, therefore, greatly to the advantage of the French.

WANT FRENCH AID

So far as this government is officially aware, there has been any objection on the part of France to the fact that we propose to give Italy a parity with her in naval strength. This government is looking forward confidently to the time when the French government will announce its willingness to exchange ratifications, particularly as the Washington treaties provide that they shall not become effective until ratifications have been exchanged by the various signatory powers.

In this respect the Washington conference treaties differ materially from the Versailles Treaty, which provided that it should become effective upon ratification by the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

While the administration declines to believe France's action will refuse to ratify, since she has been no official intimation that subject, it is admitted that the only process by which the treaties effective in can be made effective would become apparent the French Chamber of Deputies should not follow the lead of Italy in ratifying the treaties, which already have been ratified. It would be necessary to renegotiate the treaties to make them effective upon ratification by three more powers.

Despite optimistic views in some quarters to the effect that nothing will be done about the submarine question, it would be most unfortunate if the Washington treaties should fail to go into effect as a result of refusal of France and Italy to act. To make the Washington treaty to the three leading naval powers, the United States, Great Britain and Japan, it is believed would perhaps accomplish one of the things the conference set out to accomplish in the way of limiting great armaments, and this will be brought to the attention of the conference, it was declared, if necessary.

LETTERS TELL OF HALF-LOVE

Woman on Trial for Killing Her Husband

Missives from Married Man Read in Court

Injured Spouse Tells of Their Infatuation

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TOMS RIVER (N. J.) Oct. 13.—Story of the infatuation of Mrs. [illegible] Giberson, a woman of large proportions, on trial for the murder of her husband, Harold Ganun of near her junior, Harold Ganun and his half-hearted acceptance of her love, although he was married and the father of a three-year-old child, were revealed in letters written by Ganun to Mrs. Giberson, read in the Ocean County courthouse today.

The letters disclosed Mrs. Giberson's desperate attempts to win Harold Ganun after he had left Lakewood, N. J., where he had learned to know Mrs. Giberson well while employed there by the United States government last year, and where the pair daily had been together, and returned to his family in New York.

The middle-aged woman wrote, pleaded and called to see Ganun in New York, the letters revealed, until his wife, "at his request," wrote Mrs. Giberson asking her to cease her attentions, and threatening to sue her for alienation of affections if she did not cease her "disgusting performance."

When Ganun was called to the stand this morning by the prosecuting attorney the defendant moved his seat farther from the witness stand than the one where she had been sitting. Prosecutor Jayne then moved forward with the packet of letters. Handing them to Ganun, he asked: "Did you write these letters?"

"I did," Ganun replied.

Jurors turned to the jury and began reading the missives. Ganun, young and handsome, sitting with head bowed, took out a gold pencil and started tapping his knee. Occasionally he raised his head and, smiling slightly, sent reassuring glances toward his wife, who sat near Judge Kalisch.

DEFENDANT FLUSHED

Mrs. Giberson, her face flushed, looked sternly out a window over the heads of the jurors.

Ganun admitted having known Mrs. Giberson intimately while he was living in a bungalow with several friends in Lakehurst from January, 1921, until June of that year. During that time, he said, Giberson visited the bungalow almost once, and sometimes twice or three times daily. He had called at the Giberson home, he testified, as often as twice a week, but never alone.

On his return to New York, Ganun said Mrs. Giberson had written him several times a week. Her letters continued with such frequency, he declared, that in September, 1921, he showed some of them to Mrs. Ganun, because, as he explained, he "feared more than a friendly interest" prompted them, and asked his wife to write Mrs. Giberson.

She did, he said, and Mrs. Giberson's letters came no more until last August, when he received a special delivery letter from the defendant telling him she was in trouble, and pleading with him to see her "for old friendship's sake."

WILKENS TRIAL MARKING TIME

Prosecution Rests Until Next Monday

Defense Will Attack Early in the Week

Victim's Sister Faints After Being on Stand

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—The prosecution rested tonight in the trial of Henry Wilkens, a garage manager, accused of the murder of his wife, Mrs. Anna Wilkens. The defense, which will open its case Monday, expects to put the defendant on the stand in an effort to disprove the prosecution's contention that the hold-up in which Mrs. Wilkens was killed was a prearranged affair between Wilkens and two others.

Miss Helen Lange, sister of Mrs. Wilkens, who was recalled to the stand today by the prosecution, fainted in the judge's chambers after testifying again to relations with Wilkens.

When she was restored to consciousness she broke into hysterical cries of "Oh, why did I have to tell it," stopping the progress of the trial temporarily.

OLD STATEMENT READ

After the conclusion of her testimony the prosecution read into the record a long statement made by Wilkens to the District Attorney June 5 and 6, last, telling his version of the hold-up, stating that the bandit who killed Mrs. Wilkens took her jewelry, and denying that he ever knew any of the Castor brothers.

Miss Lange testified earlier in the trial that the jewelry which Wilkens said was taken in the hold-up was found later in a bureau drawer in the Wilkens's home.

Arthur Castor, the prosecution's key witness, testified that the hold-up was the result of a plot between himself, his brother, Walter, and Wilkens, in which Arthur Castor's part was to be rewarded with $250. Water Castor shot and killed himself when the police sought to arrest him after his brother told of a meeting between Wilkens and Robert Castor a few days after Mrs. Wilkens's death.

BOOK-KEEPER'S TESTIMONY

According to one of the prosecution witnesses today, Miss Kathleen Landell, Wilkens's book-keeper, the defendant asked her not to enter certain business collections on his books, as his wife was saving him separate maintenance and he did not want her to know what money he had coming in.

Miss Landell testified that shortly before Mrs. Wilkens's death Wilkens collected a $385 account from a Sacramento woman, but only gave the book-keeper $100 to deposit in the bank, keeping the rest in his wallet.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—Experts from the California Industrial Accident Commission will give the first testimony at the public hearing Monday on the Argonaut mine disaster before the special committee appointed by Gov. Stephens.

Among them will be Fred L. Lowell, safety engineer of the commission, L. M. Welfin, superintendent of safety; G. Chester Brown, chief mining engineer; Will J. French, chairman of the commission, and perhaps Dr. L. H. Dushak, chemical expert.

These men were active in the rescue operations. The hearing will open at 2 p.m. in the assembly hall of the Sharon Building. GRABLE BEATEN AS UNION HEAD

Man Who Prevented Strike Loses Place

New Chief Says "Men May Walk Out"

Early Appeal Will be Made to Board

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT, Oct. 13.—Overthrow of E. F. Grable of Detroit as grand president of the International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employees and Railway Shop Laborers, and announcement by his successor, F. H. Fljozdal of Dauphin, Manitoba, that a new demand "for improved working conditions and a living wage" would be made by the organization upon the United States Railway Labor Board, marked today's session of the brotherhood's triennial convention here.

President Grable, credited with having averted a strike of the 400,000 railway maintenance men of the country last summer, after they had voted overwhelmingly in favor of joining the shopmen's walkout, was defeated by more than 3000 votes out of a total of approximately 56,000. Each delegate cast as many votes as there were members in the local union he represented.

"MIGHT WALK OUT"

In a statement made through his personal representative, Frank Finnson of Detroit, the president-elect declared his opposition to a strike of the maintenance men at any time in the future, but announced that "the union membership might be prepared to walk out if improved working conditions and adequate wage increases were not forthcoming."

Mr. Fljozdal, it was announced by his representative, is prepared immediately upon assuming office to make an appeal to the Labor Board setting forth the needs of the maintenance men for higher wages and improved working conditions, and that the organization is prepared to prove to the public as well as to the board the justice of their demands.

Shortly before the result of the election was made known on the convention floor, a telegram sent yesterday by Mr. Grable to labor members of the Labor Board was read.

APPEAL FOR ACTION

The telegram was an appeal for a quick decision of the maintenance men's case now before the board, a protest against so small an increase as 2 cents an hour for maintenance laborers, and a threat that unless a larger increase was granted to all classes of workers in the brotherhood, that "loyal members of our brotherhood may adopt extreme tactics, fostered by questionable leaders, to remedy their just grievances of long standing."

Elmer F. Milliman of Mt. Morris, N. Y., was elected secretary of the brotherhood, defeating S. J. Pegg of Detroit, incumbent.

Ballots were cast today for vice-presidents and members of the executive board. The results are expected to be made known tomorrow. It was decided to reduce the number of vice-presidents from fourteen to five, and cut their annual salaries from $6000 to $4200.

The convention voted to move the headquarters of the organization from Detroit, but action was annulled when delegates protested it was a violation of parliamentary rules. The question is expected to be decided early next week.

President Fljozdal has been a member of the organization for twenty years, and for some time has been an international vice-president of the order. He started his railroad work as a section hand.

SUGAR KING SAYS PRICE MUST DROP

SPRECKELS SHUTS DOWN FACTORY, SAYING RISE WAS SPECULATION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Claus Spreckels, president of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, who declared on his arrival from abroad three days ago that the price of sugar was too high, emphasized his remarks today by announcing that he would at once shut down the Federal Company's plant at Yonkers.

"Sugar must fall in price," said Mr. Spreckels. "Conditions in Cuba, received in reports by cable, assert that there is so much heavy cane growing that they expect to begin grinding the new crop about one month to six weeks earlier than usual, that is, they will begin about December 1 instead of January 1.

"Cables from France show that their crop is unprecedented in the purity of the beets and a higher percentage of sugar content than has been recorded for many years.

"Beet sugar producers in Europe will have a surplus of over 800,000 tons and I cannot see that there will be any exports to Europe for the next six months.

"Sugar has been advanced in price ¾ cent in the last two to three weeks.

"This is an advance that bears the earmarks of pure speculation and not because of a legitimate condition.

"I cannot but expect when this new crop begins to come in or in anticipation of it within the next thirty days sugar must take a drop."

CONGRESS MUST SOLVE DRY LAW

Clarification of Intent to be Demanded

Government to Enforce Rule "With Reason"

HITS PORTO RICO

The case of Porto Rico is particularly serious. The chief crop of Porto Rico, "the poor man's crop," as it is called, is coffee. Two-thirds of the crop is shipped to Cuba, more than half of the remainder going to Spain. According to Secretary of War Weeks, under whose jurisdiction Porto Rico falls, by far the greater part of that commerce is carried in Spanish vessels, most of which carry stocks of wine or liquors as part of the cargo. Under a strict interpretation of the Daugherty ruling, such Spanish ships carrying any liquor whatever in their cargoes would be barred from entering the Porto Rican three-mile limit.

Secretary Weeks believes such a condition would prove almost disastrous for Porto Rican trade and it would be practically impossible to put it strictly into effect. It was indicated today by a high administration official that Atty.-Gen. Daugherty would wait with interest any further elucidation by the Supreme Court of the ramifications of the Volstead Act. It is expected that several test cases will be brought before the court for decision almost immediately and should the court's views continue along the line of the so-called Holmes decision, it is thought to be almost certain that the Executive will ask Congress to make some modification of the law to permit greater freedom to foreign vessels in entering insular waters.

MANIFOLD DIFFICULTIES

The difficulties which now confront the administration following the Daugherty interpretation tend to convince officials of the impracticability, it was stated, of making rules or laws that have an application in many different parts of the world and a direct bearing upon the nationals and commerce of many other countries.

The case of the Philippines also is giving Secretary Weeks much concern. To date, the Volstead law has not been in force with respect to the Philippines, but it is believed, that unless the Supreme Court makes some modification of the tenor of previous rulings, it would be necessary under the Daugherty opinion to instruct the civil government of the islands to put into effect immediately the Volstead law in its strictest interpretation.

As in the case of Porto Rico, there have been in the past many foreign ships arriving at Manila with part cargoes of liquor often destined to Java, Borneo or some other islands of the south Pacific, or the Asiatic mainland. It has been the custom for these ships to discharge part of their cargo destined for the Philippines and to transfer to smaller ships, the consignments destined to other points, inasmuch as this trade is conducted chiefly by smaller vessels using Manila as a base of distribution. Under the Daugherty decision these ships would be barred from participation in that sort of trade, and therefore Manila would be deprived of its present importance as a distribution point.

DELICATE SITUATION

No representations have as yet been received at the State Department from any foreign power as a result of the Daugherty ruling and the steps taken by the administration to endorse it. Administration officials admit the delicacy of some of the points involved, from an international aspect and are pursuing a policy of scrupulous care in commenting upon them. While it, in theory at least, is entirely proper for the United States to regulate the conduct of its own ships and those of foreign countries while in American waters, officials are not closing their eyes to the practical side of the matter and clearly recognize that the law will work a great deal of inconvenience upon foreign commerce.

Secretary Mellon today issued the formal notice to American customs officers throughout the world to give effect to the terms of the Daugherty opinion, but in so doing he left the distinct impression that he favored a "rule of reason" enforcement, since he made no mention of the "possession" of liquors held illegal, by the attorney-general. Vessels leaving foreign ports after October 14 would not be permitted to bring liquors within the three-mile limit.

WON'T SEIZE STOCKS

Foreign ships leaving their own ports up to and including Oct. 14, 1922, and American ships leaving foreign ports up to and including the same date having stocks of liquor on board will be permitted without interruption to make a continuous voyage into foreign ports for the disposition of such liquor even though they touch points of the United States en route.

The division of customs was directed to give notice to collectors of customs at all ports to receive, receipt for, label, store and keep custody of all stocks of liquor voluntarily surrounded by American ships. It is the intention of the Secretary, however, to make the extension of time allowed by the President's directions applicable to all foreign and American shipping and therefore any stocks of liquor surrendered voluntarily by such vessels prior to that date will be returned to such vessels and given the status of stock leaving foreign ports to that date.

All instructions contained in these notices are subject to the injunction effective until October 18, allowed by U. S. District Judge Hand in the courts of the Southern district of New York yesterday. While legally speaking the injunction would be operative in the Southern district of New York, nevertheless as is usual it will no doubt relate to and be effective throughout the entire country.

YOUNG ROOSEVELT TO AID IN RELIEF

SON OF GREAT AMERICAN IS NAMED EXECUTIVE OF NEAR EAST WORK

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. — Archie Roosevelt, son of the late Theodore Roosevelt, and vice-president of the Union Petroleum Company, today was named executive secretary of President Harding's Near East emergency committee, which met here to formulate plans for a national campaign for funds. Mr. Roosevelt, whose services have been loaned by the petroleum company until the relief work is completed, is on his way to New York from Texas, Will H. Hays, chairman of the committee, said.

President Harding, in a letter to the committee today, said: "As the people of America have given and given generously in every great crisis that has occurred in China, Russia, India and all parts of the world, so they must give and give a great sum now—millions of dollars—if the lives of these victims are to be saved. No appeal of real need from whatever part of the world has ever been made in vain to America."

The committee determined that the strength of the American Red Cross and the Near East relief should be combined for the fund drive for the immediate needs of the emergency committee.

COURT DENIES ORDER AGAINST FRUIT MEN

SANTA ROSA, Oct. 13. — In an opinion rendered late today Superior Judge Thompson dismissed a temporary restraining order obtained by the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association against H. W. Hosmer and other Sonoma county members of the organization restraining them from selling their crops.

The opinion makes plain that the association may obtain a proper adjudication of their claims against member growers who dispose of crops outside the association channels, through suits for damages.

DANIEL WEBSTER SETTLED CONTROVERSY OF LIQUOR ON FOREIGN SHIPS YEARS AGO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—In 1842 Daniel Webster, then Secretary of State and one of the greatest constitutional lawyers, gave a decision which would settle the present problem regarding the carrying of liquor into American waters by foreign ships, providing, of course, that the drys will admit that Webster was an authority on the Constitution.

The question brought up at that time caused Webster to write the British Minister in Washington as follows:

"The law of nations, as I have stated it, and the statutes of governments founded on that law, show that enlightened nations in modern times do clearly hold that the jurisdiction and laws of a nation accompany her ships not only over the high seas, but into ports and harbors, or wheresoever else they may be water borne, for the general purpose of governing and regulating the rights, duties and obligations of those on board thereof, and that, to the extent of the exercise of this jurisdiction, they are considered as parts of the territory of the nation herself."

It is pointed out here today that Webster, had he been a prophet, could not have covered the present situation more perfectly than he does in those words.

RECORD FORMED IN RATE CASE

Pacific Gas and Electric Inquiry Halts

Gathering Testimony Took Nearly Two Years

Almost One Million Words in Transcript

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13. — Testimony in the Pacific Gas and Electric Company valuation proceedings, by which the Railroad Commission seeks to set a value on the properties of the company for rate-making purposes, was completed today after hearings extending over a period of nearly two years. Oral argument will begin November 14.

This is nearly the last of the big rate-making cases before the commission — valuation of the Southern California Edison Company, San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation and Pacific Electric Company properties already having been completed.

The Great Western Power Company proceedings are approaching an early conclusion.

VALUATION FIGURES

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company claims a total valuation for its properties of $170,711,271, which includes $32,000,000 of intangibles, such as water rights values and developments costs. The historical cost of the plant was given as $112,827,000, while the cost of reproduction under average prices for the five-year period 1915-1919 was computed at $137,801,926.

The company's final exhibit presented today included an estimate of $23,956,846 for its 1923 income, with estimated expenses of $11,818,664, leaving net revenue available for depreciation and return $13,026,682.

A large group of California municipalities appeared in the case, through representatives from the legal departments of the cities of Oakland, San Francisco and San Jose, and attacked the company valuations in numerous instances. The California farm bureau federation also was a party to the proceedings to protect agricultural interests.

The case is believed to set a record in some respects as the transcript contains more than 1,000,000 words; the chief items valued included nineteen hydro and three steam electric plants of a capacity of 330,000 horsepower, 180 substations, $18 buildings and a total of 30,000 miles of wire and cable.

ASK STOCK AUTHORITY

Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation applied to the Railroad Commission today for authorization to issue $3,000,000 par value of its first preferred capital stock and to sell the stock at not less than $90 a share. The proceeds are to finance in part additions and betterments to the company's system.

WOMAN STUNT FLYER KILLED IN ACCIDENT

UNABLE TO RELEASE HERSELF FROM ROPE LADDER ON PLANE, DIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND (Tenn.) Oct. 13.—Dangling in midair, unable to climb back to the airplane and afraid to trust to a drop into a lake below, Miss Eva Moss, Chattanooga stunt flyer, this afternoon was fatally crushed when the aviator was forced to descend.

Scorning the fact that the day was Friday and the date the thirteenth, Miss Moss went up for an exhibition flight, and had clambered out on the wing of the plane, then let herself down the twenty-five-foot rope ladder, where she was suspended in midair by her teeth.

When the time came for the young woman to climb back to the airplane, either by reason of exhaustion or through becoming entangled in the rope of the ladder, she was unable to do so. The pilot, seeing her predicament, flew out over a lake and circled about as low as possible, at the same time calling and signalling for her to jump into the water.

Whether through fear or inability to do this is unknown, but she remained clutching at the end of the rope.

In the meantime the mechanician, observing the tragedy which was being enacted in the air, hurriedly summoned an ambulance and physician, which were waiting when the plane finally descended.

On landing, the young woman was thrown against the ground with a terific impact, after which she was dragged for fifty or a hundred feet before the plane came to a stop.

She lived for twenty minutes, but never regained consciousness.

Aviator Peebles, with whom Miss Moss was flying, is heartbroken over the tragedy. He has announced his intention of never flying again.

LARGE LIBEL SUIT FILED AGAINST SHIP

UNION OIL ASKS DAMAGES OF $1,125,000 AFTER COLLISION

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—A libel suit for $1,125,000 was filed in the Federal Court here yesterday by the Union Oil Company against the steamer Walter A. Luckenbach and the Walter A. Luckenbach Steamship Company. The steamer Luckenbach collided with the Lyman Stewart in the straits here Saturday night. The Stewart drifted upon the rocks and all efforts to dislodge it have been unsuccessful.

The complaint avers the Luckenbach was responsible for the collision as it was being operated at an immoderate rate of speed and that it was not upon the proper side of the mid-channel. The Lyman Stewart, the complaint reads, was proceeding out of the harbor at a low rate of speed and in accordance with maritime rules.

After the collision the complaint reads, the Luckenbach proceeded without attempting to render assistance.

The libel suit is said to be the largest ever brought here.

SET NEW RECORD IN BEE VALUES

Half Interest of Queen in North Dakota Hive Brings $150

AMENIA (N. D.) Oct. 12. A half interest in "Achievement Girl," a queen honey bee of the Amenia apiaries, has been sold to J. M. Cutter and son, Montgomery, Ala., for $150, setting a new record for bee values, according to W. A. Crites, manager of the Amenia bee farm.

The queen was mailed to Alabama, where she will spend the winter, to be returned to North Dakota next spring. She was a member of a colony which last summer set one of three world's records for honey production, according to Mr. Crites.

AUTO TURNS TURTLE ON STONE PILE

Long Beach Boy Thought Fatally Injured as Result of Car Spill

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Oct. 13. — Basil Marshall, 20 years of age, of 122 East First street, was perhaps fatally injured tonight when an automobile in which he and three other youths were riding crashed into a pile of gravel on East Seventh street, turning completely over.

Kenneth Barnes, 18 years of age, of 1012 Atlantic avenue, one of Marshall's three companions, was severely cut about the hands, but his injuries are not considered serious. The other two boys were apparently unhurt.

The quartet were riding in a Ford automobile and had just turned into East Seventh street from Washington street when the machine ran into the pile of gravel, which had been left there for building purposes. The automobil turned completely over, throwing young Barnes and the other two boys clear of the wreckage.

At police headquarters, where the two injured boys were taken, Barnes declared that no danger signals were to be seen near the pile of material. Dr. F. V. Sweet dressed Barnes's injuries at the Police Station, but ordered young Marshall removed to the Seaside hospital, where late tonight it was believed he was suffering from a basal fracture of the skull.

MEXICO NO NEARER RECOGNITION STATUS

PURCHASE OF EMBASSY AT OBREGON'S CAPITAL ONLY FORMAL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. — Inquiry at the State Department today brought the statement that the recent purchase by the United States of an embassy building in Mexico City had no relation whatever to the question of recognition of the Mexican government. The purchase was made, it was said, under an allotment of funds made available by Congress a year ago for the purchase of embassy quarters in four capitals.

So far as recognition of the Obregon government is concerned, it was reiterated today by State Department officials that they knew of no change recently in the situation and that the Washington government was awaiting such action by the Mexico City authorities as would settle definitely the question of the rights of American citizens holding property in Mexico under the Mexican constitution.

The point involved is the retroactive feature of Article xxvii of the constitution and it has been repeatedly stated on good authority here that further action in Mexico City to exempt property legally held in Mexico by American citizens and acquired prior to the adoption of that constitution from any possibility of retroactive application of Article xxvii must be taken before diplomatic recognition could be possible. The situation was said today to be unchanged in that respect.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—The Shell Oil Company of California filed a libel suit for $235,000 against the Luckenbach Steamship Company as the result of the loss of 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline when the tank steamer Lyman Stewart collided with the steamer Walter Luckenbach in the Golden Gate last Saturday. The tanker, which was abandoned and is still on the rocks, belonged to the Union Oil Company, but was hauling the gasoline for the Shell Oil Company.

SAN DIEGO WON BY RICHARDSON

Candidate for Governor is Warmly Welcomed

Repeats Pledges to Save State Huge Sum

Leaves for Santa Ana After Hurried Program

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 13. — Friend W. Richardson, Republican candidate for Governor, came into personal contact with hundreds of voters here today, spoke at a luncheon tendered him by 140 San Diegans, outlined the issues upon which he seeks election and departed for Santa Ana early this afternoon.

Open house was held at Republican headquarters and Mr. Richardson was kept busy shaking hands with a continual stream of admirers.

John E. King, editor of the Hemet News, and himself a Democrat, speaking at the luncheon, declared Richardson would not only receive the votes of every Republican in the State, but would get one-third of the Democratic votes. He further declared three out of every four Democratic newspapers in California favored the Republican candidate.

Mr. Richardson reviewed the issues upon which he had taken his stand and said he intended making a thorough housecleaning when he went to Sacramento. In a statement issued before he left the city, he said:

ECONOMY NEEDED

"For several years I have repeatedly pointed out to the people the need of economy in State affairs and I have given warning of the financial dangers facing the State. Professional politicians laughed and said the people favored extravagance.

"Fifteen months ago I was faced with a decision. I could seek re-election as Treasurer and probably be re-elected without opposition. That was the easy way. The other way was to go forth and battle for the people who had honored me with two terms in office. I realized the great power and influence of the political machine, but decided it was my duty to take up the good fight and battle to relieve the people of the great tax burden.

"I am still carrying forward my message of economy and believe that it is the one big issue confronting the people. I intend to do my utmost to meet that issue.

BUDGET REDUCTION

"If elected, I will present to the 1923 Legislature a budget from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 less than the $91,000,000 appropriation in 1921. I will do this without injuring any humane, progressive or educational function of the State, and at the same time improve the efficiency of the various departments.

"I pledge myself, if elected, to decide every question on its merits, without regard to my own political advancement. Having no higher ambition, I will not need to give heed to personal political consideration. I will remove from office the present political machine, substitute business for politics in State government, abolish unnecessary offices and commissions; in other words, I will strive to give the people an economical, just and efficient government. I point to my record in office as a guarantee of what I will do as Governor."

First Case of Gland Larceny in Windy City

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Joseph Wozniak is a husky, normal person, who occasionally takes a drink but his last adventure with liquor cost him one of his interstitinal glands. He is now in a hospital recovering from his remarkable experience.

On the morning of October 11, he was walking under a viaduct, slightly lit up after a few rounds of drinks, when four men seized him, threw a sack over his head and dragged him into an automobile. A sponge filled with chloroform was pressed against his face and he lapsed into unconsciousness. When he regained his senses, he was lying in a vacant lot, the bag still over his head. He staggered home and there made the discovery that one of his glands had been removed and he called a physician who ordered him to a hospital.

The attending surgeons say the gland was removed by a skillful operator, presumably in some hospital, as the wound had been carefully sutured and dressed, the work of an expert.

It is the theory of the hospital authorities and the police that Wozniak was kidnaped at the behest of some wealthy patient in need of a gland transplantation, that Wozniak had been chosen because of his virility and that he occasionally drank and would be easy to capture.

It is the first case of gland larceny reported in Chicago.

Fisher of the Department of Geology of the University of Chicago. In the five test pits already dug the assays show from $3 to $23 of gold per net ton of concentrates.

JAPONETTE

BY ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

He was saying, slowly: "There has never been a moment since that day that my life has not been yours—that you have not possessed my heart, my mind, filled them, overwhelmingly inspired me with love and adoration for you alone. What I am, and will be, I am, and shall be by grace of you.

"But gratitude is not the love of man for woman; it is not even part of it; it is a separate passion—a shrine by itself. I worship you there in my own fashion.

"But you, Diana—Japonette"—He flung one arm around her body. She placed a firm hand on his wrist as though to break the clasp, looked at him, and began to tremble.

"Can you love me, Japonette?"

"I've — "

"Can you?"

"Yes."

Her hand tightened over his wrist as he drew her close, crushing her to him. She looked up blindly into his eyes as he kissed her; then her lids unclosed and her silent lips moved, forming his name.

They neither dressed for the theater nor went to it. They dined together at an outrageous hour in an unfashionable haunt of his.

Silvette, Jack, Mr. Rivett and Mr. Dineen found them at supper in the little parlor when they arrived from the play.

"Di!" cried Silvette, "what on earth has possessed you and Jim?"

Her voice failed her at sight of her sister's face.

"That!" she exclaimed: "has that happened? Darling! My little Di—my little, little girl!" she murmured, dropping on her knees beside her.

Mr. Dineen looked foolishly at Mr. Rivett.

"Say it later, John," whispered Mr. Rivett dryly. "We'll go downstairs for a while."

"You won't!" said Diana, turning laughingly on them. "You will wish us happiness, and drink to it, too." She rose, flushed and radiant. Silvette sprang to her feet and kissed her; Jack seized her with determination, and made no ceremony about it.

Then Diana walked straight up to Mr. Rivett, and held out both hands; and the little man kissed her grimly.

Mr. Dineen's blue eyes sparkled; she looked at the big, jolly Irishman, audaciously delighted.

"What man has done, man may do," she said.

"Faith, I'll see if a woman can do it, too!" he said, saluting her with all the reckless grace of his race.

Then Edgerton's hand was shaken and his shoulder patted, and Jack summoned legions of waiters from the regions below.

Rivett's burned-brown eyes bored through and through Edgerton as he took his hand.

"I thought you'd do it," he said.

"Did you? I wasn't very hopeful myself," said the young fellow, laughing.

"I was . . . They're good children—good children—like my own. . . . If you will excuse me, I will go and telegraph my wife. . . . It will be a happiness to her—a great happiness."

Jack thrust a glass into his hand. "What's this?" demanded his father.

"We are to drink health to them, dad."

Mr. Rivett inspected his glass, hesitated, while all waited; then, lifting it:

"They're all good children," he said. "Health, happiness, prosperity to them—and—to the house of Edgerton, Tennant and Company! . . . Break your glasses!"

THE END.

If you are in a hurry to get over the ocean hours spent on the small boats, while others seriously described the tense moments before the West Faralon came to their rescue. But the rescued passengers, while not freely of their experiences, agreed that their names be not
According to the accounts given, the passengers took to the boats when rather choppy sea when Capt. Lester of the City of Honolulu informed them that there was no hope of saving the vessel as the flames and that it would be dangerous to remain aboard.
SODA CRACKERS
When open boats the castaways had time to make the best of their unenviable situation, expecting to be picked up at any time. But all day and most of the night passed by. For food they had soda crackers, but these were munched hungrily because they were salty and much water was required to quench the afterthirst. And when the rescue ship in sight, and the assurance there would be one time if at all the fresh water supply was an important one. Even the women passengers accepted their fate as bravely as the men and not one complaint was heard from any of them. One woman had a baby and two small children to put up a brave battle against the trying ordeal on the open sea. The baby probably would not have lived had it not been trained in the open boat over
THROUGH PORTHOLE
When the flames enveloped the vessel one man was caught in the stateroom and was obliged to escape through the porthole and the side of the ship to the sea. He escaped clad only in his underwear. On the West Faralon was apparently unable to obtain other clothing and when the passengers were transferred to the ship he came over the side, dressed in the purple sleeping garments and a broad smile.
Aboard the West Faralon apparently the victims knew the fate of their ordeal was over. They filled their voices in loud laughter. Upon being taken aboard the rescuing vessel, the castaways were given regulation army stew and placed in blankets to sleep.
After being transferred to the ship the passengers were given warm clothing, although some of the misfit. Many of the men are now wearing the uniforms of colonels of cavalry and even as dashing lieutenants of

All things in life need a background and had a tragic thrill," said one of the rescued ones. "This experience has given me a new sense of existence and I thank God I am alive."
The passengers unanimously are praising their voices in praise of Capt. Lester and his crew.
CAPTAIN PRAISED
From the time the curtain rose on the end of the thrilling drama, Capt. Lester never raised his voice above the ordinary conversational tone. Never for a moment did he lose his head. He directed the movements of the husbands intrusted to his keeping calmly as though being cast in open boats in midsea was a every-day occurence. The attitude of the captain inspired confidence in the passengers and there was not even the semblance of panic when it became known that they were to abandon the burning ship. There were no outstanding acts of individual heroism among the passengers. Things occurred with such calm as could be expected from the nerve convulsing expe-three days before able to board her on account of heat. West Faralon has no way of towing except with light line. Impossible to steer City of Honolulu. Please advise.

[Signed] "WESTER."

It was announced last night that the coast guard cutters Tamaroa from Los Angeles Harbor and the Shawnee from San Francisco would take full charge of the situation upon reaching the scene. They left their respective stations at 3 p.m. Thursday, and are expected to reach the City of Honolulu at noon today. The West Faralon has been ordered to stand by the City of Honolulu until the two cutters arrive, before proceeding for the Orient.

STAND BY SHIP

Capt. Lester, his officers and part of the crew will remain at the scene until the hulk is salvaged or sunk, it was announced last night. The West Faralon was last night ordered to make every attempt to get lines aboard the City of Honolul while awaiting the arrival of the Shawnee and Tamaroa, and to render all assistance requested after the two craft arrive.

In the only dispatch received from the Thomas up to a late hour last night all passengers from the City of Honolulu were reported to be in good health and spirits.

Exceptional coolness and daring on the part of the ship's officers, together with remarkable co-operation by the passengers and crew of the flame-ridden liner City of Honolulu, averted a calamity when the liner caught fire 670 miles from port yesterday morning, and marked the rescue as one of the most complete and efficient in marine annals, according to the newest details sent by wireless from the Army transport Thomas.

When the flames made an inferno of the ship, Capt. H. R. Lester went into the second-class compartment, where the fire originated, to investigate. He was overcome for a short time by the smoke and gas. The pumps were put out of commission by the roaring flames and the boat listed heavily to port.

ACCEPT FATE COOLLY

Many of the passengers wanted to remain on the ship, believing the fire could be brought under control. When they were informed that this was impossible, the men stood back quietly, permitting the women and children to be lowered into the small boats first. The list of the vessel made lowering the boats a precarious measure, but the crew effected it without a mishap.

There was complete acceptance of the situation by the passengers, and, under the fear-inspiring circumstances, an amazing absence of hysteria among the women. The knowledge that rescue boats were headed toward them aided control, despite the dangers and hardships.

Reports from Capt. Lester indicate thus far that defective wiring in the second-class section caused the fire.

DUE IN PORT TOMORROW

Revised figures late yesterday revealed that there are seventy-four passengers and 187 crew members of the burned liner City of Honolulu on board the Army transport Thomas steaming toward San Francisco, a total of 261, instead of 217.

According to Fred L. Baker, president of the steamship company, only 145 members of the crew had signed the ship's articles before leaving Los Angeles and for that reason the names of the additional men did not appear on available records.

The West Faralon, Shipping Board freighter, which rescued the passengers and crew of the City of Honolulu after they had drifted in small boats for seven hours Thursday, has been ordered to "stand by" until salvage boats arrive. The blazing liner is termed a "menace to navigation," and must be closely watched, it was said.

According to wireless reports the City of Honolulu is still burning. Its superstructure has toppled and the sweep of the waves against its hot steel hulk sends up a fog of steam. The gutted boat is a thing of violence and agony, strangely animate with its belching of sparks and smoke and the hissing water.

One message yesterday afternoon from Capt. M. M. Walk of the West Faralon indicated that the condition of the razed ship appeared to bar the possibility of salvage. A later message, following closer inspection, said that salvage might be feasible.

WELL CARED FOR

The Thomas is capable of twelve knots per hour, but is generally held to ten, or approximately 255 miles a day. The point at which the passengers and crew were transferred from the rescue ship West Faralon to the Thomas at daybreak yesterday, is about 620 miles southwest of San Francisco, according to Army transport officials.

Wireless reports from Capt. Hall of the Thomas stated that his ship reached the West Faralon shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning, but to avoid the dangers of bringing the survivors aboard in the darkness it was decided to wait until sunrise.

There are ample accommodations on the Thomas for all the passengers and crew members of the City of Honolulu, Army transport officers said. It has actual accommodations for 175 first-class, seventy second-class and 1250 troop passengers, a total of 1495. With the crew and passengers of the City of Honolulu she is carrying on the present trip a total list of 1333.

INQUIRY WILL BE MADE

Douglas Logan, employed in the City of Honolulu's steward department, was the only member of the ship left on the West Faralon. In some way he is thought to have been overlooked when the transfer of passengers was made to the Thomas.

An investigation of the destruction of the City of Honolulu will be made by the United States Steamboat Inspection Service, as is usual in such cases, it was announced.

Postal officials are awaiting reports as to whether the mail carried on the City of Honolulu was saved. From Honolulu it was learned that the vessel carried mail for Los Angeles, Southern California points, Texas, Louisiana, Arizona, New Mexico, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi and South Carolina. The consignment included seven bags of first-class mail, thirty-two bags of second-class matter and 937 pounds of papers and parcel-post packages and 114 pieces of registered mail.

Edward P. Orth, wireless operator on the West Faralon, closed his apparatus against further communication for a few hours yesterday in order to rest up after working straight through for twenty-four hours. He has no relief operator. He played a big part in the rescue of the City of Honolulu's human cargo, according to Struthers & Barry, agents for the West Faralon.

ELK DODGES SNARE SET AT VENICE

Closed Season Declared After Youth "Arrests" Convention Delegate

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Oct. 13.—A closed season on Elks was officially proclaimed last night by the Venice police after the arrest of three youths by Capt. of Detectives Watson, charged with attempting to persuade V. P. Mason, one of the antlered herd visiting the Bay city for the convention, to go forcibly on a little walk.

It all happened when Mason, who was strolling down the Venice pier admiring the flickering lights on the water, was disturbed by a voice in his ear. "Like a little drink? I have a whole case under the pier. Come on out and have some."

Mason demurred, for he noticed two other men in the background, apparently much interested in his movements. But the good Samaritan, who later registered at the police station as George Greenly of Santa Monica, was not to be balked, so he placed Mason "under arrest" for attempting to get a drink and started away with him.

En route Greenly encountered Detective Watson.

"Are you an officer?" asked Watson.

"I am a plain clothes detective for the city of Venice," Greenly is declared to have countered.

"So," commented Watson. "Then come along, brother, so am I."

Watson later picked up the other two men who gave their names as Earl Bailey of Colorado Springs and John Bowes of St. Paul. All are being held for investigation.

Man Attempts to Chloroform Self to Death

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Oct. 13.—When the proprietress of the Princess Apartments, 144½ American avenue, telephoned to police headquarters tonight that a roughly dressed stranger had taken possession of the apartment-house much to the alarm of its occupants, the police found Jack Osborne, 24 years of age, sprawled in one of the corridors, unconscious from the effects of chloroform, which he had taken apparently with suicidal intent.

Near him on the floor was a small bottle, containing a small quantity of the drug. His handkerchief had been saturated with it.

He was removed to Seaside Hospital where Dr. Frank Sweet succeeded in bringing him out of his stupor. Consciousness again restored, Osborne refused to supply hospital authorities with any information concerning himself other than to say that his name was Jack Osborne and that he arrived in Long Beach today from San Francisco.

Inquiry at the drug store where Osborne purchased the choloform disclosed that the sale was made last night. Osborne was taken to the City Jail to await further investigation into his activities here.

THOMAS SAYS EN ROUTE HOME

Transport Sends Word to Officer at San Francisco

Ship Ignores Shore Because of Rescue Work

Friends and Relatives Keep Air Busy to Vessel

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—A briefly worded message received at the transport docks at Fort Mason, completed this afternoon the story of one of the most successful mid-ocean rescues in the history of the sea.

The radio message, flashed over 630 miles to Col. Yates, from Capt. Hall, master of the United States transport Thomas, told of the successful transfer from the West Faralon of all the passengers and crew of the City of Honolulu.

Passengers and crew, after a night of well-earned sleep aboard the West Faralon, are now homeward bound.

PASSENGERS ALL LOADED

"Passengers all loaded from West Faralon and started for San Francisco," the last radio message from the transport Thomas's commander to Col. Yates, assistant general superintendent of the Army transport service, stated.

Throughout the day Army officials anxiously awaited news from the transport Thomas and the 261 persons salvaged from the open sea.

The first hopeful word received from the Army transport was picked up at Pier No. 1, Fort Mason, at 12:45 p.m. The message stated:

"Arrived at wreck 1 a.m., and prepared to embark passengers immediately, but received word from Faralon that passengers are asleep and we must wait until daylight. Weather still fine.
[Signed] "HALL"

An early radio dispatch informed the transport officials that the West Faralon was lying at the position of the fire to transfer the passengers to the transport at daybreak. Lack of accommodations for the City of Honolulu passengers and crew on the West Faralon was also mentioned. The message, flashed to the transport's commander by the master of the West Faralon, was intercepted by local radio receiving stations and relayed to Col. Yates. It read as follows:

"Lying at position of fire waiting your arrival to take care of passengers, as we have no accommodations. 12:43 a.m."

RADIO DIFFICULTIES

A message to the transport officials here from the Thomas told of difficulty in communicating messages to the shore. It reads as follows:

"Unable to listen on schedule designated to WXH. When got to listening on schedule KFS. Was always busy with the West Faralon on 2400 meters arc at scene of wreck. Have had to camp around 600 meters most of time.—WXM."

With the lifting of the ban on all radio messages to the Thomas from friends and relatives of the survivors of City of Honolulu the San Francisco radio companies were besieged throughout the day and the ethereal lanes were crowded with outgoing messages to those aboard the transport Thomas.

Billy Sunday's Son is Nabbed; Pace Too Fast

Billy Sunday has never stressed heavily upon reckless driving as a cardinal sin during his career of high-powered evangelism, wherefore this asserted breach charged against his son, William A. Sunday, Jr., last night may not cause him any untoward anguish.

"Billy" Sunday, Jr., drew up short in a mass of traffic at Hollywood Boulevard and El Centro avenue about 10 o'clock last night after what Motorcycle Earl Wilson termed an exciting pace. Police Judge Wilson, who was in an automobile with Officer Wilson, witnessed Mr. Sunday's Friday night motor sprint. Hollywood police set bail for the evangelista's son at $500.

HIS DREAM IS REALIZED

Long Beach Youth Sought Adventure; Found Enough for Lifetime in Mid-Pacific Ship Fire

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Oct. 13.—William O. Mettler, Jr., 16-year-old Long Beach youth, has wanted an adventure ever since he was old enough to know the meaning of the word. At night he would dream of thrilling experiences in which he played a leading role. By day he planned for the time when he could go in search of excitement.

Yesterday young Mettler's dream was realized. For several hours he lay in an open boat in mid-Pacific waiting for the arrival of a ship to come and rescue him. Preceding that had come all the thrill and excitement of a fire at sea, the abandoning of a ship in mid-ocean and the danger that threatens small craft tossed about on the waves.

For Mettler, laboring in a San Pedro lumber yard, heard the call three weeks ago, and he answered it. The Los Angeles Steamship Company's fine big liner City of Honolulu, wanted young seamen and Mettler seized the opportunity. Parental consent was hard to get at first and for a time it appeared as if the youth's dream was not to be realized after all.

HOPES FOR EXCITEMENT

Coaxing finally prevailed, however, and off the lad went.

"I hope there'll be plenty of excitement on the voyage," young Mettler told his father as the latter bade farewell to his boy on the pier at San Pedro when the City of Honolulu sailed for Hawaii two weeks ago.

"I hope your hopes are realized," W. O. Mettler, the father, replied The Mettlers live at 1410 Temple avenue, this city.

The only baby girl among the passengers rescued in mid-Pacific when the big liner City of Honolulu was abandoned yesterday is going to make her home in Long Beach. She is Betty Mae Barber, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barber, American residents of the Hawaiian Islands for the past several years.

With her mother and her little brother, Harold, Jr., Betty Mae sailed on the City of Honolulu for the United States and Long Beach, where her daddy, destined to follow on a later vessel, is to enter the automobile business.

NAME IN "TIMES" LIST

A sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry Haldeman, who lives at 911 East First street, was convinced for a time today that Mrs. Barber and the children did not sail on the ill-fated vessel. No one by that name appeared on the passenger list, although Mrs. Haldeman had been advised that this was the ship on which Betty Mae, her mother and brother were sailing. A close scrutiny of the list published in The Times, however, revealed the names "L. L. Jones and two children, Betty Mae and Harold, Jr."

"L. L. Jones was my sister-in-law's maiden name. Because the names of the two children appear with it on the list I am sure it is Mrs. Barber and her kiddies," said Mrs. Haldeman today. "I cannot understand why she registered under her maiden name instead of that of her husband," she said. Mr. Barber recently resigned from the United States Army after several years of service in the Hawaiian Islands.

RADIO SET ON MOVING TRAIN GETS MESSAGE

WHOLE CONCERT PICKED UP BY PENNSYLVANIA EXPRESS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—For the first time in history radio reception has been successfully accomplished on a fast-moving train using an inside antenna. Completely inclosed in a steel coach of the Broadway Limited over the Pennsylvania road, a radio apparatus today received a concert from the station at Newark, N. J., radiophone messages from points 100 miles and more distant and code signals from a distance of several hundred miles. The receiving antenna, also inside the car, consisted of an eighteen-inch loop.

Passengers took unusual interest in the experiment. Installation of the equipment, which was carried in a small trunk, was completed in seventeen minutes by Arno Zilliger, radio engineer of Philadelphia. The set was assembled after the train left New York for Chicago and was immediately tuned into station WOR at Newark. The entire concert was heard during the run to Philadelphia, where a second one was picked up.

Later Mr. Zilliger tuned in on a ship far up in Lake Superior, then to the Great Lakes Naval Station and during the trip several amateur stations in Ohio and Pennsylvania were "copied." The vibration of the train did not affect the reception in any perceptible degree.

TALK SHIP'S REPLACEMENT

Shipping Board Official Says Former German Liner May ake Place of S.S. City of Honolulu

Selection of the passenger liner Susquehanna, formerly the North German Lloyd liner Rhein, to replace the burned City of Honolulu in Honolulu-Los Angeles service was declared last night to be a strong possibility by Capt. William Griffith, manager of operations of the United States Shipping Board, who is now at Los Angeles Harbor.

The Susquehanna, freshly reconditioned and in splendid shape for service, is now laid up at New York, having just been taken off the New York-Hamburg run to the United States Lines with the close of the summer trans-Atlantic season.

"Steamers of the City of Honolulu type are peculiarly adapted to this service. It is unlikely that any vessels built by the shipping board will be allocated to the run," he continued.

Capt. Griffith explained that all of the shipping board's "535" liners were in active service and that there was a question of the "502" type steamers being suitable for the Los Angeles-Honolulu run. He said that selection of a vessel, however, rested with the shipping board as a commission.

In size, speed and accommodations, the Susquehanna is practically identical to the City of Honolulu.

Comparison of the two vessels shows that the Susquehanna has a gros tonnage of 19,059 as against the 10,668 gross tons of the City of Honolulu, the Susquehanna having a length of 501 feet and beam of 58 feet as compared to a length of 523 feet and a beam 60 feet in the City of Honolulu. The Susquehanna has a loaded draft, however, of 37 feet as compared to 34 feet on the other vessel.

FALLS IN BONFIRE

ONTARIO, Oct. 13. — Mabel Canup, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Canup of Reid avenue, Cucamonga district, narrowly escaped death and was painfully burned today when she accidentally stumbled and fell into a large pile of glowing embers left from a bonfire in the street near her home.

The little one was hurried to the office of Dr. A. L. Weber, who attended her hurts. She is expected to recover.

NO WINES ON BOAT

CHESBOURG, Oct. 13.—The George Washington sailed today empty of wines and liquors. Prior to casting off her entire bar supply was deposited on the dock in compliance with the decision of Attorney-General Daugherty.

It was intended to ship a portion of the liquor for consumption on the high seas, but at the last moment the agents of the United States lines took the opposite course.

HAGUE SHIP AWARD CONSIDERED FINAL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Counsel of the Shipping Board were inclined today to accept the decision of the arbitration tribunal at The Hague awarding $12,000,000 to the Norwegians as final.

Counsel for the board believed the effect of this award on millions of dollars of other claims against the United States for requisitioned ships, principally in this country, would be moral at most, inasmuch as it was explained the Norwegian claims involved certain features not applicable to most of the others. George Sutherland, who was chief counsel for the United States before The Hague tribunal in the Norwegian case, declined to discuss the awards.

The Stars and Stripes In the Near East

More than one hundred years ago the followers of Mohammed in the Mediterranean were forced to lower their Crescent in defeat before the American flag; today the largest flag afloat in Smyrna is reported to be same Stars and Stripes, while the finest destroyers in the United States Navy have crossed the Atlantic to join other American ships near the scene of the Turkish victories.

What the United States will do is a question which looms large on three continents. In Asia Minor there is joy that America will give food and shelter; in Europe there is hope that America will join the Conference which will finally settle the status of Thrace and the Straits; in the United States the correspondents say that the government is impressed by the great surge of anti-Turkish feeling among its citizens.

A "hands-off" policy has been officially announced with a statement of the Administration's approval of the Allied desire to keep the Straits free and the little peoples protected. Does this go far enough to suit the American people?

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week, October 14th, gives expression to public opinion of every shade in answer to that question, and shows what the government might do, and perhaps what it will do. The article is illustrated with several half-tones and cartoons.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Bank Review Discusses Near East Situation, Tariff, Investments, Commodities

The summary issued monthly by the research department of the Citizens' National Bank will be in the hands of its readers early in the week. It contains a pointed expression of how the new tariff measure will affect the general economic situation, and closes with a list of commodities and the amount of the actual increases under the new measure. The letter expresses the opinion, in connection with the tariff measure, that while the first reaction gave business a forward impulse, the next natural place where its influence will be felt will be in advancing commodity prices, after which will come an effect on our export volume. The measure itself is believed to be reactionary in its influence upon the possibility of our manufacturers marketing their surplus merchandise in foreign countries.

The methods by which a preview of market possibilities is obtained is given, and in the light of that method, the recent declines are classified as not fundamental, but as those occasioned by war talk and the technical position of the market itself.

The bond market is looked upon as being one that is due for an improvement, with the possibilities of new high points being registered.

The commodity situation, according to the letter, has fewer elements of inflation in it now than it had a month ago and while a further advance in commodities is anticipated, it is not expected to be a runaway market. Analysis and caution are suggested to those with purchases to make. The letter suggests that the analysis of commodity purchase should be made from three stand points: (1.) That certain commodities are fundamentally too high priced and their future more or less uncertain. (2.) That others are fundamentally too low and are certain to advance. (3.) That some, while fundamentally high priced are supported by conditions that will require considerable time to work out.

The letter closes with an analysis of the Near East situation. It expresses the belief that, while the international mix-up has the appearance on the surface of being a breeder of another war, it questions whether or not those that believe another physical struggle to be possible have not forgotten that man is improving mentally at a pace at least equal to his ability to improve the methods of material warfare.

The study of the Near East situation is summoned up in a paragraph which says: "As we study this situation, let us wisely guard the memory of the principle for which the white race fought in the World War. Let us allow nothing to belittle it and let us remember that the nert world struggle that is being talked about today is being fought right now, but instead of being one of blood and money, it is one of principle."

Uncle Sam Not Promoting Oil Stock Schemes

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—A case of bare-faced misrepresentation by a company engaged in selling oil stock is brought to the attention of the public by the director of the United States Geological Survey. In the advertising matter of this company, in order to impress the reader with the belief that the government has indorsed the particular enterprise as a "sure thing" a map of the region published by the Federal Geological Survey is said to be reproduced.

On the map as printed in the rather elaborate prospectus a route of supposed oil drainage extends from the St. Lawrence River, in Canada, southwestward across the Adirondacks and the Intervening States toa point on the Mississippi River. Another route of presumed oil drainage is shown as extending from the Lake Superior iron region across Wisconsin, Illinois and southward along the Mississippi. A third route of drainage is mapped extending from the Canadian boundary in Western Montana, though the Yellowstone Park and heading in a bee-line for Eastern Louisiana.

As is usual in stock promotion literature where such bogus maps are used to beguile the small investor the three purported drainage routes unite exactly in the area where the company properties are located, which are in this particular instance on the east side of the Mississippi River in Louisiana. The title of this map reads "United States Geological Survey map showing center of the oil drainage of United States." On another page of their pamphlet under the heading "What Uncle Sam says about it" the promoters say: "Look at the map which shows the result of the United States geological survey. The map was made from Plate I, Bulletin 429. This survey shows the oil drainage of the United States. As you can readily see our holdings are right in the center of it. . . . The government geologists are unprejudiced and their conclusions are always regarded as authentic and final."

The last sentence is true. Director Smith of the United States Geological Survey states without prejudice that his "final conclusion is that the authors and makers of this prospectus are plain crooks. There is no resemblance or connection between the government map specifically referred to and the oil map of the promoters. Nor did the Geological Survey or any other authority ever publish such a 'drainage map.' It is not only fraudulent and untruthful in every respect but absurd to the extreme."

Buying Power Gives Cotton a Stronger Close

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—There was a min of about ½ cent a pound in the cotton market today. Though narrow and quiet in the morning, the list rose about 12 to 15 points as the result of scattered trade demand any buying for Liverpool and local account. Southern hedge selling was well absorbed as was realizing on the part of room interests but the market was unable to rise consistently until the afternoon, a sudden reaction reducing the early improvement by half.

A decided increase in buying power developed in the early afternoon and the market gradually took on strength, scoring substantial net gains. Demand further increased in the last hour and prices continued upward, active months going more than 50 points above Wednesday's close. Part of the buying was short covering and part was from mill interests. The close was practically at the high, 40 to 60 points net higher.

Spot, steady, 45 points advance, 22.25 cents for middling upland.

Southern markets: Galveston, 21.85a, 50 points advance; New Orleans, 21.50c, 37 points advance; Savannah, 22c, 50 points advance; Memphis, 21.80c, 30 points advance; Augusta, 21.50c, 26 points advance; Little Rock, 21.25c, 25 points advance.

Dry Goods Trend Shows Steadily Rising Prices

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The outstanding feature of the dry goods market is still the steadily advancing prices accompanied by broader buying, suggesting further advances before any commercial declines. Many prices were named in spring and summer based on cheaper raw materials and anticipated wage reductions that did not materialize. Prices have for most part crept upward, sellers fearing the effect of any hiatus.

"Only the present condition could be expected," concludes Dry Goods Reporter. "Hand-to-mouth merchandising caused the demand which normally would be spread over the summer and early fall to be relayed until the consumer call was almost actually felt. The brunt of the buying was felt last month bringing comfortable gains to many sellers. October promises also to bring good volumes. While wholesale stocks are not considered large, almost all lines show comfortable assortments for immediate delivery. Industrial centers report better purchasing power with little change noted in agricultural sections."

The experience last week for spring are up 5 to 10 per cent, with available stocks very small. Most white and colored cotton goods show advances. Primary prices of woolens have been steadily advanced and reflected at wholesale in several instances as raw silk tends upward, finished silks will likely follow.

Stock Dividends May Become Epidemic; Tax on Surplus and Its Dangers

BY RICHARD SPILDANE

[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

Declaration of stock dividends by corporations with healthy surpluses is likely to be epidemic. There is good reason. The national lawmakers are looking around for something to tax. Revenue has fallen off, particularly from the income tax. It is doubtful whether the customs duties under the new tariff will bring the amount the framers of the act expected. There is prospect of a considerable deficit. To offset it eyes have been cast longingly on the money held in reserve by corporations.

A tax, and a stiff one at that, on corporation reserves would be hailed with pleasure by not a few persons who cannot see why corporations should carry large surpluses.

As a matter of fact many industrial concerns would be greatly handicapped, particularly in times of money stringency, if they did not have surpluses from which to draw.

Oil companies furnish a good illustration. "Wildcatters," as the adventurous men who go scouting the world over for oil are called, are the persons who bring in a goodly number of the new fields and new wells. The Standard Oil does no wildcatting. It buys proven wells; the testimony is that it pays a fair price. There is a tremendous outlay of money between the striking of oil in quantity and its marketing. Great storage tanks have to be put up. Pipe lines have to be laid. Sometimes railroads have to be built. No end of machinery has to be installed. The corporation with cash on hand can pay the wildcatter and do all the rest. The company without cash reserves might find difficulty in financing a perfectly good project.

It is the same, too, with a growing industry. It must have money to finance its expansion. It buys land, sometimes years in advance of its use. It buys machinery which may not begin to return revenue for a long time after it is installed. It buys raw materials in volume when it appears advantageous. Sometimes if it did not have surplus funds it could not avail itself of excellent opportunities for broadening its scope.

To penalize industry for prudence and enterprise would seem to be folly.

Some persons may have whistled with surprise at the size of the stock dividend of the Standard Oil of New Jersey. It is big, very big, but a mark was set by the Standard Oil of Indiana nearly ten years ago that, possibly, is a world's record. It was 900 per cent.

Congress will have to look elsewhere than to corporation surplus for new revenue. Where or how this new revenue is to be found is for the legislators to study. What's more, the Supreme Court of the United States has decided that stock dividends, being subdivisions of the stockholders' possessions in the property, are not taxable as income.

One effect of the distribution of stock dividends will be to bring the market price of various stocks of the corporations down from high altitudes. It is not well for any concern, particularly one handling a great commodity, to have its shares way up in the hundreds or, as in some instances, selling above $1000 a share.

Active Market in Wool; Tariff is Raising Issues

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Wool men have sold a large volume this week and, they expect, large receipts from abroad, but they are concerned with many phases of the new tariff. Carbonized wool has come under discussion.

It is provided in paragraph 1108, schedule 11, that "wool and hair of the kinds provided for in this schedule, which have been advanced in any manner or by any process of manufacture beyond the washed or scoured condition, including tops, but not further advanced than roving, shall pay a specific duty of 33 cents per pound and 20 per cent ad valorem. A tentative decision made by the Boston appraiser's office is that carbonized wools are subject to the above duty.

Most wool men seem to think the decision cannot stand, as they say that carbonizing is a part of the scouring process not always necessary, but when it is resorted to may be made a part of a single operation, or may be made independently. Carbonizing is necessary for the removal of vegetable matter not affected by the ordinary scouring liquor. Importers are calling their agents in England not to buy carbonizing wools until the question is settled.

Fine unwashed delaine has gone up from 46 cents last April to 53 cents. Half-blood combing was quoted at 40 cents in April, but today 57 cents is asked and 51 cents has been paid. Other grades are quoted as follows: Fine unwashed clothing, 46 to 49 cents; fine three-eighths-blood combing, 44 to 47 cents for quarter-blood combing. Three-eighths-blood combing has been sold at 44 cents. It is reported that 58 cents has been refused for good lots of Ohio delaine.

All available grades of domestic wool have been moving in large quantities. Domestic wool stocks are running low in Boston, with no probability of replenishing before next February.

The Commercial Bulletin will publish wool quotations as follows:

Scoured basis: California—Northern, 1.25@1.28; middle counties, 1.12@1.17; southern, 95@1.00.

Oregon—Eastern, No. 1 staple, 1.27@1.30; fine and medium combing, 1.15@1.20; eastern clothing, 1.05@1.12.

Montana—Best combing, 60@65; best carding, 58@63.

THE COUNTRY OVER

NEW ORLEANS (La.) Oct. 13. The South is realizing $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 a day from the sale of cotton and has maintained this rate for the last five weeks. Competent authorities estimate that more than one-third of the 1922 crop has already passed out of the hands of the growers, who have received something like $4000,000,000 in cash for that which has been sold.

This influx of money has had a wide effect on business and every line of trade is feeling its effect. Louisiana bank resources have increased more than $60,000,000 so far this year with a decrease of $30,000,000 in debts.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The general volume of trade in this region is larger even when compared with the peak records made immediately after the armistice.

Car loadings are at a high point, but this is attributed in part to the volume of coal now being shipped. There are no idle cars and railroads are improving service daily.

The leather market is better and business is increasing in volume with most tanners holding out for full list prices.

FORT WORTH (Tex.) Oct. 13. The railway shop and repair situation is adjusting itself rapidly throughout the Southwest. Homeseekers travel from Northern and Middle Western States has been resumed to the Rio Grande Valley.

Car inspectors have returned to work in practically all the Texas division points and shopmen of the Fort Worth Belt line, the packinghouse line, have accepted settlement terms. The settlement was a boon to stockmen. Passenger service in Texas is normal with the exception of one road where conditions are improving rapidly.

BUSINESS NEWS OF BUSY MARTS

Speculation Over European Visit of Union Head

Royal Dutch Making Eyes at California

Auto Statistics for Month; New Securities Company

Speculation in Los Angeles oil circles continues to center on the objects that took W. L. Stewart, president of the Union Oil Company of California, to London. Reports from New York and San Francisco have had Mr. Stewart going to England expressly for a conference with Sir Henry Deterding of the Royal-Dutch combination, but officials of the company are extremely reticent when questioned and state that, as far as they know, any conference that takes place will pertain only to general conditions existing in the petroleum industry on the Pacific Coast. However, it is known that the Shell-Union Corporation, owned by the Royal Dutch interests, and the Union Oil Company have several interests in common, and a preliminary agreement that entails some form of alliance may have been adopted at the London conference.

Until Mr. Stewart returns, the reasons for his trip are enfolded in mystery. Current conjecture has provided several reasons for the two companies entering into a consolidation, one of which is the hostility with which Union Oil and Shell-Union are viewing the growth of the Standard Oil interests on the Pacific Coast.

It is no secret that the production of the Shell-Union company in California is not likely to last more than eight or ten years, as it is centered largely in the Signal Hill field. On the other hand, Union Oil's activities in California fields are wide and varied, and in addition the company has a complete system of pipe lines traversing its fields, and also a line of tank steamers operating in the coastal and Far Eastern trade. Royal Dutch leaders have opposed the Standard Oil all over the world, and the fact that the rich California territory is rapidly slipping into the talons of the alert opposition has not been viewed with favor by Sir Henry Deterding and his associates.

It was this realization that inspired the recent alleged attempt to gain Union Oil of California's strength by strong-arm methods, and which failed through the formation of the Union Oil Associates.

Evidently peaceful persuasion and arbitration is being tried now, and the rewards must have been tempting to have induced the head of the Union Oil Company to journey to Europe. Clearly, many benefits would accure to the Shell Union Company, and indirectly to Royal Dutch, through an alliance. But it is something of a puzzle to discover what advantages would be gained by the Union Oil Company. The two companies compete at nearly every point, and Union has had the better of the competition. However, the lucrative eastern markets asume inviting aspects to a company which has only the Far Eastern and South American markets assume inviting aspects to a marketing facilities of the Royal Dutch Company, the California company would have unlimited outlet.

Observers, who are attempting to find evidences of close relation between the Shell Union and the Union Oil Companies, point to the arrangement by which the Shell production at Signal Hill is transported to San Pedro through Union Oil pipe lines and from San Pedro to the Shell refinery at Martinez by Union tank steamers. Comment is also heard that Mr. Stewart's trip may have had the object of terminating this working agreement, which was made during a time when the Union Oil Company was glad to find work for its tankers and its pipe lines.

NEW SECURITIES COMPANY

Organization of the California Securities Company, with a paid up capitalization of $500,000, is announced by the California Bank. The formation of the new company was necessitated by the growth of business in the bond department, which, according to George A. J. Howard, president of the securities company, handled investment securities aggregating $16,000,000, as is shown by the last statement. The new company will absorb the bond department, dealing in general investment issues.

The officers are all connected with the California Bank. George A. J. Howard is president; A. M. Chaffee, vice-president; Leo S. Chandler, vice-president; A. E. Huntington, vice-president; A. M. Gibbs, treasurer; B. L. Deibler, cashier, and John Mitchell, secretary. Mr. Chaffee is president of the California Bank; Messrs. Howard, Chandler and Huntington are vice-presidents. Mr. Gibbs is a director, Mr. Deibler is assistant secretary of the bank and Mr. Mitchell held the position of assistant manager of the bond department.

The securities company will be located on the second floor of the C. C. Chapman Building.

AUTOMOBILE STATISTICS

Figures compiled by the Automobile Publishing Company show that the passenger and motor truck business in Southern California gained during the month of September instead of reflecting the usual seasonal tendency to decline. Sales of trucks and passenger cars for the month totaled 8668 machines as compared with sales during August of 8557, or an increase of 1.2 per cent. Sales of passenger cars during September were 7716 in number compared with 7645 during August, while truck records showed a decline from 1008 in August to 952 in September. Of the 7716 sales in Southern California in September, the statistics show that 5624 took place in Los Angeles county.

A syndicate composed of Stacy, Braun & Co., Anglo-London & Paris National Bank, Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., and Eldridge & Co., entered the highest bid with a premium of $13,156.

Other bids were: Equitable Trust Company, Anglo-California Trust Company, Cyrus Peirce & Co., and the Bank of Italy, $11,858; California Company, Citizens National Bank, M. H. WEEK IN REVIEW

Bradstreet's today will say:

An increase of activities with a marked increase of strength of prices especially of all textile fabrics; improved country buying at large western distributing points; the arrival of long-expected cool weather with its stimulating effect on retail trade, particularly in the North and West, which send reports of department store trade exceeding a year ago; continued growth in the volume of railroad business, an important effect in this direction being close to record coal loadings this week, and a very active building with consequent good effect on the buying of lumber, hardware and other materials are notable among the many favorable features coming to hand this week. The main unfavorable element as regards domestic trade is the evident growing congestion of car supply, which is delaying lumber shipments from the Pacific Coast and the South, finished steel from mills, coal from the mines and crops from the farm to market.

WALL STREET NEWS

BY MONITOR

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—International paper advanced nearly a full point today in response to the announcement made by Canadian news-print interests of new prices of $75 per ton. It is believed that news print should work up to $80 and in some quarters locally there is a disposition to look for an actual shortage next spring.

RESUMES DIVIDEND

Southern Railway today declared a dividend of 2½ per cent on the preferred stock, this being the first disbursement since December, 1920. This declaration was not a great surprise to the street, as the strong showing made by Southern in its annual report earlier in the week coupled with the optimistic remarks by Fairfax Harrison gave a good indication as to what the street might expect.

CENTRAL LEATHER REPORT

Central Leather is soon to issue its third quarter report, and it is said that the company will show an operating profit for the first time in about two years.

AIRBRAKE DECLINES

New York Airbrake eased off today with trading rather light despite the fact that September sales are reported to have been the largest in the history of the company.

NORWEGIAN LOAN

The National City Company had nothing to say today regarding cable reports that the Norwegian government has concluded a loan of $18,000,000 with that company. However, this report is generally accredited, and it is expected that the bonds will mature in thirty years, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. This probably accounts for much of the recent strength in the Norwegian krona.

SILVER PRICES FALL

Silver metal dropped 1 cent per ounce today, with Chinese exchange rates correspondingly weak. This is due to the fact that China is selling silver in the London market and is not doing any buying here while India is apparently out of the market altogether.

EQUIPMENT ORDERS HEAVY

Equipments buying continues strong, and American Locomotive has just reported orders for sixty-two locomotives in all. Of these fifty will be Mikados, ten mountain type and two consolidation type.

EARNINGS CONTINUE STRONG

Continental Can and American Can continue very strong, and Wall Street speculations on earnings for the current year are very optimistic.

CRUDE RUBBER RISES

Crude Rubber rose sharply this morning, and opened at 20 cents per pound as against 17 cents on Wednesday. This strength was due entirely to the London announcement that the Stevenson restriction plan will be put in effect in Malay and Celon on or about November 1. For some time rumors have been at hand that the restriction matter, but it is not now that with government operation, a conclusion will be tied out.

ALCOHOL MAKES

Industrial Alcohol reached a new high ground for the day. Earnings for the year are believed to be capacity. Demand for is heavy, and it is the company is operating at large its capacity to meet demand.

COPPER MARKET

Domestic demand for sealing off somewhat, lowing suit as a result queuse. In the London electrolysis is offered at 13 final quarter, 1922. Lake copper at 14 1-8 cents. Lake has also been offered at and this contributes to undertone here.

The total value of all taxable property in Los Angeles county is $1,573,418,167.00.

The total value of all taxable property in the next four largest counties, which include San Francisco county, Alameda county (Oakland, Piedmont), Fresno county and Kern county, is $1,546,044,134.

Los Angeles county therefore exceeds these counties in taxable value by $27,373,033.00.

These four counties with their large cities have a greater number of financial institutions than Los Angeles county has, and ALL these financial institutions are making money.

Is this not a sufficient answer to those who doubt the wisdom of organizing additional financial companies in Los Angeles? There is room only for many more, but what is far more pertinent, there is a crying DEMAND for more.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Concentrated buying of special stocks and a broadening demand for standard railroad, rubber and sugar shares enabled stock prices to continue their upward movement today, despite a violent setback in Standard Oil of New Jersey, which registered a heavy decline.

Speculative disappointment over the announcement of the directors of Standard Oil of New Jersey that no increased dividends were contemplated on the new stock when the 400 per cent stock dividend becomes effective, resulted in a flood of selling orders, which carried the stock down to 216, as against the year's high market of 250½, established earlier in the week. A slight recovery was made later. Other domestic oils reacted in sympathy, but Mexican Petroleum and Pan-American issues were carried to new highs in expectation of extra dividend disbursements.

Resumption of dividends on Southern Railway preferred stock, which had been suspended for a year and a half, was indicative of the improved business situation in the cotton belt. That stock gained 2 points, while advances of a point or more were registered by Reading, New York Central, Lackawanna and Northern Pacific. Central of New Jersey gained 4¼ on a small turnover.

Rubber stocks made a quick response to the announcement of higher prices resulting from the imposition of a high export duty by British colonial authorities. United States Rubber was pushed up 4 points and gains of 1 to nearly 2½ were registered by Goodrich, Kelly-Springfield and Fisk. Sugar shares also moved up in reflection of higher prices, American Cuban Cane preferred and Manati all climbing over a point.

Equipment shares continue to mount as orders increase. American Locomotive established a new high at 136½ and closed at a net gain of 3 points, while Baldwin improved nearly a point. The rise of more than 5 points in American Can was attributed to trade improvement and unconfirmed reports that the stock would soon be placed on a dividend basis. Continental Can improved in sympathy, gaining nearly 4 points.

Announcement of higher prices for news print in Canada proved a bullish card for International Paper, which advanced nearly a point. Copper shares yielded slightly on reports that a lessening of the domestic demand had resulted in the metal being quoted at 13 7-8 cents a pound for delivery during the next two quarters. Activity in express shares was accompanied by revived rumors of mergers and distribution of surplus, American Express being pushed up more than 4 points to a new peak price. Rumors of extra dividend disbursements also had a favorable effect on Studebaker, up 1¾, and Coca Cola, up 4 1-4.

Total sales were 1,116,000 shares.

Call money rates continued to ease, despite the sharp drop from 77.4 to 75.7 per cent, the Federal Reserve Bank ratio, reflecting increased demand for funds for crop moving purposes. Call money rate opened at 5, but softened to 4½ before the close. The time money market was quiet and firm, as was that for commercial paper.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the buying of Norwegian crowns, which advanced 44 points, reflecting the award of approximately $12,000,000 by The Hague tribunal to the Norwegian government on behalf of fifteen Norwegian corporations for claims arising from requisition of ships by the Emergency Fleet Corporation during the war. Demand sterling improved on the absence of any noticeable offering of grain and cotton bills and other rates were irregular.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Liberty Bonds Decline

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Heavy selling of Liberty bonds, all of the 4¼s series of which sold below par, was the feature of today's irregular bond dealings, the main trend in which was downward.

Speculative railroad mortgages were the hardest hit, long of 1 to 2 points taking place in Chicago and Northwestern 6s, Kansas City Southern 5s, Great Northern 7s, Texas Pacific 5s, Southern Railway 5s, St. Louis division 4s and Minneapolis and Ohio consolidated 5s. There was a fair recovery to the close from the lowest in the rail group, small gains being made by New Orleans, Texas and Mexican 5s and Denver and Rio Grande 5s, 6s.

Most of the local traction continued to report selling pressure, New York Railways 4 first and income 6s and Third Avenue 6s ranged around 70, 1½ and 3 points, Manhattan Interborough 4 and Brooklyn Union Elevated 1s moved up 1½.

In the domestic list the outstanding development were a gain of 2¾ in Irving Oil 6s and losses of 1 to 1½ in Consolidation Coal of Maryland 6s, Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s and Chili Copper 7s.

Except for a gain of 2¾ in Cuba Republic 6½s prices of foreign issues moved irregularly, the action reflecting adverse Havana Cable dispatches announced that the Norwegian government has completed negotiations with American bankers for a loan of $15,000,000, of which $5,000,000 is to be used to meet the maturity on February 1 next of the amount outstanding of the 8 per cent issue. The new loan also is to carry a 6 per cent coupon, and run for thirty years.

Bonds totalling $5,625,000, of the City of Norfolk, Va., were awarded to a syndicate headed by Hayden, Stone & Co.

Total sales (par value) today were $15,325,000.

DARING JOB PULLED OFF BY GUNMEN

Bandits Overpower Six Men and Loot Warehouse of Choice Liquors

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Four gunmen with a roustabout crew of twenty, armed and equipped for any emergency, overpowered the guards at the Grommes and Ullrich liquor warehouse today and then looted the four-story building of choice liquors. They made away with three truckloads, chiefly case goods of the best quality, according to a hasty check-up by the government officials.

The robbers worked with the utmost precision and the raid had evidently been carefully worked out in advance. They displayed no haste. Once inside and the guards bound or beaten unconscious, they locked the doors and went about the work systematically. Their motor trucks drew up to the rear doors on signal and the stolen liquor was quickly wheeled out and loaded.

The four gunmen were the first on the job. They caught a doorman unawares ad knocked him senseless before he could give a warning. They then waited until two watchmen made their rounds. These were quickly overpowered. Two clerks were admitted, bound, gagged and carried to a rear room. Finally Frank Rehm, vice-president of the warehouse, appeared. He was bound and gagged and laid beside the others. Then the gunmen gave a signal and the roustabouts came in and began moving teh liquor to the rear entrance. They had been hiding in the three trucks in the alley. The gunmen acted as foremen and judges of what was to be taken. As they marked cases the roustabouts seized the goods and carried them to the trucks. The gang had an hour start before one of the bound victims could wiggle loose and send in an alarm. The police and Federal officials are holding four employees for questioning.

CHINAMAN ACCUSED IN AMMUNITION SEIZURE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 13.—Details of an asserted plot to ship arms and ammunition to revolutionists in China were revealed here today with the arrest of Lee Roye Sonn, a Chinese merchant of Boston, and the seizure of four chests containing German-made ammunition. Federal agents announced.

The ammunition was stuffed in the hollow walls of the chests, which had been shipped here from Boston, according to Federal operatives. They declared Sonn admitted the shipment of the ammunition, but refused to divulge his purpose in sending it to China. The chests had been turned over to a local transfer company for transfer to a steamer en route to the Far East.

Sonn was said to have told officers that he had been engaged in business in Boston for some time, but had decided to return to China. His mother accompanied him.

Officials declined to discuss the case, pending further investigation.

CONGRESS CALL TO BE DELAYED

Harding in Need of Rest Prior to Hard Work

Likely to Summon Members for November 20

Farm Bloc Busy Forming Draft of Demands

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Tentative decision to call Congress in special session on November 20, instead of five days earlier as previously suggested, is based on several grounds. One of them is the hope of Dr. Sawyer and others of the President's advisers that President Harding may be able to get several weeks' rest before he enters upon a new period of stress and labor inseparable from having Congress in session.

VACATION NEEDED

The President will not go away for a rest until Mrs. Harding is able to go with him, for he refuses to be separated from her. Mrs. Harding's recovery has been slower than was expected, but she is now mending rapidly. If, in a reasonably short time, it is possible to move her, the couple will carry out the original plan of going to some isolated spot, possibly in New England, to remain until it is time to come back for the special session.

While a large purpose of that special session is to secure early consideration of the ship subsidy bill, the chief purpose is to get an early start on all Congressional business, in the hope of completing it so that there will be no need for calling the new Congress in extra session next year. To this end the chairmen of the appropriations committees, namely, Senator Warren and Representative Madden, are remaining in Washington doing preliminary work on appropriation bills. Chairman Madden, in whose committee these bills originate, has informed the President that he expects to have five of the large supply bills ready for presentation to the House between December 4, the date on which the regular session convenes, and December 10. It is understood he will start hearings on the War and Navy Department appropriation bills as early as November 10.

FARM BLOC BUSY

But while the administration is making a tentative legislative program, on the basis of starting work November 20 the farm bloc is making one of its own which perhaps will not coincide at all points with the administration offering. The American Farm Bureau Federation, the principal influence in the creation and management of the Congressional farm bloc, will announce in a few days its program on the passage of which it will be insistent. The officers of the federation already have declared, however, their willingness to support the administration's ship subsidy bill. This support, however, is contingent on the federation's getting through Congress a substantial part of its own program, the first item on which is governmental acceptance of Henry Ford's Muscle Shoals project.

LEGISLATION DEMANDS

The federation also demands legislation fixing the rediscount rate for farm paper at a low figure, in order to enable the banks to turn their lending capital oftener and on a larger margin, the theory being that this will reduce the price of borrowed money to the farmer.

The other bills on the federation program are not so far-reaching in effect, although they include such pending measures as the so-called truth-in-fabric bill and the bill to prevent the sale of filled milk, otherwise milk from which the butter fats have been withdrawn and vegetable oils substituted.

It is the purpose of the federation, operating through the bloc, to press forward the investigation which has been undertaken by a special committee of the Senate, under a resolution passed for the purpose, into the subject of Federal crop insurance with a view to the ultimate enactment of a law by which the Federal government will insure farm crops against storms, hail, droughts and like phenomena. This committee consists of Senators McNary of Oregon, Keys of New Hampshire and Smith of South Carolina.

FOREIGN POLICY FLAYED

Democratic Leaders Unable to Keep Wilson Influence From Present Campaign

BY ROBERT BARRY
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—A "supremely foolish policy" and a "record in foreign affairs of almost unparalleled stupidity" are among the terms applied to the Harding-Hughes conduct of the international affairs of the United States by David Hunter Miller of New York, Wilson adviser at the Paris Peace Conference, who, with Francis W. Hurst of England, made the final draft of the League of Nations covenant.

His critical review of the administration's foreign policy has been adopted by the Democratic national committee as the official statement of the party in the current campaign for control of Congress. It is carried in the Democratic text-book which was distributed today. The Democratic campaign book is not a healthy place to look for approval of Republican acts as it rings with complaint and invective from Cordell Hull's definition of "the party of sound principles and policies" on the front cover to "inside testimonials" by Republican leaders and editors on the "Republican do-nothing Congress."

Interest in what the Democrats would say on foreign affairs has been developing here for some weeks, due to the desire of Senate and House leaders to keep the League and kindred questions out of the campaign and to gag Mr. Wilson and James M. Cox on League talk. The reference of the foreign policy sections of the party text-book to such an eminent League advocate as Mr. Miller, law partner of Gordon Auchinloss, son-in-law of Col. E. M. House, was given a perhaps undue significance, not alone because of Mr. Miller's prominence in League advocacy, but because his declaration of Democratic policy is wholly at odds with several prominent party candidates for re-election to the Senate.

Mr. Miller wrote under the caption, "Democratic foreign policy and Republican betrayal." After charging business depression and loss of export trade to the Harding policies, Mr. Miller stated:

"The Democratic policy of the League of Nations was not a policy of any particular form of language, but a fundamental policy based upon the eternal principles of right and justice. There was no threat, no menace, nothing but the American desire for peace and justice.

"Quibblings about verbiage or debates as to language cannot in the long run secure such an issue. The American principles are that arbitration and mediation must take the place of conflict and strife, that differences between nations must be composed peacefully as are difference between individuals. The question as to whether those principles shall or shall not prevail is too great a question to be more than temporarily clouded by such discussions as characterized those of the campaign of 1920.

"Two years ago the Republicans resorted to every form of deceit, to every conceivable misinterpretation, to every possible double-faced attitude, in their effort to attain power at any and every cost of truth and honor. Some of their prominent leaders, including Mr. Hughes, now Secretary of State, and Mr. Hoover another member of the present Cabinet, alleged that the official attitude of the Republican party was in favor of the League of Nations. The Republican platform vaguely professed lip service to the cause of peace in phrases which then seemed to be as meaningless as subsequent events have since proved them. The wordy campaign utterances of President Harding were consistent with his platform only in being equally vague—they were rightly interpreted by his supporters as meaning either nothing at all or as meaning things wholly opposite to each other.

PRINCE LIKELY TO BE SAT UPON

George Doesn't Think That Cabinet's Proposals Come High Enough

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BELGRADE, Oct. 11.—Prince George, who is being held here under police supervision, addressed a note to the government declaring the Cabinet's proposals for an increased appanage are quite inadequate. He demands a large sum of money and a residence suited to his rank, also an adequate number of automobiles. The Cabinet has asked the King to call a crown council to discipline Prince George.

Mrs. DeBouchel in New Orleans for Needed Rest

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Onesime DeBouchel, whose engagement to Asa G. Candler, Sr., Atlanta capitalist, recently was terminated on the eve of their marriage, returned here today from Atlanta and went to the home of a friend where, she declared, she would spend the next week in rest.

Mrs. DeBouchel said tonight that her attorney, Harry Gamble of New Orleans, who accompanied her here from Atlanta, would file within the next few weeks a legal action to compel Mr. Candler to divulge the name of the persons he is declared to have told her had brought him reports reflecting upon her character. Because of the reports, she stated, the Atlanta financier had broken off the engagement.

Three hundred letters written by Mr. Candler, which Mr. Gamble declared would not be made public at present, will be used in the proposed legal proceedings, he said.

AGED CENTRALIA MAN KILLS GIRL AND SELF

ASSERT TRAGEDY CAUSED BY REFUSAL OF VICTIM TO MARRY HIM

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CENTRALIA (Wash.) Oct. 13.—Ed Stoltz, 62 years old, tonight shot and killed Margaret Parfit, 18 years old, and then killed himself, according to a report made to the police by Albert Einer, who said he was with the girl when she was slain.

Einer's story was that he and the girl were returning from an automobile ride when Stoltz stepped into the road, halted their car and began firing. Five wounds were found in Miss Parfit's body. Einer's coat was torn by one shot. Stoltz was found dead in his yard by officers seeking him after Einer had reported the affair.

It is said Stoltz recently made offers of marriage which the girl rejected.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PAINS SO BAD WOULD GO TO BED
Two Women Tell How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped Their Suffering

Iron Mountain, Mich.—"I had terrible pains every month and at times had to go to bed on account of them. I saw your advertisement and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with very good results. I can work all day long now at my sick time. You may use these facts as a testimonial and I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends."—Mrs. A. H. GARLAND, 218 E. Brown St., Iron Mountain, Michigan.

Xenia, Ohio.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of my abdomen that I could not lie quietly in bed. I suffered for about five years that way and I was not regular either. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women, so I decided to try it. It surely has helped me a lot, as I have no pains now and am regular and feeling fine."—Mrs. MARY DALE, Route 7, Xenia, Ohio.

If you suffer as did Mrs. Garland or Mrs. Dale, you should give this well-known medicine a thorough trial.

SIX MONTHS ON AIR FOR KHJ

"Friday, the Thirteenth," is Proven No Hoodoo

Artists of High Rank Help Birthday Celebration

Mary Newkirk Bower-Esther Rhodes Concert Appeals

KHJ had a birthday party yesterday. Several of the leaders in their profession parked their superstition in remote spots and helped to celebrate the arrival of The Times radiphone at its sixth monthly milestone on Friday, the 13th. In the two-period celebration, just to show that superstition never got a look into the broadcast room, thirteen musical and vocal numbers were sent out to the radio family who listened in in honor of the event. The offerings included soprano and contralto solos, and cornet and harp selections, each carrying the acme of appeal, being especially selected for the occasion.

The 6:40 to 7:20 concert was arranged through the courtesy of Mary Newkirk Bower. Besides herself, Mrs. Bower's program included Mrs. Guy Bush, one of the Southland's leading pianists, and Esther Rhodes, a youthful harp soloist, who captivated New York last year, and whose interpretations on this instrument have been heard and admired by many in Southern California and elsewhere by reason of her concert appearances.

Mary Newkirk Bower, whose lyric soprano is recognized by the Southland's musical fraternity and also by radio listeners as a highly developed art, sang three exceptionally pleasing numbers, with Mrs. Guy Bush accompanying at the piano. The selections included "I Know," by Gustave Ferrari; "'Twas April," by Nevin, and "I Hear a Thrush at Eve," by Charles Wakefield Cadman. There is a delicate lyricism to Mrs. Bower's singing that wins instant appeal and the numbers she chose last night were especially well fitted to show both the range and quality of her art. She shows a finesse in intonation, phrasing and enunciation which lends a high degree of charm to the radio listener. She senses that a singer has but three things with which to appeal to the listener-in—quality of voice, the melody and the words. The quality of her voice is unquestioned; she chooses numbers in which the melody is pleasing, and these attributes, together with her particularly clear enunciation, leave in the mind of the listener nothing to be desired.

Esther Rhodes interpreted two charming harp solos—"Un peu d'amour," by Silesu, and "An Old English Air." Harp solos always bring commendation from listeners, as this instrument seems to be a prime favorite among them. Last night was no exception and the favor which Miss Rhodes wins by personal appearance on the concert stage and in recital work seems to carry into space through the medium of radio with almost equal exactitude. Miss Rhodes has been heard several times from KHJ and her appearance each time brings requests that she be heard again.

A contralto and a cornet soloist participated in the afternoon celebration of KHJ's birthday. Viola Ellis, whose rich contralto has been heard both in grand opera and on the concert stage, not to mention the several occasions when she has sung for The Times, sang four songs to the accompaniment of Mildred Letcher, and then gave a recitation entitled "All the World is My Dreaming Place," from Confucius. Her first song was Tschaikowsky's "Jeanne d'Arc," which was sung in French; next she sang "Requiem," by Homer, the words of which are carved in the tomb of Robert Louis Stevenson in the South Sea Islands. Her other two numbers were of a lighter vein, being "Just Like a Gypsy," by Simons, and "Sometime." Miss Ellis' contralto is remarkably clear and earns her a host of admirers every time it is heard.

Sharing honors with Miss Ellis in the afternoon broadcast, Carl L. Buratti, whose ability as a cornet soloist ranks with the best, gave three renditions, accompanied at the piano by his daughter, Audrey Buratti. Cornet solos are in general strongly favored by radio listeners and Mr. Buratti's in particular. Yesterday he played "Macushla," by MacMurrough, "Little Gray Home in the West," by Lohr, and "The Rosary," by Nevin. There is about Mr. Buratti's cornet interpretations a quality that is at once recognized and appreciated, his well-rounded notes and tonal qualities stamping him as a master in his profession.

Rabbit's Foot Frees George From Jail Jinx

Friday, the thirteenth, that black day of misfortune to the superstitious, was a large rabbit foot, garnished with four-leaf clovers and golden horseshoes, to one George Washington, a gentleman of color.

George was yesterday released on his own recognizance by Justice Forbes after having been held to answer to the Superior Court on a charge of grand larceny.

A grin of huge proportions, comprised of white teeth and eyeballs with a rim of ebony, overspread the face of George when he learned that he no longer had to eke out an existence in the County Jail.

The testimony in the matter was to the effect that during a celebration, not in honor of Representative Voistead, George extracted a purse with nearly $100 from the person of Edward S. Allen. The money has been returned to Allen, and the affair, as far as the principals are concerned, is almost at the point of being dropped.

The proposed opening and widening of Tenth street for its entire length through the city has been officially indorsed by the directors of the Community Development Association, the City Council was notified yesterday.

The directors stated that their organization also is working in every way to develop Wilshire Boulevard into a great thoroughfare from the city to the sea, and is endeavoring to bring about the opening of Broadway southward through the city.

Five hundred and forty-six broadcast station licenses have been issued by the Department of Commerce and every state in the Union now has at least one broadcaster. These stations are supplying the American people with news, entertainment, weather reports and educational matter absolutely free of charge. The stations are not very well distributed, most of them being located in the East or the Far West. The public would be better served, it is believed, if the stations were more widely distributed, or located in better proportion to areas.

Heard by Merle Schilling, Beaumont: KZN, KDYL, Salt Lake City; KUO, KDN, San Francisco; KLP, Los Altos; FU, Gridley; KGW, KYG, KGG, Portland; FFC, Seattle; KVQ, KFBK, Sacramento; KQW, San Jose; KWG, Stockton; KGB, Tacoma; and KLZ, Denver. That home-made CR-3 used by Mr. Schilling, who, by the way, is radio 6ENQ, is pulling 'em in like a million dollar set.

We have in the news stands the October issue of Radio Journal, Los Angeles Radio magazine, and taken as a whole it is a very attractive publication again this month. In addition to some very good articles on the art, we learn from its pages that "Bull" Montana has gone in for radio with a zest.

R. S. Baum, La Verna, writes that twenty minutes is long enough for the listening period that was adopted by the local broadcasters some time ago. "We have in Los Angeles a number of high-class broadcast stations which disseminate high-class programs nightly. What can we get from distant stations that is any better?" he asks. "I have listened in to nearly all of the distant stations that can be heard here, and in no case have I heard a concert superior to those that are sent out by our own stations, and in most cases they were far inferior." The Times is in receipt of two letters protesting against the twenty minute listening time between 7:20 and 7:40 each evening. The majority, however, seem to be in favor of an even longer period.

William F. McAuliffe of the Radio Corporation of America, down from San Francisco for the purpose of making a canvass of the situation among dealers in this locality, reports the location of the contemplated Westinghouse-Radio Corporation station in the Bay City, is still hanging in abeyance. The corporation naturally is looking for the best possible place with all the advantage of good radiation, and convenience to those who contribute to the programs.

DEMOCRATS RAP WOOLWINE HARD

of himself politically, at the price of justice, why, just investigate the District Attorney's office."

Striding to the edge of the auditorium platform and shaking his fists over the heads of the tense audience, he cried: "Why, the gamblers have Thomas Lee Woolwine's picture hanging up in their joints right now, where all may see. Thomas Lee Woolwine would build up a vile and vicious wet machine in this State, such as has never been heard of, in this country. He is simply the cheap tool of the brewers, unworthy of the name of Democrat."

Satirically referring to Mr. Woolwine's announcement several weeks ago that if his enemies should attack him he would "pile them up like cordwood" on his front porch, Mr. Shuler asserted that "we should not have a Governor of California who can shoot 'em down faster than he can bury 'Sem." He added that California, already well supplied with commissions, might, if Mr. Woolwine becomes Governor, be forced to adopt a new "corpse commission to bury Mr. Woolwine's dead."

"And this same brave Mr. Woolwine," he shouted, "this same man of courage, has refused to come right down here and stand on the same platform with me and answer my charge to him that, by reason of his failure to enforce the law in Los Angeles county, he is a defender of prostitution, bootlegging and gambling because he fails to prosecute them."

RISING COSTS

In his opening remarks Mr. McDonald cited the rising cost of administering the District Attorney's office under Mr. Woolwine, quoting figures from the County Auditor's office to show that the cost of administration had risen in five years from $100,000 annually to $220,000.

Mr. Newby was warmly applauded when, in his remarks, he asserted that in declaring in favor of wine and beer Mr. Woolwine either "plans to nullify the Constitution of the United States or is trying to get votes on a false pretense."

"As a Democrat of long standing," said Mr. Newby, "I repudiate him. He is not running on a Democratic platform and is not representing the Democratic party. It would be a disgrace to elect a Governor on such an issue as he has espoused."

Announcing that he came before his hearers "as a lawyer pleading his case before a jury," Mr. Crouch asserted that he expected the verdict of those present to be "a sentence to political oblivion for the remainder of his natural life of a certain politician who is hammering at the very foundations upon which this country rests."

He read excerpts from the decision of the United States Supreme Court concerning the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, and said that the keenest legal brains in America "have done everything they could to find even a small hole in the Constitution through which liquor might be poured."

MOTIVES INSINCERE

Ascribing purely selfish and insincere motives to Mr. Woolwine's wine and beer declaration, Mr. Crouch said, "I am ashamed that it had to be a Democrat who had to do it, but when he merely tries to get a few extra votes by appealing to wet Republicans, then I feel it is due we dry Democrats that we support a Republican candidate in whom we have confidence and for whom we can feel respect.

"Let Mr. Woolwine," he said, "either specify just how he will get around the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act and the Supreme Court of the United States, or frankly admit that he is a political charlatan. He may advocate that California secede and set up a wet republic, but the south tried once to secede, and Mr. Woolwine comes from Tennessee and ought to know better. "But even the wets," in the opinion of Mr. Crouch, "see through Mr. Woolwine's ruse, and I believe intelligent voters, whether wet or dry, will place love of country and self-respect above all considerations, party or otherwise, and send this man down to defeat."

Following adoption of the resolution condemning Mr. Woolwine and his candidacy the great audience voted to have copies of the document sent to all parts of California.

MISS JONES TO SUE WOOLWINE

held that Miss Jones in the present case "has not been legally dismissed from the service."

DEMAND FOR BACK PAY

He drew no definite conclusions in his report to the Civil Service Commission, however, dated September 26, regarding whether or not Miss Jones is entitled to recover back salary. After stating that she has never been legally dismissed from the county service, Attorney Hill says:

". . . it does not follow she is entitled to compensation." This depends, his opinion revealed, on whether or not she served the county or on whether or not she had been prevented from serving the county, although willing.

"It is this matter that must be decided," explained Attorney Bledsoe.

"We cannot sue the county," he continued. "We can and will, however, make a formal demand, on the basis of County Counsel Hill's opinion, that Dist.-Atty. Woolwine certify Miss Jones's name to the County Auditor for payment of salary due her."

"In the event of his refusal, we will ask the court for a writ of mandate to compel him to certify her name. The court will then have to decide whether or not my client is entitled to pay."

RIDICULES HIS CHARGE

Neither the back pay action nor the libel action will be filed before the election, stated Attorney Bledsoe, because of the fact that such a move might be interpreted as an attempt to embarass him in his campaign for the Governorship.

The libel suit, in which Miss Jones will demand $50,000 from Woolwine and the newspaper, hinges on the publication of a statement issued in type-written form by Woolwine to the newspapers after Miss Jones had charged that he had been intimate with her.

In it, as published in full in the paper, Woolwine characterized Miss Jones's charges as an attempt of his political enemies to fight from behind the "soiled skirts of this vicious, common woman."

Miss Jones last night admitted at her home that she had engaged Mr. Bledsoe to act against Woolwine.

"His real reason for attempting to dismiss me from the service," she said, "was because he was afraid that I was going to reveal our intimacy to Mrs. Woolwine.

"His charge that I was plotting to sell for $10,000 an affidavit concerning my relations with him is absurd. Why, he knows very well that not even his enemies would consider such a document worth even 15 cents!"

Aviators Delay Coast-to-Coast Airplane Flight

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 14.—Rains in the Middle West and East have cause Lieuts. Oakley Kelly and John MacReady to postpone their scheduled nonstop flight across the country for at least seventy-two hours.

The Washington Weather Bureau today advised the airmen that clearing weather could not be expected before next week.

Maj. Henry H. Arnold, veteran military aviator, assumed command of Rockwell Field today, relieving Capt. Robert Erwin.

POLICE START SEARCH

Capt. Clyde Plummer, commanding the San Pedro police division, said last night that every effort will be made to find young Davis or his body.

"I believe young Davis has tied a weight about his neck and jumped off into the main channel," said Capt. Plummer.

"However, there is a possibility that he left the coat on the pier and is in hiding in an effort to influence his wife to return home."

ROOM SEARCHED

Yesterday afternoon a survey of the room which Davis occupied at the Meadows home revealed a bed which had not been slept in the preceding night and a carefully packed trunk, with a note addressed to his wife placed conspicuously on its contents.

"Dear Norine," the letter read, "I had hopes of getting you back if I went to work and got an apartment or flat but that letter you sent me and the piece you put in the paper—when I saw them I pretty near went crazy.

"Norine, these last two weeks have wrought an awful change in me. I have been going night and day trying to find you, and dear, I'm not mad at you for running away. I don't blame you. But you ought to have kept in touch with me because you're the only girl I love and ever loved and I'd go crazy if I didn't hear from you and see you.

loved you with all my heart, and

"Dearest, I can look back and see how awfully I treated you. am not fit to live. But, dear, I loved you always. I always have and always will. Maybe you did not think so and maybe it did not look like it but I swear to God I loved you with all my heart, and would gladly have died for you.

"Well, lover, I can now see my mistake and, honey, I'm not the happy boy you saw last. I am the most unhappy man in the world now because I lost you and you and you were everything to me—life itself—but you never knew it.

"So, dear, forgive me. I will ask God to forgive me and I know He will. Dear, all I ask of you is always to be a good girl like you always have been and be careful and keep your name clear of everything. Because, it means a whole lot to me up there where I'll be with Jesse and Bert. And, honey, we will all be glad when you arrive in heaven. Honey, I hope the Lord takes me up there.

"Sweetheart, I've made up my mind I can't live without you and I'll go crazy. I'm just about crazy now. So, I'm going to end it all tonight at the beach and if my body is found all I ask is put me near Jesse as he is the only pal I had besides you.

"I sold everything I had and spent the money trying to find you, so I've nothing to leave you but memories.

"You won't need a divorce now, and I will save you a hundred dollars.

"Dearest Little Lover, how I have missed you. Nobody will ever know the torture I've gone through in the last two weeks. But it's worth it if you are happy.

"Well, Honey, this is the end of everything for me. I've thought it over and I've made up my mind to die, and I find it will be easy for me, knowing you are happy.

"Dear, I hope you will remember me. Will you, please? I surely want you to.

"Good-bye, dear; your heart-broken husband."

GROWN MORBID

According to Mr. and Mrs. Meadows, Davis had grown increasingly morbid since his wife left him about a month ago, and lately had often said he was growing desperate from his unrewarded search for her.

For several hours Thursday night Davis and Meadows talked of the former's plan to find his wife, the conversation terminating by Davis declaring that life now held no promise for him and that he was better off dead.

Meadows declares he made his friend's morbidity the butt of a jest. "San Pedro bound?" Meadows says he queried. In reply Davis merely laughed.

"I never dreamed George was serious as he was always talking of killing himself and then laughing about it," Meadows asserts.

At midnight Davis knocked at the door of the room occupied by Mrs. Meadows's father-in-law E. W. Rahn, and asked him at what time could be get a street car for the beach. Rahn answered his question and Davis left the house and has not since been seen.

Yesterday afternoon an envelope containing a clipping from a local newspaper said that Mrs. Davis had emerged from her hiding-place to obtain her divorce arrived at the Meadows residence. It was addressed to Davis in what Mrs. Meadows declares to be the handwriting of his wife.

"SUICIDE A RUSE"

"It's a ruse. I'm satisfied that it is a ruse on Davis's part to obtain information as to his wife's whereabouts," John Munro, Mrs. Davis's attorney, said to The Times last night after he was informed of Davis's suicide notes.

"I will not believe Davis committed suicide until I see his body," he continued.

CRONY OF PHILLIPS

Davis, as well as being the intimate friend of Jesse Meadows, the dead husband of Alberta Meadows, was also the crony of Armour L. Phillips, whose attentions to Mrs. Meadows led to her asserted murder in the hammer case, Munro declares.

Dep. Dist.-Atty. Fricke, who will be one of the attorneys for the State in the trial of Mrs. Clara Phillips, accused of the Meadows murder, was notified by the Los Angeles Harbor police late in the day of the supposed tragedy. Mr. Fricke stated that from the evidence in hand it might be that the death of Davis has been merely faked. The State has not been planning to use Davis as a witness, so far as is known.

Davis and his wife took up their residence at the Meadows home about a month ago. After they had resided there a week Mrs. Davis disappeared. The efforts of her attorney to locate her last night were futile.

VILLAGES OPPOSING POWER ACT

Economy League Reports Small Towns in State Against Bond Issue

It is in the villages and small cities that interest in the $500,000,000 Water and Power Act is strongest, speakers of the People's Economy League report, according to Luther G. Brown, chairman of the league's speakers' bureau.

"Audiences in the smaller communities are made up almost entirely of men and women who pay taxes," he said yesterday. "Practically everyone in the usual small-town audience is directly interested in the ability of the State or some one of its political subdivisions to borrow money.

"Because we are pointing out to them that the bonded indebtedness of the entire forty-eight States of the Union is less than twice what the debt of California alone would be if this $500,000,000 issue were authorized and that the credit of the State would be ruined, I doubt if a tenth of the vote in the smaller communities of Southern California goes for the measure."

Speakers from the league addressed large gatherings at Pomona, Lankershim, Ventura and Lomita yesterday. Today Capt. H. C. Stone is to make several addresses to the crowds at the Southern California Fair at Riverside and Roy Reams is to talk to the Community Club of Santa Maria.

DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

Congregationalists Make Fine Record; Pastors Announce Sermon Topics

The beautiful new North Whittier Congregational Church, as to its fellowship overseas, recently finished at a cost of $40,000, tomorrow will be dedicated as "the ideal community house of all who aspire to religious freedom, fine human sympathy, social consciousness, world-wide and balanced spiritual aspirations."

The program of the dedication services, announced yesterday by the Rev. Dr. A. Brumley, the pastor, states that if the 240 members of the church can succeed tomorrow in raising $10,000, the entire building will be lifted from debt. The auditorium will be used for worship and for many other purposes, which are combined in the one building.

Designed by Basil Flournoy, the church is of a modified mission style cement stucco construction, with a low roof tile from an archaeological standpoint to the fine residential district in which it is situated and will be the home of an earnest body of soldiers in the eternal battle for righteousness.

Although the church membership is comparatively small, the Sunday school classes already have an enrollment of nearly 300, with a starting promise of reaching the Cradle Roll. One hundred on the program tomorrow will be the ceremonies at the dedication service, when, in the name of the Junior Lover of children, a silver rose tree, named after one of the community, will be placed around the Spanish entrance of the building.

At 10 a.m. there will be a preliminary song service by 100 members of the Congregation and primary department, followed by an address by Mr. Smith. The dedication will also be delivered by Mr. Smith, and the dedication will also be delivered by Prof. M. E. Peterson and Dr. G. F. Kenagott, who will bring greetings of the Southern California Congregational conference.

LEARN A TRADE

One of our leading speculators and financiers says that every man and boy should learn a trade. But it might be well to mention right here that crap-shooting is not a trade.

A SHELL GAME

They won't take money at the door at some of the places of amusement in Germany. They had a show in Wuertemburg recently and the price of admission was one egg. Can you beat it?

A BETTER LAND

We are a nation of good homes, but we want better homes—better homes and more of them. And while we are getting better homes let us have better men and better women in them. All in favor say aye.

GOATS FOR MEN

Now it is announced that by the use of endocrine glands, taken internally, and coupled with a violet-ray treatment a young girl who was completely bald has been given a fine head of glossy brown hair. Come to think of it, some of those shaggy goats ought to furnish inspiration for some of our baldheads.

TEN DOLLARS AND COSTS

It is reported that the adjoining suburb of Eagle Rock has in the last twenty months pinched 2700 speeders on its main boulevard and collected $27,000. That sounds like a rate, a system and a schedule. Possibly the town needs the money. Take your time in going through the beautiful little valley or you'll get nicked for a ten-spot.

THE WOMAN OF IT

The Business Women's League had a fashion show of their own in connection with their national convention and it looks as if the stenographers and so forth were going to use as much war paint as their home-brewing sisters. The business woman are not going to be so blamed conservative when it comes to dress. After all, a woman is only a woman.

A SIMPLE GREEK

The new Greek "liberator" is touted as a wonder. We are told that, although he is a great man, he rode the other day in a regular car on a regular train. Does that make him a wonder in Greece? Although America is a reasonably rich country, we have had generals here that could ride in a wheelbarrow in case of necessity. They may even journey on foot without losing either their prestige or their courage.

AERIAL TRAINS

Now they talk of using the glider as a trailer. In experiments made the other day Glenn Curtiss used a hydroplane as a starter for a gliding plane and it was found that the glider could be towed indefinitely and with ease. It would be possible to run air trains a mile long, according to some of the guessers. The power would all be furnished by the pilot boat. The gliders would be sustained by their wings. In the European tests of gliders one of these craft remained in the air more than two hours and took off on its own initiative. Another attained an altitude of more than 2500 feet and glided for six miles. These machines were all made with rigid wings. If they are built with flexible wings on the line of a seagull further endurance and capacity would be noted. To be able to rise and soar without the use of power is a great accomplishment in itself. Some day some genius will build a cross between a helicopter and glider and produce a bird that can rise straight up from its own nest and fly forth in quest of the early worm. If they get to stringing the gliders out as trailers to the aquaplanes our lovely ocean may take on all the appearance of staging a kite-flying tournament.

LOVELY ZION

Wilbur Glenn Voliva is beginning to dabble in world affairs, despite his insistence that the earth is flat. He says that there are several dangerous alliances ahead. The first one will be formed by Germany, Russia and Japan. Then there will be a combination of ten European nations and, after they have wrought their damage, there will be a union of England and America. Naturally, this union of the English-speaking peoples will be a compact for Christianity and civilization. Incidentally, it will be prepared to knock the stuffing out of all other international alliances. But, while Wilbur is talking in terms of unity, he is indicating intolerance toward other churches than his own. They are having a regular billboard war in Zion City. Voliva had a Methodist preacher arrested for keeping his church open after 10 o'clock. Then the churches began putting up bulletins attacking one another until now the town has broken out with a regular rash of nine-sheet posters along the highways. One set denounces Voliva as a dictator, while his posters call upon the faithful to exterminate the invader. If the heavenly Zion is much like Zion City St. Peter will have to handcuff some of his angels to keep them from picking out one another's eyes.

WOOLWINE AND COUNTRY EDITORS

In slurring the country press of California for its support of the candidacy of Friend W. Richardson, Republican nominee for Governor, Thomas Lee Woolwine, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, permits personal rancor and resentment to lead him into an ill-natured and unwarranted attack upon a group of men who are unselfishly and fearlessly striving to serve the highest interests of the whole State.

When the country editors, because of their loyalty to a man whom they esteemed as a splendid citizen and an efficient, courageous public officer, waged a successful fight in the face of tremendous odds for the nomination of Mr. Richardson at the primary, the people of California discovered that the country editor is a power in the land.

The people were not long in discovering, in addition, that the country editors have a proper sense of their strength and an equally proper regard for the manner in which that strength should be used; for when Mr. Richardson, proclaiming anew his adherence to the principles of genuine governmental reform in California, announced the necessity for an open break with the political boss who had controlled State affairs for many years, the country newspaper men indorsed his stand and made his fight for clean government their fight.

The newspapers of the State that had carried forward the Richardson slogan, "Kick the State machine out of politics"—a slogan, by the way, which reflected not at all upon any faithful public servant in State employ—took up the additional demand that bossed government in California must cease.

The newspapers that have thus demonstrated under all circumstances their dedication to public welfare and civic progress are by no means confined to the Republican fold, for, while the Republican dailies and weeklies of California now without an exception are urging the election of Mr. Richardson, many Democratic journals, north, south, east and west, in California are also in the forefront of the battle for better government.

Approximately two-thirds of all the Democratic newspapers of California are behind the candidacy of Mr. Richardson. Among them are such influential publications as the Auburn Herald, the Ukiah Dispatch-Democrat, the Santa Barbara News, the Hemet News, the Visalia Times, the San Rafael Journal, the Vallejo Times and the Willows Journal. A total of 325 Republican and Democratic dailies and weeklies are actively supporting Mr. Richardson's candidacy.

This unanimity of opinion and action, this concerted striving for purity in politics and efficiency and economy in government throws into bold relief the few journals that have lined up for the repudiated political machine, for the political bosses, for political pull over business procedure and for a futile but dangerous attack upon law and decency.

The State may well congratulate itself that the exceptions are so few—less than half a dozen publications of any consequence, and four of the offenders owned, operated and directed by an absentee publisher living outside the State of California—William R. Hearst of New York. The other conspicuous example is the wringing wet Sacramento Bee, which supported the State machine in the primary and which declared itself for Woolwine only after Woolwine declared himself for wine.

While it can be said of the Sacramento Bee that that unctuously wet organ is swayed more or less by the sincerity of its alcoholic inspiration, no such excuse can be offered for Hearst and the Hearst publications. In San Francisco Hearst's Examiner and Evening Call are frankly jubilant over Woolwine's specious arguments for wine and beer.

In Los Angeles Hearst's Examiner ignores, as if it were a plague, the wine and beer of Woolwine; ignores this chief issue of Woolwine's candidacy as though the wet nominee had not thought to win a few votes by his soaking sophistry. Here Hearst does not talk of Woolwine as the self-appointed savior of booze, but refers in dulcet tones to Woolwine the Progressive; refers to Woolwine as this and that and the other, but never, never, to Woolwine the Wet—refers to Woolwine when not so very long ago to refer to Woolwine at all on the local Hearst morning publication was forbidden because of some petty and characteristic Hearst taboo.

The California country editors, therefore, confident in their candidate and their cause and strong in the confidence of the people of California whom they serve, are ignoring altogether as a part of the opposition that springs in the path of those who accomplish worth-while things, the bad-tempered jeers and sneers of an office-seeker and a publisher whom none of them seeks to honor and who both are regarded by all as exponents of a hypocritical and mischievous adventure.

"THE CITY OF HONOLULU"

Our first great sea disaster since Los Angeles became a maritime city has been burned into history.

The tragedy of the steamer City of Honolulu must be taken with what philosophy we can muster and always with the feeling of relief and thankfulness that no lives were lost. All other considerations fade into insignificance compared with the fact that the loss was one of property alone.

It is perhaps a measure of the importance of the new era that has dawned for Southern California. Los Angeles has become a great harbor city with ships and cargoes going forth to many waters. It was too much to expect that it could be our lot always to look on the bright side of the picture. People who walk the streets and those who ride in railway trains and those who go down to the sea in ships are all on the knees of the gods. Ships go forth laden with cargoes and passengers and sometimes they do not come back. We cannot expect that ours will be different from the common lot of all great harbors. We will have the butter side of the bread, but sometimes will we have husks and crusts.

There is nothing in this disaster that will in any way tend to take away from the great project of linking this city with Hawaii and the far islands of the sea.

We have become a sailor city and we will endure the tragedies with the grim uncomplaining determination to forge ahead . . . with the same spirit that has always characterized those who live their lives by the sea.

As a matter of fact, the burning of the City of Honolulu is a reassurance as to the firm future of ocean traffic.

The invention of the wireless has removed most of the terrors of the sea. Twenty-five years ago the burning of this beautiful ship would have been followed by nameless tragedies of open boats drifting helpless on the face of the waters; of suffering and exposure and privation.

But those bitter agonies have passed. Hardly was this ship on fire before the wireless sent forth its shriek of warning and ships turned their prows to hurry to the rescue.

There will always be tragedies at sea and on land, but the days of helpless, lonely wrecks at sea have gone forever.

The sea has become a friendly, neighborly place where eager hands are held out to the afflicted.

WE CAN'T BE HEROES

In our relations with Europe the people of the United States are learning much with great rapidity—especially about the human quality called gratitude.

When we went into the war against Germany; flung our money with lavish hand all over the map; and sent forth our sons to die on the battlefields of France we must admit that we expected a little friendly applause.

We had always observed, in the movies, that the horseman who comes galloping to the rescue and chases away all the villains invariably wins the beauteous heroine and everybody else clasps his hand with shaken emotion and dripping tears of gratitude.

In real life it doesn't seem to work that way.

After we came galloping to the rescue all that we got were some remarkably candid and unfeeling confidences. They told us that our soldiers didn't win the war, anyhow, one celebrated English historian putting the services of the A.E.F. on a par with the Portuguese. Another historian told us coldly that we caused the war, anyhow. They told us that our soldiers mussed up France and gave the Europeans bad habits as the moral result of consistently cheating the Yanks.

When we tactfully mentioned money and the possible repayment of our loans all of Europe, with the exception of England, roared back "Just try and get it."

Although we thought we were diplomatically avoiding all the embroilments of Europe by keeping away from the Genoa conference, the Russian Foreign Minister, M. Tchitcherin, has now come to the front with a statement intimating that the United States is to blame for everything.

Incidentally, the Turks and the Armenians seem to agree upon but one question on earth, which is that the United States should and didn't, or shouldn't and did.

At any rate, we have this consolation: we are consistent; we are wrong in every particular and in every regard and in every land.

Just on the surface of it we might hug the delusion that, in rushing our warships to take away the refugees from Smyrna, in succoring the needy and starving, in hurrying supplies and nurses and medical stores to the famine regions of Russia, Asia Minor, China and other regions from which the hunger cry has gone up that we might have been pretty nearly right somewhere. But the returns are not all in. In the end we will doubtless discover that the United States is to blame because Mustapha Kemal Pasha is a Turk, because the Greeks got licked again and because the Straits of the Dardanelles aren't dry land.

President Harding, being a sensitive man, has been moved to remonstrate, through his Secretary of State, against the assertion that the United States has done nothing for the world.

Virtue is said to be its own reward. This may be true, but it doesn't give much of a chance for the virtuous to wear medals.

Meanwhile, the drive for funds for the relief of the Near East will continue under the direction of Will Hays. This country has no intention of allowing little children to starve to death or helpless women to die of want and exposure just because no bouquets are coming our way.

If it were just the ungracious diplomats who have turned up their noses at us we might let them starve. Unfortunately, diplomats are always well fed.

The Inquiring Reporter

International bankers favor the cancellation of war debts owed our government—

But would they favor the cancellation of the foreign debts owed themselves?

The wets, dehydrate, moists and damps favor beer and light wines, but oppose the saloon.

The question arises, What will be the beer and wine stores be called?

The neutrality of the Dardanelles is a most desirable thing—

But are the straits to be 100 per cent neutral or only about 50 per cent neutral?

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

Good Business and Bad Business

I read somewhere a long time ago that there are some men who cannot obey orders—and there are many more who can only obey orders—and that neither of this kind of men ever succeeds.

This statement was recalled to my mind when I heard the following incident.

The father of former Senator Jonathan Bourne was a shipper at New Bedford, Mass.

Old Man Bourne possessed Yankee thrift and was business-like right down to the fractions.

One day an anchor was left lying on Bourne's dock and, an employee noticing this, followed the general policy laid down by Bourne and made out a bill for dock rent.

For the little while the anchor was there and the small space it occupied the rent amounted to just 1 cent. He mailed the owner of the anchor the bill.

When old man Bourne heard of the episode he made this comment:

"The man who made out and mailed this bill used his imagination, but not quite enough.

"To have thought of making out the bill, even though it was small, was good business.

"To have mailed a bill for only 1 cent, when it took a 2-cent stamp to send it—that was bad business."

This matter of learning to distinguish between good business and bad business—of following the happy mean between obeying orders and only obeying orders—is a fine art and one well worth getting into the habit of practicing.

For upon our success in practicing it may depend our own success or failure in whatever we are doing.

CHEAPENING HONORS

Pawnshops in many of the larger cities throughout the country are beginning to display openly Victory medals for sale. The prices vary, depending on the number of battle clasps the purchaser desires. This is despicable. Those who sold the medals are more to be pitied than censured, for it would seem that a former soldier must be in dire straits, indeed, before he would pawn his Victory medal.

Those who buy them should be prosecuted. Every Victory medal offered for sale belittles the sacrifice and heroism represented by the medal on every soldier's blouse. Their sale provides the slacker, the man with the dishonorable discharge and the boaster with an opportunity to masquerade at the expense of honest fighting men. Every dollar spent by the Federal government in prosecuting these illicit sales is a dollar well spent.—[Foreign Service.

"VIOLENT EPITAPHS"

Is it possible that a prominent newspaper meant what it said in a headline recently when it printed, regarding the Turkish situation: "Sultan of Turkey About to Abdicate Throne. Is Shocked by the Violent Epitaphs Hurled at Him by Nationalist Leader"? Unfortunately, everywhere the Turk operates, "epitaphs" seem only too much in evidence.—[Christian Science Monitor.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Upon the shelves the good books stand, unblemished by a reader's hand; the gilt is fresh upon their backs, the covers show no seams or cracks; the stately tomes with wisdom stored make small appeal to readers bored by anything in print whose drift is to instruct or to uplift. The queenly dame who is in charge remarks to me,
"Our stock is large of volumes stuffed with useful lore; we have nine tons, or maybe more. Our shelves are loaded to the guards with works of sages and of bards, so choose a book to suit your need and take it home with you and read." "I'm looking for a book," I say, "a noble work by Bertha Clay, wherein a serving maid named Luke is married to a belted duke; that noble's jealous aunts now rush to put cold poison in her mush; plot follows plot till readers quail—this is an outline of the tale, and I'll be glad as glad can be if you can find this book for me." "Ah, woe is me," exclaims the dame, "you modern birds are all the same. I thought when I beheld you here, your face so thoughtful and austere, that from the shelf you'd promptly jerk a helpful and uplifting work. But no one wants those noble tomes; you reach for bunk like 'Sherlock Holmes!'"

MEN IN THE NEWS

BY RANDOLPH LEIGH

Giants, Pigmies and Then Subpigmies.

The Dutch have quite a way with their great men. They let Rembrandt become a beggar. They allowed William the Silent to be assassinated by a fool. They made Grotius an exile, only to find that they had sent away their ablest scholar and the founder of international law. And today they have let their ablest man of letters slip through their hands and into America in the person of Hendrick Van Loon, whose "The Story of Mankind" is one of the truly remarkable works of a decade.

Van Loon's book is but another addition to the long list of high accomplishments which have come out of an apparently barren soil. He wrote this, he says, because his childhood text-books on history had bored him to death and had seemed utterly lacking in a reasonable relationship between events.

Heretofore men writing in this field have contented themselves with giving the panorama of historical times. Most attempts of this nature have been either too technically correct and heavy to be interesting or, too sketchy to be convincing.

Van Loon has not satisfied himself with a presentation of the historical period or even the mythical period antedating it. He has gone back to the very morning of the universe. He not only brings his narrative down to present times, but gravely informs us that it is to be "continued indefinitely," thereby going on record as one of the few historians who treats history as an unfoldment to an extent that he frankly states that the story can never be told rapidly enough to prevent it from being old.

He writes for children, and yet in such a way as to at once interpret and satirize the human race with a deftness of touch which will captivate the most mature intellect. The illustrations are from his own pen—and such illustrations! To make clear his concept of the antiquity of man and the millions of years back of his present status he makes a diagram showing a zig-zag pathway up a very high mountain. Practically all of it deals with the period before the actual emergence of man. All of his illustrations are much like those which a gifted child would make—a barrel-like horse alongside the story of Troy and dizzy castles and towers in the chapters on the Middle Ages.

As if to show how the human mind can run to the infinitely minute, as well as to the far-reaching, Henri Fabre, France's ablest student of insects and the poet laureate of the germ kingdom, has issued an elaborate volume on "The Life of the Weevil."

It fairly throbs with high romance—only a fraction of an inch high, perhaps, as we measure romance in our world, but very high, no doubt, to the weevil, and certainly high enough to throw M. Fabre into rhapsodies.

He classifies the various kinds of weevils and tells of their modes of life, their sorrows and their hopes, much as Maeterlinck raised the love affairs of the bee to a lofty place in the world's literature.

But M. Fabre has a most unromantic tendency to run more to diet than to love in the weevil's life history. And such diet! If it were a quest of flowers, heavily scented and drowsy with love, on which the weevil went, we could stand it. On the contrary, the weevil is a bean-eater of the most flat-footed type.

The whole plot of M. Fabre's story is in the hunt for the origin of that bean which the French weevil makes famous by his refusal to feed upon it. He knows that there is some strange love back of it, some other-weevil secret which allures. And eventually his search is rewarded. He had suspected that the accursed bean (the haricot bean) was from the New World and that somewhere there he could find the weevil that devoured its life to it—for it seems to be M. Fabre's religion to believe that for every bean there must be a weevil.

His suspicions, toward the end of the narrative about nothing, are confirmed. He, quite naturally, searched Boston for bean fiends, only to be disappointed. Finally he was rewarded in Mexico, where he found the bean in question—with a different kind of weevil upon it. Thus science is justified of all her follies, and romances is kept alive.

Barry Pain in England makes his bid for literary recognition on quite a different basis from that of either Fabre or Van Loon. He observes that Hutchinson has ridden to immense popularity with his "If Winter Comes," and, not feeling equal to the exertion of trying to do something on his own account, decides to parody the successful novel.

He, too, would "walk with silver slippers in the sunshine, and with applause." The result is his "If Summer Don't," in which he at times entirely abandons all attempts to frame a farcical story and degenerates into dull criticism of Hutchinson's book.

It is even worse than Hutchinson's follow-up of his own success, "This Freedom," and that is saying a good deal.

Altogether, they seem to have fallen into a decided literary backwash in England and the trouble is that they insist upon calling what they are manufacturing literature. Indeed, the point has almost been reached in that land where every stripling who has an acute bellyache immediately takes it to mean a divine call to literature.

LUNCHEON DOWN TOWN

BY GRACIE WILCOX

Mid-day and the inevitable luncheon hour.

The rush and crush of wild-eyed women and hurrying, scurrying men.

Breathlessly we arrive at a place to dine; wearily we grasp our packages and fall into line.

And wait and wait and wait!

Assailing us from every side is the pungence of the onion, the sharp, acid tang of salads, the steam of boiling soup and hot coffee, the sticky, saccharine fragrance of fruit syrups.

At last we push forward.

The waitress holds up two fingers; the major-domo smiles with both thumbs down.

At a table with three others we collapse and wonder what to order.

A stout lady with dangling chains, a shiny hat and an August fur has most of the table already filled with meat pie and potatoes, French bread and macaroni, an apple dumpling, berry pie and a pot of chocolate.

On her right a thin, anemic young man in horn-rims and a Palm Beach suit slicks his bandolined hair, considers the single glass of milk before him and confides elegantly to his companion that heavy lunches quite unfit him for the rest of the day.

One table away Little Cutie in bright-green sports clothes loves everything—

Especially the great, big, handsome man across from her.

She toys coquettishly with her nut sundae and chocolate eclair, while her eager eyes touch everything within ten feet of her—resting at last on a huge dish of strawberry shortcake, a duplicate of which she immediately orders.

A heavy, sweet heat rolls in sickening waves over us, the myriad faces blur and the lights go dim; a package slips under the table. We cannot reach it for the many legs already there.

The bill of fare is interminable and difficult.

Finally, in desperation, we ask for soup, a salad and a pastry.

Three minutes before our next engagement we get our food, which we bolt—hurriedly, nervously, irritably.

Then we flutter out to meet a friend and tell her of the wonderful luncheon we have just had at So-and-So's—quite the smartest place in town!

How the Prison Was Evolved

In Anglo-Saxon times imprisonment was not mentioned in the laws as a punishment at all, but was looked on as a method mainly of securing the offender. What chains or fetters or sufferings were incidentally endured was a matter for the individual jailer to decide. Later, the common law specified prisons as places of punishment, but they were still regarded mainly as places of detention, and it was not until the time of Queen Elizabeth that they became "houses of correction."

FRAGMENTS

BY GRACIE WILCOX

My garden is choked with weeds—but where a weed will grow a flower will blossom and where a flower will blossom my beloved will come.

Yellow and barefooted he stands all day in the choking gray steam. As he cleanses and smoothes the soiled linen he imagines that all the white bodies that will shortly fill the immaculate garments are exquisitely perfect.

He cannot see that those who pass him by are blind to his visions of enchantment. He does not know that they look into each other's eyes and are ashamed at what they see. His eyes are closed to all ugliness—open to all beauty—hence he sells pencils on a corner.

Irresistibly fair in virgin youth and loveliness, she is remote, irreproachable, alluring. Flattery does not beguile her, a lover's caress will leave her dumb and cold. Like the magnolia blossom, she is speechless in contemplation of her own sinless beauty.

She is in the rotogravure section.

She had always sighed for love. When it came it were the guise of poverty—and she turned her back on it. Later she accepted a substitute—thick and rich. Later still the old love appeared in the most modish of clothes and cars.

She sinned and gloried in it—but she knew she had missed love.

A geranium in a broken pot lived in a dark alley. It lifted its head eagerly toward the sun, but the struggle left its body dwarfed and misshapen. Its single blossom was imperfect. A child plucked it for a sick mother, who exclaimed: "What a lovely, lovely blossom!" The mother grew well and strong, but the geranium from which the flower had been gathered died of thirst the same day.

THIS IS THE DAY

William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, was born in London, Eng., in the year 1644. He was 38 years old when he came to America. In 1684 he returned to England and for five years engaged in affairs of state. He settled for a time in Philadelphia and made his home in Pennsbury Manor, near Bristol, Pa. Later he returned to England, where he remained till his death at Ruscombe, Berkshire, in the year 1718. He was married twice and had four sons.

William Penn was a Quaker and is chiefly famous for his humane tarian dealings with the Indians. It is said that the Indians never killed a Quaker in all their wars against the white men of the English colonies. No treaty made by Penn with the Indians was ever broken.

POMONA IN READINESS FOR FAIR

Final Preparations Under Way for Start of County Event Tuesday

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, Oct. 13.—Mass meeting of fair officials, directors, superintendents and members of all committees tonight, horses and chariots training on the race-track, hustle and bustle of finishing touches at the fair grounds and the finishing of the spur track from the Southern Pacific main line to the fair grounds, this tells the story of the last-minute preparations for the Los Angeles County Fair to be held here on October 17 to 21 inclusive.

Exhibits for the various departments will pour into the grounds Saturday, which is the first official day for receiving them, and it is expected that all will be in place by Monday.

With the completion of ten more box stalls today the fair officials anticipate that all horses to be exhibited can be accommodated.

L. E. Sheets, president of the Fair Association, said today that although no more entries are supposed to be received, the fair officials will accept all they can handle. Most of the spaces are now filled to overflowing.

Frank Rees, a member of the racing committee, made the statement today that the race track would be in wonderful shape for the races, even though the track is only ninety days old.

DEMOCRATS CHANGE ALLEGIANCE, REPORT

FRESNO, Oct. 13.—A split in the ranks of Fresno county Democrats, with old-time Bourbon leaders going over to the Republican forces in the gubernatorial fight, was declared to exist when steps were under way here to organize these forces behind Friend W. Richardson in the Republican fight. Thomas L. Woolwine, Los Angeles District Attorney, and the leader of the Democratic forces as candidate for Governor, is himself the cause of the split, it was declared by those behind the move.

Opposition to his declaration for a platform which includes advocacy of light wines and beers is the chief factor causing the split, it was said. This and the stand for economy and lower taxation by Friend W. Richardson are declared to be the point on which Woolwine and Fresno county Democrats split.

SELECT POMONA FOR STATE ENCAMPMENT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, Oct. 13.—Grand encampment of the I.O.O.F. for the State of California will be held in this city in October, 1923, R. M. Funk, local delegate to the Grand Lodge meeting, now in session in Modesto, wired local members today.

He states that this encampment would bring about 15,000 I.O.O.F. members to this city.

The City Council has already begun to plan for the accommodation and entertainment of the visitors and will make it a notable event in the city's history.

NABBED ON CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, Oct. 13.—Suspicion directed to John Long of La Verne by action taken by a Pomona man who is said to have lost $35 by endorsing a bad check given him by Long, has resulted in his being arrested on a charge of embezzlement, it was learned here today.

Three years ago, it is asserted, Long obtained several hundred dollars from citizens of La Verne for the purpose of surveying Lopez Canyon, north of that city, for oil. No surveying work was done, according to citizens who made donations to Long, and as a result embezzlement charges have been brought against him. He was released upon his own recognizance.

HOUSEKEEPER WILL GET ROYER FORTUNE

BEQUEST GIVES ONLY MINOR SUM TO WIDOW AND SON

SANTA ANA, Oct. 13. — The will of Gen. Julian O. Royer, filed for probate here today, leaves to Marie Feraud, his housekeeper, stock worth $193,906, and to his widow and son $32,000, the latter on condition that they do not contest the will. Any attempt to do so, according to the terms of the document, will cut them off from any part of the estate.

Marie Feraud was Gen. Royer's housekeeper for more than twenty-seven years. No provision was made in the will for Mrs. Walter Amstutz, his sister, who lives in Anaheim.

Gen. Royer, who died in Los Angeles recently, was a pioneer of the State, coming to Southern California from Alsace Lorraine. He was well known in mining circles, and was prominent in Los Angeles police affairs during Charles Sebastian's terms as Chief.

REGISTRATION LARGE

Republicans Gain Greatly in San Bernardino County

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Oct. 13.—All registration figures for San Bernardino county were broken this year, according to figures made public by County Clerk Harry L. Allison. PLEDGE CHURCH FUND AT BUDGET MEETING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

UPLAND, Oct. 13.—Decision of the members of the First Presbyterian Church here three years ago to abolish the passing of the collection plate at Sunday services, was again justified today when it was announced that six thousand dollars was assured for carrying on the work of the church during the coming year, following the annual church budget dinner.

Four thousand dollars was raised at the meeting and it was announced that there was $1000 on hand and $1000 to be laid on past pledges.

The trustees expect through the budget system to raise not only sufficient funds for carrying on the regular work of the church, but to acquire a surplus for the building of a new parsonage.

NO CREED BUT CHRIST
BROADWAY CHRISTIAN

"The music at our church is second to none in Los Angeles." This is the boast of the members of the Broadway Christian Church—and this is why they say it: Besides the big chorus choir, directed by Mrs. Alma K. Moss, there is a male chorus, a women's chorus, a junior chorus and an intermediate chorus. And that isn't all. There is also a Bible school orchestra and a Christian Endeavor band of twenty-five instruments. "No creed but Christ, no book but the Bible and no guide but the Holy Spirit" is the slogan of the Broadway Church, and the pastor, the Rev. W. S. Buchanan, declares that an ever greater interest is being awakened among the people of Los Angeles in the simple, yet deeply satisfying religion of Jesus Christ. Mr. Buchanan will preach tomorrow morning on "Messengers of a Pardon" and in the evening will discuss the question "When Does a Sinner Become a Christian?"

Tomorrow an all-day meeting, with dinner on the ground, will be conducted at the church headquarters, Twelth and Flower streets. Mr. Shuler will preach in the morning on "Another Year's Record Made," the subject for the evening being "What Shall the New Year Bring Forth?" That's how simple it is to wash Kayser Chamoisette Gloves

AND think what it means to have fresh gloves—practically new gloves—every time you go out! Kayser Chamoisette Gloves cost one-half what leather gloves cost, so that you can afford to have at least two pairs—and keep changing.

This Matter of Economy

There is this about Kayser Chamoisette Gloves costing so little and wearing so long—you seldom think of it, because they are so good to look at, so much in style, so comfortable on the hands, so easy to slip on and off without awkward pulling and tugging—you'd just want to wear them even if they cost a lot—and it would pay you!

Good pure soap—a few minutes in the suds—rinse with clean water—let them dry—and there you are! And you're always smartly gloved, and happy about it.

And the Long Wear

You see, you can wear Kayser Chamoisette Gloves and wash them, and keep on wearing them and washing them, and they LAST. Of course we are talking about real Kayser Chamoisette. That's why we think it a good idea to ask you to look for the Kayser name in the hem of the glove—ALWAYS.

HUGE PROPERTY TRANSFER

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 13.—Erection of three new buildings, consisting of a large department store, a theater and another business house, will be started in the next ninety days through the consummation yesterday morning of a deal involving the purchase of a stretch of property owned by the Catholic Church here, by a Los Angeles syndicate on Third street, between Santa Monica Boulevard and Arizona avenues. More than $100,000 was involved in the transaction, it was said.

The deeds for the five lots which comprise the property were signed in the office of Rt.-Rev. John G. Cantwell, bishop of Los Angeles and Monterey, by Thomas C. Spearman, representing the purchasing syndicate. Four hundred dollars per front foot was the consideration received, it was said.

Heralded by real estate men here as one of the most notable sales in many months this transfer will mean an extensive expansion along Third street, which, with new pavements to be completed within fifteen days and improved lighting, will make this one of the main thoroughfares north of Santa Monica Boulevard.

ETERNAL VERITIES THEOSOPHICAL LECTURE

"Many attempts have been made to place Theosophy before the world as something uncanny and impracticable. True Theosophy is neither of these. Rather does it place before us a new way to think, to live and to hope, based on the eternal verities. It shows us the enlightened soul moving ever onward to perfection and peace." This defense of Theosophy was voiced yesterday by Mme. Katherine Tingley who will give a free lecture on Theosophical doctrines tomorrow evening at the Ebell Club Auditorium. A musical program will be given by students from the Raja Yoga Academy.

"MODERN TEMPTATION" WILSHIRE PRESBYTERIAN

"Is it true that young people today have a hundred times as many temptations as the youth of past generations? Is temptation ever an excuse for yielding to sin? Is it ever too subtle to be resisted? YOUNG LAD DYING FROM DOG'S BITE

Hydrophobia Beyond All Human Aid Has Deadly Grip on Child

Suffering from hydrophobia in an advanced stage, little Richard Thompson, 4 years of age, was late yesterday removed to ward 185 at the County Hospital. Last night, according to Dr. L. M. Powers, the little fellow was resting well, but it is only a matter of hours till the little patient will be in the grip of convulsions—and then the end will follow quickly.

"There is nothing under the sun that can be done to save the boy," said the doctor, "it will simply have to take its course." The boy was bitten by a mad dog the latter part of August, the report shows, but it was only yesterday that the first signs of the dreaded malady showed themselves.

At the time the child was wounded, the parents did not consider that it was anything serious, as the dog was not known to be suffering from the rabies.

It was ascertained that the dog afterward died in a veterinary hospital, the dog's head was then examined by the county health officials and the animal was pronounced by them to have been mad.

"The famous Pasteur treatment is of no use in the present instance," said Dr. Powers, "for the fact that this treatment is only a preventative and must be used very soon after the wound is inflicted. It is not unusual for cases of this kind to break out months after the patient has been bitten."

Records at the offices of the county health officials show that during the past five months sixty-five cases of dog bite have been treated and many more by the State it is said. The parents of the child reside at 410 South Daley street.

CRONIN NOT TO RESIGN AS JAILER

County Official Says He Received No Word That He Has Been Accused

County Jailer Robert E. Cronin yesterday entered denials that he had been asked by Sheriff Traeger to submit his resignation, or that he had any intention of giving up his position at the county prison.

"I'm here, ready to go to work," said Cronin, "and am anxious to have a long talk with the Sheriff. The charges which I hear may be filed against me have not as yet been brought before me."

That he had retained no attorney to defend his interests was another statement Cronin made. Rumors yesterday were that the jailer intended to make an effort to hold his place, and in case charges were placed with the Civil Service Commission, to wage a vigorous war to clear his name.

The Sheriff was not in his office when Cronin called and the matter again went over until this morning.

Romans Halt Onrush of Toilers in Opening Football Struggle Yesterday

Here is one of the examples of the halting that was done. The affair was the Manual Arts game at Los Angeles High School yesterday afternoon and the gentlemen who are bunched in the center are the war centers. Roy Dennis, Pioneer end, is seen in the act of taking Reggie Newman, Artisan halfback, down to the turf. Bobbie Bond and Town Towle are seen partially sticking from the heap of debris. Bill Saunders, Pioneer tackle, is in the act of catching Dennis and Newman as they fall back.

TROJANS MEET WILDCATS

Arizonas Invade Bovard Field Today for Great Battle on Tanbark

BY JOE PUNT

Coach McHale's "mystery" eleven from the University of Arizona blew into town yesterday, oozing confidence and concealed energy at every pore. This afternoon at Bovard Field the Wildcats will tangle with U.S.C. and about all that can be said for sure is that it ought to be interesting, anyhow.

Nobody knows anything at all about Arizona and nobody knows very much about the Trojans. There is a general suspicion, however, that the Gloomy One's protege's are mighty good and it is equally certain that Arizona's aggregation will be full of fight and ginger. Beyond that—we shall see what we shall see.

TOILER ON SQUAD

Coach McHale has the remnants of his mighty good team of last year which was good enough to trim the Whittier squad, Southern California Conference champions, and which made a fine showing against Centre College in the Christmas Day game down at San Diego. Quarterback Slonaker, star of the Wildcats of 1921, is gone but otherwise the team is much the same.

In Slonaker's place is McMillan, the former Manual Arts boy, who was a big star for U.S.C. only a couple of seasons ago. He played football under Henderson and knows something of the Gloomy One's system and that ought to have helped in the preparation of a defense against the Trojan onslaught.

The prevailing opinion is that U.S.C. should win very comfortably, but there are a lot of wild young men who have come to town from Tucson who claim that their untamed Cactus Cats will return with the Trojan scalp tonight. The Arizona line is almost as big as the U.S.C. line, but the Arizona backs are outweighed.

ONE POSSIBLE CHANGE

The only possible change that may be made in the U.S.C. line-up from the aggregation of behemoths that ruined Pomona a week ago is that Amor Galloway may replace Dolley at quarter. There is no question but that Galloway is a star of the first magnitude and he may shove Dolley from the calcium's glare. The Trojans have a weight advantage of about seven pounds to the man.

LINCOLN RUINED BY LONG BEACH

Game Hard Fought Despite One-Sided Score

Coach Davis Loses Players Through Injuries

Hill Brothers Have a Busy and a Good Day

Adhering to straight football, the Long Beach Polytechnic High School gridiron combination celebrated its re-entrance into the City League by overwhelming Lincoln High, doped as possessing one of the strongest teams among Los Angeles factories of learning, 25 to 0, on Bovard field yesterday afternoon.

The Railsplitters fought all the way, but never had a chance until the last two minutes of play, when darkness and the referee's whistle ended the game, with Lincoln striving desperately to put the ball over from the Long Beach 10-yard line.

The Hill brothers, Don and Al, who hold down halfback berths on the Long Beach eleven, and Capt. Morley Drury, Jackrabbit end, were the outstanding stars of the afternoon, the Hill brothers negotiating all the four touchdowns made by Long Beach.

Long Beach started scoring early in the first quarter, Don Hill making his first touchdown on a line pulnge in the first five minutes of play, Mattson kicking the goal for the extra point.

The second touchdown came in the second period, when Long Beach, gaining huge yardage as a result of Lincoln's fumbles and Drury's long spirals, worked the ball to Lincoln's 5-yard line and Don Hill went over again for six points.

As this about settled the game the other two touchdowns did not mean anything except a taint on the Lincoln squad. Al Hill and Don Hill were the ones to carry the ball over. After the first quarter most of the Lincoln stars had been put out of the game by the Jackrabbits' steam-roller tactics.

Wallace Heaves Fine Game for Killefer Lads

Vernon Still Has a Chance to Tie the Seals

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS

Still there is a slight pulse-beat in the patient, and on a rather cloudy horizon Bill Eswick can discern a faint ray of hope about as large as a phophorescent whisker.

Beyond these things and a warm supper there wasn't much left to Bill after yesterday's doings.

DUMPED AGAIN

Los Angeles dumped Vernon again, this time by a count of 4 to 1 in the ninth inning, and reserved this much for the Tigers, to wit: Should Vernon win its remaining three games and San Francisco drop its remaining four, the teams would tie. Even this hope might be drowned by the weather. A dash of rain sufficient to prevent the playing of any one of the scheduled games either here or in the North would give the Seals a wet flag.

Killefer's men, by winning a grand total of three hits off Bill James and Jumbo Jolly, lived up to that form predicted for them last spring. They simply bunted the Tigers into defeat.

SOME PITCHER

Bob Wallace, in his first season the best young pitcher seen here since Kid Ehmke broke in, was invincible except in the first round when Vernon plastered its only marker. Bob started off a bit wild, sending three balls up to Chadbourne. Then he worked across two strikes. Then another strike which Chadbourne blasted for a triple. Chad scored on High's sacrifice fly to Twombly. James went four rounds without allowing a hit, but in the sixth they got to him for the tieing run, and won in the seventh.

Wallace pulled out of a bad mess in the fourth without a mark. J. Carlisle Smith sought to start something with a single.

Well, anyway, Hawks sacrificed after Smith's single, and H. Hercules Hyatt was pinged with a

MECHANICS SHOW LOTS OF POWER

Defeat Hollywood Gridders in Easy Fashion by Husky Score of 32 to 6

Coach Voyle Brennen's Poly Mechanics smeared a 32-to-6 defeat all over the Hollywood Foothillers in their game played yesterday on the Hollywooders' field. The Mechanic line was too strong for the Crimson warriors, while the Poly backs romped through, around and over the Hollywood forwards for five touchdowns, in two of which the extra point was added.

"Bunny" Maurice, Mechanic half, was the individual star of the game. The diminutive Poly backfield man tore off long runs, snagged passes, played a good defensive game and scored two touchdowns. Along with him as costars were Barlett, Foster, Burman and Soules. Tinman and Stout did the heavy work for the Foothillers.

Poly scored once in the first quarter, when Barlett plunged over, and twice more in the second period. Maurice made both scores in this quarter. Aides and Barlett made the other two touchdowns.

In the last period, after Brennen had in a whole team of subs, the Foothillers managed to score. A wild pass by the Poly center was recovered by Smart. Hollywood tackle, on the Poly three-yard line. Miller then went over on the next play. The line-up:

Sandford Horse Cops Big Prize at Lexington

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LEXINGTON (Ky.) Oct. 13.—A program of four stakes and the unfinished Phoenix pace composed the card at today's Grand Circuit meeting here. The feature event was the Castleton, for 2:04 trotters, value $4000, which Sandford Small's 4-year-old, the Great Volo, won in handy style. Despite his poor showing in the Transylvania, Great Britton was about an even choice with the Great Volo.

T. W. Murphy, who has had poor luck at the meeting here, improved his average today, adding another stake victory in winning the Aasland with the good 4-year-old gelding, Czar Worthy. The consistent little Michigan gelding, Baron Worthy, trotting his usual good race, was second in each heat.

The historic Lexington stake for 2-year-old trotters went to Gulf Breeze in straight heats, each in 2:10¼. She is the property of W. S. Harlan, of Lockhart, Ala., and her driver, Johnny Thomas, secured the driving honors of the day, also winning the unfinished Phoenix with Edna Early.

The Lafayette for 2:10 pacers resulted in a rather easy victory for Nelta Patch, with the Denver gelding, Peter Daphne, and Henry Direct dividing second and third money.

OXY FROSH CLEAN UP FULLERTON

New Man Stars In Fast Game Won by Occidental from Junior College

The Occidental Frosh defeated the Fullerton Junior College football team at Oxy yesterday by the score of 25 to 0.

Oxy kicked off and stopped Fullerton in their tracks. A few minutes later Hall passed to Stevens for a touchdown.

The second quarter started with the old combination of Hall to Smith and before many plays there was another touchdown, Hall passed to Smith, who fumbled, Gilbert caught the ball and ran for touchdown.

In the second half a new man by the name of Brick Cowles was put in. Without knowing the signals, he accounted for another touchdown and many yards gained by his flashy running in open field.

In the last quarter Cowles was tackled in midair, landing hard and breaking a rib. He looks like the real stuff for next year's varsity.

The last quarter was played in darkness, no touchdowns being made.

CARDS LEAVE CONFERENCE

Stanford Breaks With Pacific Coast Colleges Over New Year's Day Contest

Word was received here late last night that the Stanford University had resigned from the Pacific Coast Conference. The Cardinal institution had threatened to break away from the conference at a recent meeting which was called by the members of the conference to dicuss the fact that Stanford had scheduled a post-season game with Pittsburg, to be played at Palo Alto on December 30.

This, according to the conference members and officials, was a breach of rules that Stanford had agreed to some time last year. At this meeting the officials and members voted that Stanford should be reprimanded and that the game should be called off.

Rather than abandon the Pittsburg game, the heads at the Cardinal university, decided to withdraw from the conference. Last night President Barrows sent a telegram to the president of the Conference stating that Stanford had withdrawn from the famous western athletic organization.

Stanford's withdrawal, however, will not affect the Cardinal schedule and all games which have been arranged for will be played according to schedule. Stanford's withdrawal will probably cause chaos in the Conference and it may result in the breaking up of the organization.

MISKE WINS ON A FOUL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Billy Miske was declared the winner over Tom Gibbons on an alleged foul in the tenth round of their scheduled fifteen-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight. It looked like a deliberate quit on the part of Miske, who got the worst beating of his life up to the time of the alleged foul punch.

Those who were sitting up close to the ring did not see any foul punch. When Miske dropped to the floor in the tenth frame the referee, Kid McPartland, didn't know what it was all about, but suddenly decided, after looking over in the direction of the judges, that a foul had been committed. The whole thing had all the appearance of a deliberate fake, but Tom Gibbons did not appear to be a party to it.

Miske was a badly beaten man. It looked as though he took the asserted foul blow as a means of saving himself from a thorough trimming.

Gibbons was asked where the blow landed while they were going through the motions of carrying Miske to his corner.

"The blow I struck Miske was a fair one," Tom answered. "It struck Miske in the stomach well up above the belt line and was not a foul blow."

Muller and Nichols to Get Back in Game

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERKELEY, Oct. 13.—Doped to win by approximately six touchdowns, the University of California gridders will take the field against the St. Mary's eleven tomorrow. California overwhelmed the Marines last Saturday, scoring eighty points almost at will. At the same time, Nevada was showing up the poor condition on the part of the St. Mary's team in a considerably closer contest, ending with Nevada on the long end of a 21-13 score.

Coach Andy Smith's charges are showing improvement in every game in spite of the fact that they didn't have any competition last week. On the other hand the Catholic team ran up against one Hugo, who is reputed to be ably filling "Rab" Bradshaw's shoes, and who certainly was responsible for the Nevada scores.

BACK IN GAME

Brick Muller and Don Nichols will be back in the game Saturday, Muller's shoulder and Nichol's leg, injured in the Santa Clara game, having healed. "Andy" is trying out some new formations this week, suitable respectively for a wet or a dry field, and against a heavy or light team. The plays were used to good advantage against the freshmen in scrimmage, and will probably be given their first real trial against Coach Madigan's eleven.

California is certain to beat the Saints tomorrow, but the Olympics on the following Saturday and the Trojans a week later will not give the reconstructed Bear team any opportunity to rest on last year's laurels.

ROOTERS GALORE

More than 1800 rooters will make the trip to Los Angeles to join their brothers from the Southern Branch in filling up the rooting section on the U. C. side of the field at the gridiron argument with the University of Southern California October 28. Not more than 2000 can be accommodated in the section and only present members of the student body will be allowed to get seats there.

Present plans contemplate chartering one or more special trains and arrangements have already been completed to have the steamship Yale take its full quota of the more ardent supporters of the Blue and Gold.

Almost all of the groups on the campus have been conducting lotteries consisting of seventy chances, with tickets priced from 1 cent to 70, according to the number on the ticket, and the winner getting transportation to the scene of battle.

Lieut. Koenig is Winner in Big Army Air Race

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MOUNT CLEMENS (Mich.) Oct. 13.—In a race in which nine Army planes participated, the Navy having withdrawn its two entries, Lieut. T. J. Koenig of Buffalo, N. Y., won the Liberty engine-builders trophy here today.

Lieut Koenig piloted a Le Pere observation plane, equipped with a 400-horsepower Liberty 12 motor, over the 210-mile triangular course at an average speed of 128.8 miles an hour. The plane is the same in which Lieut. John A. MacReady established a world's altitude record of 37,800 feet last year.

Second place in the race went to Maj. Follet Bradley of Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., who piloted a De Haviland 4-B observation plane, driven by a 400-horsepower Liberty 12 motor, and Lieut. W. L. Boyd of Pittsburg, piloting a similar lane, was third. His average was 122 miles an hour in each of the ten laps.

The only others to complete the course finished in the following order: Lieut. W. R. Carter, fourth; Lieut. J. D. Givens, fifth, and Lieut. B. R. Morton, sixth. All piloted De Haviland observation planes similar to those that finished second and third.

Venice High is Conqueror of Gardena Lads

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VENICE, Oct. 13.—Coming from behind and staging a wonderful rally in the final half, Venice High School defeated Gardena yesterday afternoon in a bitterly contested battle on the local high school grounds, 13 to 12. Halfback DeLand of Venice, with his superior offensive work, crashed through the heavy Gardena line for the two touchdowns that brought the victory to the local athletes.

In the first quarter two fumbles by Venice in their own territory were recovered by Jordon of Gardena and ultimately converted into the touchdowns. Jessup went over for the first Gardena score with a forward pass from the five-yard line and in the second quarter plunged through for the second score on a cross buck.

Johnny Kinney, captain and quarterback of Venice, staged a 30-yard end run that brought him to the 5-yard line before he was downed late in the fourth quarter.

Venice missed both goals, but on the final try was awarded an extra point when a Gardena man was discovered off side. Last year Venice defeated Gardena, 7 to 6.

CHAFFEY WINS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ONTARIO, Oct. 13.—In one of the most thrilling football games ever witnessed on the Chaffey campus Chaffey Junior College this afternoon defeated La Verne College, 6 to 0. Chaffey's one touchdown was made in the last few minutes of the final quarter just when everyone had about given up hope of either side scoring.

BUSHERS TO BE BUSY

Sixteen Contests on Tap for Tomorrow in Greater Baseball Association

BY JOE BUSH

Sixteen Greater Southern California Baseball Association games should supply local bush baseball enthusiasts with plenty of stuff to talk about, as well as something to see, tomorrow afternoon. A number of high-class games have been scheduled and a lot of good contests are expected to result for the diamond fans' Sabbath entertainment.

At the head of the list, as far as class is concerned, the struggle between the Burbank All-Stars and the San Diego club, at San Diego, gets honorable mention. Burbank's squad is composed of several former minor and major league stars and it is going down the southern metropolis to take some of the cockiness out of the San Diegans, who have not been defeated since the price of bread was five cents a loaf, or nearly that long. San Diego has built up a wonderful baseball machine and it will take a strong bunch to slip them the bird, as our English friends would say.

Another important game will be played between the Cleary Athletic Club and Downey at Downey, while at San Berdoo, the Calpacos clash with fast Santa Fe Athletic Club. The White King Soap Company squad meets the West Coast Oil Company nine at Olinda in a grudge battle. In the last game played between these two squads the Oilers won out in ten frames, but the Soapsteer thought they should have won and so they are now getting a return match.

A double-header will be played at the White Sox Park, with the L. A. Japs and the L. A. Chinese meeting in the opener and the Herman Sheet Metals tangling with the Hollywood Studios in the afterpiece. Both games are expected to be fast and interesting and a good crowd is expected. The schedule for tomorrow follows:

Burbank All-Stars vs. San Diego at San Diego.
Chinese Pickle vs. Santa Fe Athletic Club at San Bernardino.
Cimarrons vs. I. O. Fountain at Echo Park.
Norwalk vs. Hermosa Beach at Hermosa Beach.

A special meeting will be held by the Greater Southern California Baseball Association clubs at Spalding's next Wednesday night for the purpose of arranging different things among the different classes of clubs. The class "A" clubs meet at 7:29, class "B" at 8:00 and class "C" teams meet at 8:30. The regular weekly meeting will be held, as usual, on Thursday.

Al Fisher and Gump Read, the twirling staff of the White King Soap Company squad, are showing a lot of stuff on the ball lately and they expect to hold the West Coast Oil Company squad safe tomorrow. Eddie Gillette, an outfielder, has been aded to the roster of the White Kings. Lou Felix, first baseman on the same club, has found his batting eye again and has been pounding the horsehide so hard lately that Pete Roberts is becoming jealous.

POMONA PREPS VICTORS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Oct. 13.—Friday the thirteenth will hold no future terror for Pomona High School, but will go down in the Red and White annals as a memorable day. Meeting the bitterest of old-time rivals on the local gridiron this afternoon, Coach Van Cleave's Cards vanquished the Riverside High School eleven, 12 to 7, before a crowd which lined all four sides of the field and filled the stands to overflowing. The game was the opener of the Citrus Belt League schedule.

With the game 7 to 6 against them and the final quarter only four minutes to go, the local gridders took on renewed life. A forward pass, Baugh to Hendricks, from the Riverside 40-yard line, was completed and Hendricks scored with the touchdown that sealed Riverside's downfall.

Carpenter blocked a punt in the third quarter and Pomona recovered the ball behind the goal for the first touchdown of the game. Loocher failed to kick goal.

Just before the end of the quarter, Riverside received a Pomona kick on the Card 45-yard line. A short buck by Fouch and a beautiful 35-yard forward pass, Fouch to Kilgore, found the visitors in possession of the ball on the Pomona 5-yard line. Miller went around right end for 4 yards and Miller's short pass over the line of scrimmage sent Fouch over for Riverside's only score, Stalder kicking goal. The line-ups:

Riverside.		Pomona.
Cooley	L.E.	Bergam
Bordwell, (Crowd)	L.T.	Loocher
Stalder	L.G.	Hudson
Campbell, Castle	C.	Carpenter
Coffey, Thayer	R.G.	Humphreys
Tuomey, Edmiston	R.T.	Fouch (C.)

Referee, Schutt; umpire, Hall; head linesman, Steele.

Score by quarters:

Riverside	0	0	7	0	—7
Pomona	0	0	6	6	—12

PIONEERS WIN FOR FIRST TIME

of the most sensational plays of the day. The gain was very small, only about 8 yards, but the play was well managed and Thompson's speed in running across the field was wonderful.

A bleached kick by Towle, which was recovered by Dyer, Pioneer guard, made another tally when Dyer fumbled the ball on the 5-yard line and Dick Chatten picked it up and fell over the line for another touchdown. This finished the scoring for Los Angeles, but it was only the start for the Artisans.

IS SHIFTED

Towle, who was shifted all over the field by Sid Foster, began the final offensive by shooting a number of long passes to Huddleson and Newman. The passes averaged about thirty yards and the play was so well guarded that there was little chance to break it up. Two long passes put the ball over the line, while the Pioneers were powerless to do anything.

A few minutes after this touchdown was made the ball was taken by Manual from the Pioneers on downs. Towle made one of the longest punts on record in the City League. It measured nearly forty-five yards and was a perfect spiral. Weber intercepted a pass a few minutes later and the ball was bucked to the 5-yard line, where it rested when the final whistle blew.

IS A WONDER

Van Dame was one of the seven wonders of the game for the Artisans. His plunging and interference was spectacular in the extreme, and the holes which he made in the Pioneer line helped to make a goodly number of yards for the Artisans. Bobbie Bond, much-touted quarterback, failed to live up to his reputation. He stopped his passing when it had made a few yards, and tried to buck the Pioneer line, despite the fact that he had lost yards by the same method earlier in the game. Orsatti and Hall, who replaced him, were the better quarters by far.

Dennis Higgs, Jones and Chatten, Pioneer linesmen, were the means of saving a good many yards for the Blue and White squad by the way that they broke up the Manual plays.

The line-up for the game follows:

Huddleson, Towle	R.E.L.	Dennis
Rogers, Barta	R.T.L.	Saunders, Malich
McLean	R.G.L.	Kwasigroch, Dyer
McGoey	C.	Hiatt
Watson	L.G.R.	Clay, Chambers
Allen, Barta	L.T.R.	Chatten, Kwasigroch
Foster, Livingston	L.E.R.	Jones
Rose, Fletcher
Bond, Hall, Orsatti	Q.	Mainland
Towle, Van Dame	R.H.L.	Chapman
Newman	L.H.R.	Thompson
Hughes, Overland, Allen	F.	Weber, Phillips

PATRICK HEARS BAD NEWS FROM CHICAGO

Joe Patrick, president of the Los Angeles baseball club, yesterday received $10,000 worth of bad news in a 70-cent telegram.

Chicago was to pay Los Angeles $10,000 extra for "Twin Six" Statz, should the latter hit .300 or better with the Cubs. Yesterday William Wrigley, Jr., wired that the official averages disclosed that Statz had hit just .294.

Wladek Zbyszko, 275 pounds, won from Jack Dod of Sacramento, 183 pounds, accidentally bumping his opponent in the eye with his knee, rendering him unconscious, after thirty minutes of wrestling in which the lighter man was the aggressor with frequent toe holds.

FRESNO TANBARKERS CLEAN UP ON TECH

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, Oct. 13.—Fresno High School defeated the Technical High School eleven here this afternoon, 31 to 7, in the first game on Fresno High School's new athletic field. Ragged playing by both teams was marked in this, the first contest of the season. Alten and Wright starred for Fresno High, while Donohue of Technical High intercepted a blocked kick and ran 85 yards for Tech's only touchdown. Fresno High will play the official averages disclosed that Hanford High at Hanford next Friday.

FRANKLIN TIES WITH PASADENA

Kiteflyers Show That They Have the Stuff

Godett and Teachout Loom Up as League Stars

Downs is the Whole Show for Bulldog Squad

Yesterday afternoon at Horrell Field, Pasadena, Coach Daugherty's Franklin High gridders proved conclusively their right to a berth in the City League by holding the much-touted Pasadena eleven to a 7-7 tie. Coming from behind in the final quarter, outfighting a team who apparently had things sewed up, the Kiteflyers uncorked a beautiful aerial attack and on a series of perfectly executed passes worked the ball over for the tying touchdown.

The first half was a bit disappointing. Both Franklin and Pasadena were prone to fumble at crucial moments, and neither team showed anything like stellar football. The final quarters, however, told a different tale, and more than compensated for the indifferent play of the first half.

Pasadena passed up a wonderful chance for a score toward the end of the second period. After working the ball to Franklin's 15-yard line on a series of off-tackle bucks and short end runs, the Bulldogs cracked. At this juncture O'Connor let a perfect pass from Downs get away. Had this pass been complete perhaps the final statistics would read differently.

Pasadena's touchdown came in the third quarter when on straight bucks the oval was placed on Franklin's 5-yard line. From this point Downs carted it over, but only after hammering the Kiteflyer line for four times. Franklin's defense at this time was of the highest order. Downs counted the extra point on a place kick.

Toward the end of the final quarter Franklin opened up and gained ground at will. One pass after another was in order and the majority of them counted good yardage. After packing the ball from midfield to the Bulldog's 5-yard line, a pass, Lee to Teachout counted the Kiteflyer's markers. Lee's place kick annexed the extra point from scrimmage.

In Godett and Teachout, Daugherty has as classy a pair of ends as will be seen in prep grid circles this season. They both put up a wonderful brand of play yesterday and their work on the receiving end of Lee's passes was beyond reproach. In fact the entire Franklin line looks to be of the classiest variety.

The first half was a hit disappointing, but the several lemon-yellow players were crippled last Saturday while playing Willamette has lessened the Eugene team's chances. However, Oregon stock has soared since its 27-0 win over Willamette. The Multnomah team is very strong and numbers among its players several former Northwest College stars, one of whom is Bill Steers, famous as an Oregon player several years back.

Oregon Aggies will get their first real test of the season tomorrow, playing Willamette in a Northwest conference game. The Aggie team, which showed power against its alumni a week ago, is reported to have a good line.

REAL FIGHT

At Stanford there is to be a real fight between the Cardinal eleven and its old foe, the University of Santa Clara. Stanford lost a tough contest to the strong Olympic Club team last week, but is expected to show a stronger offensive tomorrow. An aerial game is expected. Santa Clara is massing its strength and expects to win.

University of Arizona's husky team of wildcats, averaging 175 pounds to the man, will play its "big game" of the season against the University of Southern California at Los Angeles. Coach McKale of the Arizonans doesn't predict victory, but looks for a close score. The U.S.C. team, despite the gloomy reports from its ever gloomy coach, Gus Henderson, is reported by some to have a stronger team than it had a year ago.

Washington State College, which is reported to have a fast backfield, playing its first regular game of the season, will meet Gonzaga University at Spokane.

Outside the conference, the University of Nevada plays Occidental College at Reno and Whitman College meets the College of Idaho at Caldwell, Idaho.

PORTLAND WINS OUT IN THE TENTH CANTO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 13.—Walberg outpitched Canfield and Portland won in the tenth inning, 2 to 1, after Sacramento unexpectedly had tied the score in the ninth after two were out. In the Portland half of the tenth with one away and Gressett on first, Walberg laid down a bunt. Canfield slipped trying to field it and it went as a hit, but Canfield thinking he still had a chance to catch Walberg, threw past first base into right field. Gressett scored from second. Score:

STRAND MAKES A NEW BINGLE MARK

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 13.—Paul Strand, centerfielder for the Bees, this afternoon broke the record in organized baseball for number of hits in one season. While the Indians were defeating his team, 4 to 1, he made two singles, bringing his total for the season to 283. The record was previously held by Kirke of the Louisville American Association team, made in 1920.

CONFERENCE SEASON ON

Washington and Idaho to Tangle in Opening Contest of Season at Seattle

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—Two northern elevens, the University of Washington and the University of Idaho, will open the Pacific Coast conference football season tomorrow at Seattle. All the other teams of the far-western "big eight" will play tomorrow but in preliminary games against nonconference elevens.

Idaho will be playing its first conference football game tomorrow and will be at a disadvantage because one of its stars, Fitzke, was declared ineligible last Saturday after his boot had won a bare 3-0 victory over Whitman College. Washington's rebuilt football machine has appeared strong this year particularly in its line and in its scoring ability.

The University of California team, conference champions, will play St. Mary's College. Bear rooters, many of whom think they have another "wonder team," probably will clamor for a high score over the collegians, who go into the game without three regulars who were injured in practice. California is expected to "open up" a bit tomorrow and use more plays than they have exhibited in their other games this year.

University of Oregon will meet the Multnomah Club at Portland and the fact that several lemon-yellow players were crippled last Saturday while playing Willamette has lessened the Eugene team's chances. However, Oregon stock has soared since its 27-0 win over Willamette. The Multnomah team is very strong and numbers among its players several former Northwest College stars, one of whom is Bill Steers, famous as an Oregon player several years back.

Oregon Aggies will get their first real test of the season tomorrow, playing Willamette in a Northwest conference game. The Aggie team, which showed power against its alumni a week ago, is reported to have a good line.

REAL FIGHT

At Stanford there is to be a real fight between the Cardinal eleven and its old foe, the University of Santa Clara. Stanford lost a tough contest to the strong Olympic Club team last week, but is expected to show a stronger offensive tomorrow. An aerial game is expected. Santa Clara is massing its strength and expects to win.

University of Arizona's husky team of wildcats, averaging 175 pounds to the man, will play its "big game" of the season against the University of Southern California at Los Angeles. Coach McKale of the Arizonans doesn't predict victory, but looks for a close score. The U.S.C. team, despite the gloomy reports from its ever gloomy coach, Gus Henderson, is reported by some to have a stronger team than it had a year ago.

Washington State College, which is reported to have a fast backfield, playing its first regular game of the season, will meet Gonzaga University at Spokane.

Outside the conference, the University of Nevada plays Occidental College at Reno and Whitman College meets the College of Idaho at Caldwell, Idaho.

OPEN BASEBALL SERIES

Beginning today the Redondo Edisons and the Garage Club, winner of the Telephone League, will play a three-game series for the industrial championship of Southern California. Today's contest, which will give the winning team a big edge for the title, will be played at Maier Park, Vernon, and will start promptly at 2:30.

Bob Curtis is managing the Garage squad, which has had a very successful season so far this summer, and he says that his squad will walk away with the championship quicker than the Giants upset the "unthinkable Yanks." However, Dan Cunningham, the John McGraw of the Redondo Edisons, emphatically states that Mr. Curtis has his dates twisted and that if Curtis thinks his team is going to win he should be put in a padded cell. So much for that.

Now the question is, who is going to win. Means of settling the championship verbally having failed, it now remains up to the two squads to settle it on the diamond.

The Edison aggregation has won its last thirty-seven games and finishes on the short end of the score about as often as an old Confederate soldier votes a straight Republican ticket. Among the victims of the Edisons is the Union Tool team, which was taken down the line two games out of three.

Cruz and Hathaway will form the battery for the Redondo Edisons, while either Ashton or Butcher will chuck for the Garage squad, with Stout behind the plate.

The games will be played only on Saturday, the first at Maier Park, the second at Hermosa Beach, and the third at Maier Park, with the home club for the final game decided by the flip of a coin.

SERAPHS DRAW BENGALS' TEETH

pitched ball. Lindimore nabbed Murphy's grounder, forcing Hyatt at second, but the tall throw pulled Sandow Griggs in the air and prevented a double play. A pass to French filled the bases.. McAuley then sprinted back into short center and hawked Sawyer's sailer for the third down.

James found himself bounded on three sides by trouble in the sixth, when Baldwin singled and stole second. Then with two down, Billy passed McAuley and Wallace. Twombly's best effort jammed Wallace into a forceout.

But Los Angeles had selected the sixth for the purpose of tieing the score, and would not be deterred. That fifth frame single made by Baldwin was the first hit off James, and it was not thought that Bill would be pumped for a run so soon. Dixie Carroll changed his attack and bunted safely, taking second when James took the ball and threw it past first. McCabe's sacrifice placed Carroll on third, and he registered on Deal's deep fly to Hawks. A walk and an out rounded the inning.

GOES INTO LEAD

Los Angeles went into the lead with a run in the seventh, and James had the unique experience of being yanked after having yielded only two hits in six and one-third innings. Lindimore led off with a walk, and McAuley sacrificed. Again the insidious bunt entered disastrously into Bill's life. Wallace dumped one of these slippery things near the third base line. James bent over and snapped shut like a jack knife while picking up the bunt. In opening again he lost his aim, and threw low to Hyatt.

This spared Wallace, put Lindimore on third and advanced Bill to the clubhouse. Jumbo Jolly, southpaw of the undersiung type, went in and filled the pitcher's box with a lot of longitude and latitude, whereas it had been occupied chiefly by latitude. James is a perpendicular pitcher, while Jumbo is of the horizontal type. The first act of hostility against Jolly was a bunt by Twombly. Jumbo shovelled the ball to Murphy, but entirely too late to nail Lindimore. Carroll filed and McCabe forced, and still there is an autumn wheeze or two left in the old baseball season. Score:

HOLLYWOOD THEATER LIKE EGYPTIAN TEMPLE

By Grace Kingsley

You hear every once in a while of a theater beautiful, and then find it to be trimmed with gingerbread effects on the outside and one palm inside, together with a proscenium arch ornament that looks like colored fly-paper, until you begin to cross your fingers every time you hear of a new "theater beautiful."

Now, however, we really have a theater beautiful, the very most beautiful theater, I am sure, in this country. It is Grauman's Hollywood, and when you enter its portals, next Wednesday night, when "Robin Hood" is given its world premiere, you will step right out of the humdrum of Main street into the beauty and mystery and atmospheric charm of an Egyptian temple.

Merely to describe the place gives no idea of its beauty. Because that beauty is made up largely of a charm intangible. There is a loveliness of illusion which belongs only to an occasional well-appointed home, sometimes to a church nave, a garden, a room in an old palace—a loveliness which has to do with proportion and harmony of coloring and perfection of detail, and yet is something more than these, a something quite intangible, but which binds us with a spell indescribable.

At the risk of sounding like a regular press-agent, I'm going to say that a vista of exquisite beauty, filled with sparkling fountains, colored lights, huge bas-reliefs, softly tinted hieroglyphics and flowers bursts on your view as you enter the long court leading to the pillared temple.

Lining the court on one side is a string of shops devoted to objects of art and refreshment, and decorated in keeping with the general scheme. Lining the other side are bas-relief figures, Egyptian paintings and fountains, while among the palms are placed ornamental stone garden seats.

Entering the pillared portico, you come to the main entrance, and inside huge mirrors reflect the vista of beauty. Beyond is a huge lounge, flanked by luxuriously apointed rest-rooms and smoking apartments.

The theater itself is gorgeous in color and yet exquisitely toned. The stage and proscenium are calculated to give illusion of depth, with pillars and a huge figure of the sphynx on either side. Above one seems to be looking into the blue depths of the sky with a sunburst crowning the proscenium. Every color is used in marvelous shades to an exquisite blending of effect.

The large court and lounge are to be used as promenades, as an intermission is to occur during each of the two daily performances.

The opening of the theater Wednesday night promises to be the most brilliant occasion of the kind in this city. Well-known stage and picture stars, famous writers, artists and musicians, will be among the guests of Mr. Grauman.

Jesse Lasky a Dad

Jesse L. Lasky is a happy man these days. He is a dad. Mrs. Lasky Wednesday presented her husband with a daughter, the little one being born at the good Samaritin Hospital.

Engages Popular Film Idol

It may cause the feminine fans to sit up and take notice to announce that there is a probability that an impressive group of the handsomest male players of the screen soon will belong to one screen stock company. Of course just how said film idols will get along with each other remains to be seen.

B. P. Schulberg, who recently acquired exclusive right to the services of Orville Caldwell, reputed to be the most physically perfect man on the American stage, now has affixed the name of Kenneth Harlan, tall, athletic, and a popular idol, to a contract that will keep him in Preferred Pictures for a term of years.

Now it is reported that Schulberg is out to sign up another six-footer, but no information is forthcoming at the present time, regarding the time when he will sign.

However, Harlan will not yet remove his make-up box to the Mayer studios, as he has been lent to Warner Bros. for two pictures.

It was on the strength of his work in "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," and on his other later characterizations that he was given the contract. He will be assigned to roles that are said to be specially suited to his dashing personality in "The Beautiful and Damned," and "The Little Church Around the Corner."

Lois Weber Leaves

Lois Weber, the world's most famous woman director, left for New York Thursday, where, it is reported, she is to sign a contract with one of the larger picture concerns. Miss Weber has made no pictures since her sojourn abroad.

Kathleen O'Connor,

Playing one of the interesting gingham roles in "The Old Homestead," adaptation of stage classic of that name, to show at Grauman's Theater.

JESSE LASKY DENIES RUMOR OF BREAK

Reports of an impending split between Adolf Zukor, president of Famous Players Lasky, and Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president and general manager of the corporation, which have gained wide circulation were branded as false by Mr. Lasky last night.

"The report is absolutely untrue," said Mr. Lasky. "Mr. Zukor and I are close personal friends, and have never had any differences. As soon as he read the report Mr. Zukor wired me, and it is hardly necessary for me to say that in the exchange of telegrams which followed we made light of the rumor. There is absolutely nothing to it, and my guess as to the cause of the report is the dissatisfaction of a bearish element on the exchange owing to the recent advance in Famous Players-Lasky stock. It probably represents an effort on the part of someone to break the market.

The report had it that in the event of a break between Mr. Zukor and Mr. Lasky, Cecil and William De Mille would be allied with Mr. Lasky, and also indicated the possibility of a consolidation with Loh Loew and Goldwyn interests.

PRISCILLA JUST AS WILD AS EVER

The success of a stage production is no criterion that it will be able to duplicate its feat on the silver sheet. And when the stage production is founded on a popular novel the producer's task becomes more difficult.

There is that little matter of selecting a star who can individualize the leading role sufficiently to meet the mental characterizations of all the various readers. Priscilla Dean has done this admirably in her delineation of the half-savage child of the desert, "Cigarette," who is the heroine of Ouida's famous story, "Under Two Flags," which opens tomorrow at the Kinema Theater.

This girl, half Arabian and half French, has been raised among the tribes of the desert, and the wineshops of Algiers. She is a curious combination of care-free impetuousness, passionate love and self-sacrificing womanhood. Miss Dean endows the story heroine with all the fire, all the boyishness and flamboyant grace of one of the desert people.

In conjunction with this feature film, a comedy, "The Speeder," starring Lloyd Hamilton in his characteristic cutaway, will be shown.

START "CHOP SUEY"

One of the new Christie comedies which has gone into production is "Chop Suey," a Chinese story featuring Dorothy Devore. The scenes of the picture are laid in San Francisco's famous Chinatown.

Scott Sidney is directing the picture, and in addition to Miss Devore, are George Stewart, Lincoln Plumer and others.

GETS PRESHOWING

The newest of the Plum Center comedies, "Pop Tuttle's Polecat Plot," just completed at the Paul Gerson studios in San Francisco, was given a tryout at the Strand Theater Tuesday evening.

The principal players supporting Dan Mason are Wilna Hervey, Eddie Harris, Edward O'Brien, Selby Roach, Charles Gerson, Robert Hendricks, Charles Oro and Helen Howell.

LOCAL GIRL IS DIANA'S DOUBLE

Virginia Van Nuys

The mystery of the missing Lady Diana Manners has been solved. The flowers and phone calls which were sent to the Ambassador for the famous English beauty were lost in broadcasting because her double and distant relative who is constantly mistaken for her, refused to claim them. Miss Virginia Van Nuys, whose portrait by Henrich and one by Hubbard G. Robinson are on exhibition at the California Theater during the run of Lady Diana Manners's picture, "The Glorious Adventure," bears such a striking resemblance to the English beauty she could play the part without fear of detection. Miss Van Nuys is well known as a writer and an artist, but she declares it is useless for a woman to have either talent or brains because people are much more interested in her photographs than in anything she ever wrote or painted.

NOTED AUTHOR AT MILLER'S

"Timothy's Quest," from the book by Kate Douglas Wiggin, was filmed in the exact locality of the scenes described by the author. Indeed with her help all the locations were gone over and each house and tree and meadow identified. As a result the picture, which is the next attraction at the Miller Theater, is one of the most original stories of New England ever seen on the silver sheet. It is one of those rare instances, where the author of a book has collaborated in its transition to the celluloid.

BELCHER PROTEGE ARRIVES

Beth Beri, Los Angeles girl and protege of Ernest Belcher, is to be one of the topliners at the Orpheum next week.

This will be the second appearance of the dancing star in this city and is to be one of her last appearances in vaudeville this year for the star is scheduled to open in a big Sam Harris show in New York in November.

for Every Floor in the House

A Jaspé Linoleum floor in a modern home

You can select linoleum in colors and designs to go with your rugs, walls, and hangings

If you haven't looked at any linoleum patterns recently, go to a good furniture or department store and see what is being offered in Armstrong's Linoleum.

You will see rich plain colors, beautiful Jaspé or two-tone effects, parquetry inlaids, carpet inlaids, marble tile inlaids and attractive printed patterns.

This modern linoleum is too fine a material to be simply tacked down. Armstrong's Linoleum should be cemented to a lining of builders' deadening felt which has been glued to the floor boards. This makes a smooth, even, permanent floor without unsightly cracks. It can't splinter, and it will never need expensive refinishing.

When good linoleum is laid this way it is waterproof, and the easiest floor in the world to keep clean. Dust never gets into it.

Rugs are placed on a linoleum floor the same as any permanent floor. An occasional waxing and polishing keeps it looking bright and new.

Write for our booklet, "Decorative Linoleum Floors," which contains twenty-four color plates showing different designs and colorings of Armstrong's Linoleum, both inlaid and printed, suitable for any room in your house.

Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs

For people who live in apartments or rent houses on short leases and consequently do not wish to install permanent linoleum floors, Armstrong's Linoleum is also made in the form of bordered rugs. Many attractive patterns in four sizes from 6 x 9 feet to 9 x 12 feet.

Wholesalers' Organization Shows Large Gain

F. M. Couch Named Chief for Fiscal Year

The thirty-ninth annual meeting of the Los Angeles Wholesalers' Board of Trade was held yesterday at the board's rooms in the Higgins Building. The report of the officers showed a large increase in the business of the board during the fiscal year.

Secretary F. C. DeLano reported that 1030 creditors' meetings had been held during the year; that 849 new cases had been opened during the year and that the liabilities on creditors' claims filed with the Board of Trade during the year amounted to $3,104,150. The Board of Trade had issued 21,480 dividend checks to creditors aggregating $350,398 covering 1579 separate dividends. There were 184 assignments made to the board by failing debtors during the year and these turned over to the institution assets to be disposed of for the benefit of creditors amounting to $879,913. In addition to the assignment cases the board filed claims amounting to $424,057, in 254 voluntary bankruptcy cases.

HALTS STRIKE CASE

Nevada Machinist Contests Removal to Las Vegas

At the conclusion of the hearing yesterday of the charge against Charles Ingrim, a striking machinist formerly employed by the Salt Lake Railway, at Las Vegas, Nev., of assaulting L. G. Righter, also a machinits, on August 31, before U. S. Commissioner Long, the government was given ten days to furnish evidence backing the charge.

It is asserted that Ingrim violated an injunction issued out of the Nevada courts prohibiting the strikers from breaking the peace following the strike, originally called in July. Righter had on that occasion gone out, but later returned to his old employment. Ingrim is desk sergeant at the headquarters of the Federation of Labor in Las Vegas. The prosecuting witness did not appear. Ingrim is contesting his removal to Nevada for trial on the charge of assault.

Adolph J. Menjou owes $430 under $4300 in salary subsequent to the contract, according to the complaint.

SHOES START DIVORCE

Wife Leaves Husband Who Dared to Question Expense

Leo J. Lang liked to see his wife well dressed, but when she bought a pair of shoes for $30 he objected. To be entirely feminine, she replied in kind and told him she was going to leave. When she did not come back, Mr. Lang filed suit for divorce, and Judge Hahn granted him a decree yesterday.

This Week All America Echoes The Better Homes Message Which the "California" Has Always Proclaimed

"Ours is a nation of homes. The realization of our highest hopes lies in the continued construction and improved character of our homes, because they have the first influence in the standard of American living. We want an America of homes, illumined with hope and happiness."—President Harding.

The California Furniture Company was one of the first institutions to foster the Better Homes Idea. A great national sentiment is the outgrowth of this idea. This sentiment has culminated in the Better Homes Week now being observed throughout America.

It is most appropriate that the "California", one of the leading sponsors of the Better Homes Idea, should extend to you a cordial and very special welcome to visit the "California" to inspect the Furniture Style Show to be presented Saturday Evening from seven o'clock until ten o'clock.

Never were the stocks here more complete nor more interesting than at this time. They portray perfectly the latest approved home furnishing styles. This is true irrespective of price—from the most luxurious obtainable to the least expensive.

A very special display of distinctive and artistic home furnishings has been arranged for your inspection. All sales will be suspended during these hours and a warm welcome awaits all those who are interested in beautifying the home.

THE CALIFORNIA WILL BE OPEN THIS EVENING, FROM SEVEN UNTIL TEN O'CLOCK FOR YOUR INSPECTION OF THE FURNITURE STYLES SHOW.

Duck Hunter is Held to Answer in Death Case

The asserted negligence of Joe Bruno served to send him to the County Jail yesterday after Justice Brown held him to answer to the Superior Court on a charge of manslaughter, the result of the death, by gunshot wounds, of L. B. Randall, Santa Fe employee.

Randall was killed while on a hunting party at Elizabeth Lake, according to the evidences adduced in court. Bruno, who recently came to this country from Italy, was on the opposite side of the lake when he drew an automatic pistol and fired at ducks. The bullet ricocheted from the water and struck Randall.

According to Deputy Sheriffs Stensland and Dewar, who had assembled the evidence, Bruno had neither a hunting license nor a permit to carry weapons. He was remanded to the custody of the Sheriff, his bond being placed at $2500.

Requests for recipes and information pertaining to the proper preparation and serving of foods will be answered in this column every Saturday. Address all requests to Chef A. D. Wyman, Laboratory Kitchen, 426 Arden avenue, Glendale.—Ed.]

BY CHEF A. D. WYMAN, M.C.A.

Cool weather forces the housewife's thoughts to run to more meat dishes, pies made with pumpkin, mince meat, dry fruit and sweet potatoes, and salads made with canned vegetables and fruits. Beef and mutton are at their best during the winter months and the good housekeeper is the one who uses the cheaper cuts of beef and other meats to make new and tasty dishes such as meat pies, home-made sausage, ragouts, meat loaf, tamale pie and loaf, croquettes and combinations of meat, rice and macaroni. The cheaper cuts of meat have the same food value as the more expensive cuts and when they are properly cooked and served they are an agreeable change from the steaks and chops that are often the only meats served in some homes.

Now is the time to make mince meat for the winter months and if the following recipe is followed it will keep until spring.

MINCE MEAT

Place in a large saucepan or preserving kettle two and a half pounds of finely chopped, clear, boiled beef. (Be careful and have no skin or gristle on the beef.) Two pounds of finely chopped, clear suet, four pounds of peeled, cored and chopped apples, one and three-quarters cups of sugar, one and a half cups of molasses, one and three-quarters pounds of seeded raisins, one and three-quarters pounds of seedless raisins, one pound of Malaga raisins, half a cup of finely chopped citron, half a cup of finely chopped candied orange peel and three cups of boiled cider. Cook until the apples are soft, stirring occasionally with a wooden spoon. When apples are soft stir into the mixture one tablespoon of salt, one tablespoon of cinnamon, half a teaspoon of mace, half a teaspoon of cloves, one teaspoon of ground allspice, the grated rind and strained juice of three oranges, the grated rind and juice of two lemons, one cup of current jelly an one teaspoon of orange extract. Pack in jars, seal tight and store in a cold, dark place. Let stand two weeks before using.

MEXICAN PORK PUDDING

Remove the fat and bones from two pounds of fresh pork and place in a sauce pan with two cups of boiling water and simmer until tender. Remove the meat and place in a saute pan two tablespoons of finely chopped onion, one sweet red pepper chopped fine, a tablespoon of chili powder and a cup of the broth. Cook slowly until the meat is tender. Chop fine the contents of one can of corn and heat in a saucepan with three tablespoons of milk, a seasoning of salt and teaspoon of sugar. Add to the corn mixture a tablespoon of melted lard and one well beaten egg. Spread a layer of corn mixture in a baking dish, cover this with a layer of meat and cover the meat with finely chopped ripe olives. Repeat this process until the dish is filled. Bake in a slow oven one hour, adding a little boiling water if it is too dry. Veal or chicken can be used in the place of the pork.

TAMALE LOAF

R.L.D., San Diego, asks if we can give her the recipe for tamale loaf that she can cut in slices and fry. Place in a saute pan two tablespoons of lard, one finely chopped onion, one peeled and chopped tomato, one flank steak cut in small cubes and one scalded and chopped chili pepper. Cook slowly until the meat is brown, adding a little water to keep from burning. When meat is brown add two cups of boiling water and cook slowly until the meat is tender. Season with salt, pepper and two teaspoons of chili powder. Skim out the meat and put through the fine knife of a meat chopper. Return the meat to the liquid and stir in enough white corn meal to make a thick mush. Pour mixture into a greased bread tin, place a weight on top and when cool cut in slices and fry in hot lard. Serve with a chili sauce made by toasting in a hot oven until they blister, twelve fresh red chili peppers. Drop the chili peppers into boiling water and simmer until they are soft enough to rub through a sieve after the seeds and strings have been removed. Add to the pepper puree enough hot water to make a smooth paste. Heat two tablespoons of lard in a saute pan, add the chili paste, a teaspoon of onion juice, a teaspoon of vinegar and a seasoning of salt. Cook three minutes.

DRYING FIGS

H. L., Sawtelle, asks for instructions that will help her in drying figs. She has tried drying in the sun and in the oven without any success. Would advise that she place her figs on screen trays that have one inch strips four inches apart across the bottom. Lay the figs, eye end up on the strips and stand the trays in tiers with a six-inch space between each tray. Stand the tiers on the porch and set an electric fan so that the air from it will strike all of the trays. Turn the figs often and do not over dry. When figs are dry dip them for two seconds in a boiling brine made with one and a half pints of coarse salt to one gallon of water. Immediately after removing the figs from the brine thumb them from both ends to the center. Pack in air-tight boxes and do not use for one month.

DRIED MUSHROOM SAUCE

W. H. A., San Luis Obispo, asks if we will give her a recipe for a mushroom sauce made with dried mushrooms. This sauce is used by the Italian cooks for spaghetti, macaroni, tagliarini and fish. Cover one quarter of a cup of dried mushrooms with one cup of hot water and let stand one hour. Remove the mushroom, cut in pieces and save the liquor. Place in a saute pan four tablespoons of olive oil and add one finely chopped onion and one tablespoon of parsley leaves. Cook until the onion is clear. Add the mushrooms and a tablespoon of Italian tomato conserve or one cup of cooked tomatoes, a teaspoon of minced parsley, the mushroom water, one cup of beef stock and a seasoning of salt and pepper. Let simmer for thirty minutes.

DEHYDRATED APPLE PIE

K. M. P., Patagonia, Ariz., asks for the recipe for dehydrated apple pie that we made at one of our cooking schools five years ago and a recipe for carrots creole as served by one of the Chicago cafes. For the apple pie cover two cups of the dehydrated apple cubes with two cups of cold water and let stand over night. Line a pie pan with good pastry. Mix the soaked apple with the grated rind of one lemon, four tablespoons of sugar, half a teaspoon of salt and one teaspoon of cinnamon. Place in the pastry lined tin, dot with bits of butter, cover with pastry and bake forty minutes in a medium oven.

CARROTS CREOLE

Scrape and boil until tender in salted water twelve medium sized carrots. Place in a saute pan two tablespoons of butter, one finely chopped onion, two minced shallots and cook until a light brown. Add two tablespoons of minced lean ham and three French sausages. Simmer four minutes and add a seasoning of thyme, parsley, half a minced bay leaf, half a chopped clove of garlic, one peeled and chopped tomato and the tomato juice. Simmer four minutes and add one cup of beef stock. Let simmer fifteen minutes and add the cooked carrots cut in dice. Mix well and serve hot with roast meats.

FLOATING ISLAND

W. A. H., San Fernando, wants the recipe for floating island, a desert that she enjoyed very much when she was young. Heat two cups of milk to the scalding point but not boil. Beat the yolks of three eggs with six tablespoons of sugar until light and creamy. Pour the scalded milk slowly into the beaten egg yolks and sugar, stirring constantly. Place the mixture in a double boiler and stir over the fire until thick and the custard will coat a spoon. Strain into a cold glass dish and stir in half a teaspoon of vanilla extract.

Whip the whites of three eggs until stiff, then beat in three tablespoons of powdered sugar and beat well. Add three more tablespoons of powdered sugar and beat until the mixture will stand. Blanch and chop fine half a cup of almonds and add to the egg whites with half a teaspoon of almond extract. Oil a pudding mold that has a fancy top and pour into it the mixture. Place mold in a pan of boiling water and let cook for twenty minutes. Let stand in the mold until cold.

When ready to serve unmold the meringue onto the cold custard and dust with powdered cinnamon.

LEBKUCHEN

H. W. K., Glendale, thanks us for the delicious, practical and economical recipes published in this column and wants to know if we will give recipes for lebkuchen and springerle, two cookies.

For the lebkuchen beat until light four eggs and then beat into them gradually two cups of light brown sugar and one teaspoon of grated orange rind. When light and creamy beat in two cups of sifted flour. Bake in shallow pans, cool and frost with orange icing.

SPRINGERLE

Beat four eggs until light and into them beat two cups of sugar. Beat well. Sift three cups of flour with one teaspoon of baking powder and add to the eggs and sugar with one tablespoon of finely ground anise seed. Drop by small teaspoons onto well greased pans, an inch apart. Bake in a slow oven.

ORANGE CUSTARD ICE CREAM

A. J. B., Artesia, requests recipes for orange custard ice cream, chow chow, and bouillabaisse. The recipe for bouillabaisse has been given three times in this department in the last two years. For the orange custard ice cream mix the grated rind of three oranges with three-quarters of a cup of sugar and gradually beat into the beaten yolks of six eggs. Pour into this mixture two cups of hot milk, mix well and place in a double boiler and stir until thick. Remove from the fire and stir in two cups of cream. When cold add the strained juice of four oranges and a bit of red color paste. Freeze in a dasher freezer with three parts ice and one part salt.

CHOW CHOW

Clean and bread in small pieces one head of cauliflower and place in a deep earthenware jar with 100 small cucumbers, twenty-four very small onions, and half a head of shredded cabbage. Cover with salt and let stand over night. Drain and cover with vinegar, and add half a cup of green nasturtium seed. Let stand two days. Drain again and add to the vegetables one-quarter of a pound of white mustard seed, one-quarter of a pound of celery seed, two tablespoons of ground pepper, two tablespoons of ground cinnamon and half a cup of grated horseradish. Bring to a boil, two quarts of vinegar and two cups of sugar. Pour this while hot over the vegetables. Drain and bring the liquid to a boil for there mornings. The last morning add to the mixture half a cup of ground mustard mixed to a paste with four tablespoons of olive oil.

DILL PICKLES

H. C. M., Manhattan Beach, asks that we send her a recipe for dill pickles. We do not send recipes by mail, but will be pleased to give in this column any recipe requested if the request is for a recipe that will be of interest to other Times readers. For the dill pickles select pickles two or three inches in length and scrub clean with a small brush. Pack the pickles in layers in large fruit jars. Place between each layer a layer of dill, mustard seed and a bay leaf. On top of each jar place a small piece of alum, the size of a pea. Bring to a boil one cup of vinegar, two cups of water and one tablespoon of salt. Pour this boiling hot over the pickles and seal the jars. Ready for use in thirty days.

COFFEE CAKE

M. W. R., city, asks for a recipe for coffee cake made with baking powder and liquid coffee. Beat to a cream half a cup of butter and one cup of sugar and beat into them three well-beaten eggs. Beat this mixture for three minutes, then beat into it three cups of flour sifted with four teaspoons of baking powder and half a teaspoon of salt. Add one cup of strong black coffee, one cup of chopped seeded raisins, half a cup of milk, four tablespoons of chopped candied orange peel and a teaspoon of vanilla extract. Bake in a shallow, greased and floured baking pan in a moderate oven forty-five minutes. When baked brush with melted butter and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon.

CHAPON

W. S., Hollywood, has a salad recipe that calls for a chapon and asks that we tell her what a chapon is. A chapon is a slice of stale French bread stuck with four cloves of garlic, four whole cloves and slightly moistened with tarragon vinegar. This is placed in the botton of a bowl in which green salads are mixed to flavor the salad.

SPANISH CAKES

G. L. W., city, asks if we have a recipe for Spanish cakes, a light cake that is filled with jam. We have. Place in a saucepan one cup of water and half a cup of butter. Bring slowly to a boil and stir into it slowly two cups of sifted flour. Stir until smooth and boil three minutes. Remove from the fire and beat into the mixture the well-beaten yolks of three eggs and one and a half teaspoons of baking powder. Beat well, fold in lightly the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and drop by spoonfuls onto a papered and greased baking sheet. Bake in quick oven twenty minutes. When baked, split and spread with a good jam.

PANOCHA

F. H., city, requests a recipe for panocha made with milk, nuts and brown sugar. Place in a saucepan four cups of brown sugar and one scant cup of milk. Bring to a boil and let boil seven minutes. Add one teaspoon of vanilla extract, two tablespoons of butter and two cups of finely chopped walnut meats. Whip to a cream and pour into a lightly buttered pan to cool. When cold cut in squares.

Bananas Bake Quickly, Making Excellent Dish

Pull down a section of the skin, then loosen the pulp from the rest of the skin; remove all coarse threads and replace fruit in its original position in the skin. Set the bananas in an agate dish in a moderate oven and bake until the skin is blackened and the pulp soft. This will take about ten minutes. Janet M. Hill gives this recipe on page 227 of her book, "Cooking for Two."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

My dear followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember always to inclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must inclose 4 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper and please remember that, on account of the hundreds of letters received in every mail, I cannot make personal replies. I appreciate very much the beautiful personal letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest; for the rest you must consult your personal physicians.

"Dear Doctor: I have gained ten pounds in the last two months and am tickled to death. Have been counting my calories and found that I was eating about half what I should and wondering why I was so thin.

"L. B."

Our T. T. T.'s are staggling in. Not anywhere near at the rate of the F.F.F.'s, but that is not to be expected because there are not nearly so many of them. I wish those of you who are trying to gain and are getting results would give us a little more detail of just what you are doing, whether you are gradually making your meals larger or taking food between meals or adding extra milk and eggs, etc.

Mrs. F. J.: You must remember that babies and children are in reality only little animals and they haven't any idea of the significance of certain actions. What you say of your baby is nothing to worry about. The habit undoubtedly was contracted in the first place from irritation, but now that the irritation no longer exists the habit that has been formed persists. If you will smartly slap her hands every time they offend and say, "No, no, baby," she will soon associate the pain and the habit, and will discontinue it undoubtedly. Do not do this in anger, you understand.

At 18 months of age she needs more food that you are giving her. That is why she is thin. I think you had better see a child specialist and have him give you specific directions for increasing her diet. The address of the manufacturer that sells the pinless wardrobe has been sent in the envelope you inclosed.

Mrs. M. H.: Your boy who is suffering from tuberculosis should be under the care of your personal physician. Undoubtedly daily olive oil rubs would be beneficial not only for the stimulation of the circulation, but because some of the oil would be absorbed.

There are some books written on the home care of tuberculosis. If you will inquire at your bookstore they will tell you of them. Does he live in the open air all of the time? In Southern California, where you live he could do that. Dr. Pottenger, in his book, "Tuberculosis and How to Combat It," written for the laymen, says:

"Individuals who live in badly ventilated rooms with their bodies surrounded by stale air, lack nerve and mental stability as well as physical tone. They fail to digest and assimilate their food properly, consequently suffer from a low state of vitality. Other conditions being equal, the converse is true of those who live in the open. Their cellular activity is stimulated and their nerve and physical tone is greatly improved.

Mrs. W.: I am not in private practice through correspondence nor locally, so your request for me to treat you personally and to send my bill cannot be complied with, although I thank you for the compliment and the confidence.

If you will send for our article on constipation, you will undoubtedly get some suggestions that will help you. The pamphlet on gaining has been sent. You will have to stop working so hard that you get so tired, especially as it apparently is not necessary. Tell that dictator of yours to go to.

Five thousand housewives were asked recently: "What reasons chiefly affect your purchase of bread?" An overwhelming number replied: "Quality of ingredients and cleanliness—but I know so little of how baker's bread is made."

Why DON'T you know?

THE difference between the cheap and purity in various grades of bread is simply the difference between high and the lack of them. To put cheap into bread is a form of service. This one of the chief reasons for the wide ference in bread.

There are "heaps and heaps" of interesting things about "Frozen Steam" which the woman who has food to keep in her refrigerator should know. Artesian well water only is turned into steam of intense heat without contact with the air, thereby eliminating impurities, then frozen 25 degrees below freezing. This gives the greatest possible cooling power and perfect sterilization. Phone 10189 or Main 8662 to make arrangements for becoming a customer.

All seem to be so extremely satisfied who have put "Antrol" around the house and throughout the grounds, and are grateful as well, knowing for the first time in months that those dreadfully annoying little pests have met their Waterloo. Antrol durable jars filled with Antrol syrup are excellent! Be convinced yourself by a single trial. The low prices will astonish you. Universal Labs. are the manufacturers, West 881.

Tucked away in the old picturesque part of Los Angeles—the old Spanish quarter, really—is Mora's Grill. It's famed you know for the delectable food served there for Mr. Mora personally supervises the buying, and is most pervises the buying, and is most is used. Do obey your impulse to try luncheon or dinner there soon. On West Market, 107 Old Temple Block, between Main and Spring, half a block south of postoffice.

Orange drops: Three egg yolks, one cupful sugar, one-half orange, one cupful pastry flour, one teaspoon baking powder and one-half teaspoonful salt. Beat the egg yolks until very light. Then add the sugar and the juice and grated rind of the orange. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Add gradually to the egg mixture and beat well. Chill for fifteen minutes. Break off into pieces the size of a walnut and bake ten minutes in oven on a well-greased baking sheet.

Rugs or floor coverings of any sort need "shampooing" badly after having been left on the floors throughout the summer. To many it's news about the Acme Cleaners doing expert cleaning of carpets. Their work is thorough, satisfactory in all ways and not expensive in cost. A call at Pico 1466 will be given prompt and courteous attention.

An excellent way to prepare chicken for frying is to cut it up and put it into a medium-sized, heavy paper bag in which has been sifted one-half cupful of flour, a little salt and pepper. Shake the bag thoroughly, then take out and drop each piece into the frying pan.

No amount of reasoning to the effect that this is fall and certain foods belong only to this season of the year—has any weight when you wonder whether you must discontinue serving Los Angeles Cottage Cheese at home. True, it's ideal for warm weather, but, Mes Amies, it's equally ideal during California's winters—besides, what would take the place of Los Angeles Cottage Cheese in the Children's school lunch and where would you find anything half so "tasty" as a substitute at luncheone?

After wearing black satin slippers for a time they usually become dusty looking and if one just rubs them over with a dark cloth, dipped in gasoline, it will bring back the original luster to the satin.

No, Los Angeles Cottage Cheese put up in its sanitary little waxed container will always be assured of a welcome throughout the year in the homes of those women who have tasted thereof.

Food is divided into three principal classes; the carbohydrates, as starch and sugar; the fats and the proteins, as lean meat and the whites of eggs.

Youngsters know the difference in the taste of water. It seems at a party at Del Mar, only one bottle of Arrowhead Mountain Springs water was left and Maurice and "Jenny" were terribly distressed about it. "What ever will we do, mother?" they exclaimed, so you can see what dependence is placed on Arrowhead water and how necessary it becomes in a home. Spoils you for water out of the hydrant, you know. So, 881 if called will bring a demijohn of Arrowhead to your home in a very short time.

When preparing pears for canning, after paring and halving the fruit, remove the seeded part of the core with a potato cutter.

"Here! come on—you turn it now!" Remember those days when you all took your turn at freezing the ice cream? But who minded it when they thought of the heaping frozen dish that was to come? Um-m-m! Wasn't it good! Seemed there never was enough! Well, bless you, order Hughes Ice Cream where you see the yellow-and-white sign and have your fill. You'll swear it's just exactly like the kind you used to make. Only creamier and smoother and yet you are saved the trouble of making it.

"Buy it today," Dad's put off telling those little tots of yours to go to the Drug Store which serve their ice cream sodas in Dixie Drinking Cups. You know, didn't you, that no one touches them until the users take them in their hands. That means sanitation spelled with a capital S, doesn't it? Dixie Drinking Cups sold by The Individual Drinking Cup Company are invaluable in the home.

Not only does it appeal to one's aesthetic taste to use such perfectly delightful bath salts as those known by the name of "Du Moll," but after using a handful or two in your "tub" you are actually rejuvenated, exhilarated and certainly deeply grateful to the manufacturer, Horace Moll of 736 W. 9th, for his product which does so much toward putting you at peace with the entire world. Reckon you'd better try a pound; what say?

Mrs. Kate Atkinson, 1011 Victoria Drive, says, "You could not buy my Federal Thermo-Storage Water Heater for any price if I could not get another." Now, isn't that convincing enough to have you visit the factory and exhibit? 354 S. L. A. street.

Rust may be taken out of any white garment by rubbing with salt and lemon, then allowing steam from the spout of the tea kettle to penetrate the parts so treated.

Waffles and hot cakes, muffins, corn bread—these are the things which test the butter you use, and if it isn't first-class the heat doesn't take long to cast aside the disguise. You know when all is said and done, there is no substitute for L. A. Creamery butter, and being the best, it's cheapest in the long run. Never does it vary, either. Well worked and perfectly delicious as long as it lasts. You really should try a pound today when giving your order.

Boil a few potato peelings with a little water for a few minutes in a new frying pan. Food cooked afterward in the pan will not stick.

In California we women do not limit our vacation period to the summer, but frequently slip away for the week end, which may include an extra day or so, but that doesn't upset the routine which once included "Blue Monday" or "wash day," for the Crown Laundry has come to the rescue of all housewives. So beautifully is the work done at this laundry that we are continually in a state of thankfulness for having made their acquaintance. Now, why not call them to your rescue if you are as yet unenlightened?

Salt sprinkled on anything that has boiled over on the stove will smother the blaze and destroy the odor.

It just seems as though your gratitude toward Young's Market Company grows and grows, so well do they serve us day in and day out throughout the entire year. Fresh vegetables, never older than a day, fruits which were apt to have been picked within the hour, isn't it wonderful to have in our midst such markets? Remember, if you are particular go to Young's without a second's hesitation. It pays.

Cover an old broom with a piece of blanket or something soft and go over the kitchen floor with it each day. It will not take long, but will save you many hot and dirty scrubbings.

Send the mattress as well as down quilt to be renovated by the Western Feather and Down Works, 1361 West Washington street. Pillows likewise renewed. Now is the time to "obey that impulse."

Do not throw away the sour milk. Delicious cookies, cakes, biscuits and pancakes can be made with it.

We all know that the wheel must turn, and even though luck has been with you in so far as having your sink or drain or bowls give you no concern, just when bragging most the unexpected happens, and if "Pronto" is not within reach you will be a mighty sad "hombre." Pronto when shaken into pipes prevents stoppage. All reliable grocers sell it.

When hot sugar is needed for jellies, heat in a double boiler.

No, it isn't too late to make an additional supply of the cooling beverage Cream-O-Malt brews, for the summer months just whetted our thirsts which now are trained to feel a real craving for such a satisfying drink. Customers are increasing at the Clee Koe Coffee Company, 216 W. 5th. Sole distributors of Cream-O-Malt. Try it, do.

When hemstitching linen it is a good idea to use the thread which has been pulled out of the linen. This is especially wise if the fabric is colored.

So fine in texture, smooth as velvet, pleasing in odor and my oh, my, how your skin does respond when you use it. It's Du Moll Massage Cream which does all this. Quite new to Los Angeles women but how its fame has spread. Ask your druggist or the manager of your favorite department store to get it for you. Horace Moll & Co., of 736 W. 9th is the Alchemist.

A kitchen scale, graduated to about twenty-five pounds, is quite a necessity. Weigh your foodstuffs, etc., and see that you get full weight.

Notice how much whiter your clothes are, and how much easier your work is, and the time you have saved, after using Bobrick's Cloudy Ammonia. Only a small quantity is required, and the expense is nothing, comparatively speaking, because it saves soap and labor more than enough to pay for its cost.

Baker's Bread Often Better Than Home-Made

Should Consider Economy in Time, Effort

"Come along to the symphony concert, I've two tickets," called Mother Fedwell to Mother Eatums one Friday afternoon, as she waved a hurried greeting.

"Ah, I can't!" wailed the busy Mother Eatums. "I've got my bread to bake and the milkman didn't come this morning, so I must walk half a mile to the milk station, for the children are at school and I just must have the milk for my pudding and the place is "way off the car line."

Poor Mother Eatums was getting quite breathless.

"Oh, never mind your pudding. I'll bring you some evaporated milk for that and you can whisk it up in no time and put it in the fireless. As for your bread, it's almost ready to bake, so I must go through with it this time. Florence is at home this afternoon and will be glad to bake it for you. And after this why don't you buy your bread?"

"Why, Frances Fedwell! And you the one who is always preaching good food! I am surprised!"

"You needn't be," impertinently. "What have I advised that is out of keeping with good food?"

"How can you ask? I'd as soon think of giving my family chips as to offer them bakers bread. Besides they wouldn't touch it. And as to evaporated milk—well, everyone knows what that is!"

HEARS PROTEST

"Well, what is it?" smiled Mother Fedwell, answering the last protest first.

"Why, it's—it's—evaporated milk!" This with a lame attempt at righteous indignation.

"Exactly! It is milk that has had some of its water removed, a process that makes it cheaper than whole milk, without in any degree spoiling it for cooking purposes."

"But the food value!" And Mother Eatums glowed with newly acquired dietary knowledge.

"You will remember that I was careful to say 'for cooking purposes.' I have already told you many times that you must have fresh whole milk for the children. So don't look so reproachful. I'll wager there are many housekeepers who would gladly use this substitute for fresh milk in cooking so they could afford to save a little and add the amount to the milkman's bill. And then think of the women like ourselves. Surely, we are not above saving, where we can use the money to better advantage."

This last remark was a stroke of diplomacy, for Mother Fedwell knew that the Eatums family had just weathered a very hard financial struggle.

"Besides," continued the smiling diplomat, "it is just as necessary to economize in time and effort as in money. The refreshment you will receive from coming to the concert will come back to you and your family many times over. Which reminds me that I am forgetting to speak about the bread.

"In the old days there was some excuse for women when they insisted on wearing themselves out over their bread making. The standards of the baking industry had not been formulated and there was danger of receiving bread that was baked under unsanitary conditions. Then, too, the methods of manufacture had not been perfected, so that the food value of baker's bread did not always measure up to that of home-made. But that is all changed. The bakers have organized their work on a scientific basis, so that at present one can buy baker's bread that is wholesome and palatable and even more digestible than a good deal of home-made bread, because the machinery used in the bakeries is so perfected that the kneading is more skillfully done than is possible by hand, even with a mixer.

"Of course, I don't mean to be extreme about anything. If conditions are right, by all means let us have home-made bread occasionally. But the chances are that for the given amount of time, effort and fuel we can get more satisfactory results from buying our bread.

"As for evaporated milk, I need only tell you again that fresh whole milk is vitally necessary for children and when I use a substitute it is to help me save the fresh milk for them."

"Oh, yes; I understand. And you are absolutely right about saving time, too. I know I don't take enough time for recreation and relaxation. If you will go on advising me and show me about the fireless cooker and tell me what foods are good, why we will have some 'bats' together, as the children would say, and I shall love it."

"Indeed I will," said Mother Fedwell.

"It is largely a matter of 'mixing our colors with brains,' to quote Whistler, wasn't it? There is a vast difference between depending on delicatessen store food and giving our families 'picked up' meals and using our common sense plus our knowledge of dietetics and nutrition to help us simplify our housekeeping.

"Come along to the concert!" And Mother Eatums went!

Florence Now Through With Handsome Men

No more handsome, well-dressed, smooth-talking men for Florence Boardman. Judge Hahn yesterday gave her a divorce from Frank D. Boardman on the ground of desertion. This is the way she described her husband:

"He was 200 pounds of handsomeness. Judge, you ought to have seen how that fellow walked—just like a movie actor. And clothes? He was class. And clever? Say, he talked me out of my money.

"After we were married, my, how expensive he was. He would not work and I got tired of supporting him. He left."

For years Mrs. Boardman has been conducting a small clothes pressing establishment, and Mr. Boardman was her great, big romance.

BANANAS MUST BE MATURED

Fruit Has Excellent Food Values When Ripe and Properly Prepared

No less an authority than Dr. Mendel of Yale University tells us that Nature plans to send the banana to us in a "sterile package."

Provided the ends of the banana are not crushed and the skin broken, the fruit is literally free from germs.

The professor has carried on experiments in his laboratory that prove this beyond peradventure, having soaked the fruit in badly contaminated fluids, testing it subsequently and finding it in all respects free from bacteria.

If so eminent a food specialist as Professor Mendel finds it worth while to exercise great care in preserving the banana in its "original package" surely housewives who wish to provide the best possible food for their families will do well to follow his example.

Bananas, to be fit for food, should be absolutely ripe. This means that the skins must be black, not just brown. Of course the pulp of the fruit itself must not have begun to be over-soft, but the skin must show no trace of greenness and must besides be actually black.

The astringent principle, that is the thin outside layer, can be scraped off very carefully with a silver knife. It is worth while to take the trouble to do this, as this "puckery" principle sometimes irritates the stomach.

In serving bananas to children it is advisable to bake them, as this renders the starch, which is present in appreciable amount, more easily digestible.

Do not give bananas to children under the school age.

FOOD ECONOMY DEFINED

Housewife Should See Purchases Contain All Vitamines Needed for Family

BY WINIFRED STUART GIBBS,
Food Specialist

As early as 1896 Prof. Atwater, to whom the world owes much knowledge of dietetics, made comparative cost studies of foods, showing how much of a given element could be purchased for a given sum.

The fact that such studies were inaugurated set people thinking along new lines. Housewives who were interested in domestic science began to calculate the so-called "economy" of different menus.

Dr. Atwater showed that 25 cents, for example, would purchase one-sixth of a pound of protein, one-fifth of a pound of fat and 1130 calories of energy if spent for sirloin steak, while the same amount spent for oysters would buy only one ounce of protein, two ounces of total nutrients and 230 calories of energy.

Other studies were made along similar lines, and the sensible procedure seemed to be for the housekeeper to consult her tables of the chemical composition of foods and to spend her food allowance for those foods that, according to the tables, would supply the largest quantities of the most important elements, or, as they were then listed, of protein, carbohydrate and fat.

FLAVOR RULES

Prof. Atwater, true scientist that he was, pointed out that the price of food was not regulated by the nutritive value, since flavor and popularity influenced markedly the selling price.

In the year 1906 one of the most brilliant sanitary engineers in the world said to the writer:

"The fact that chemical analysis in the laboratory shows various foodstuffs to be composed of certain chemical elements similar, if you like, to the elements of which the body is composed does not prove that these foodstuffs perform in the body just the offices for which they are given credit."

At that date this man, the late Emil Kuichling, was probably one of two or three scientists who questioned the widely accepted theory of diet-building. Protein was protein, whether it existed in beef or oysters. Granting that the body required a given amount of protein or of any of the other elements, it mattered little whether this was obtained from beef or oysters or any other food containing protein provided the individual's purse could pay for it and his stomach digest it in quantities sufficient to make up the needed amount. The same was held to be true of carbohydrate or fat, while the "mineral matter" required by the body was needed in such minute quantities that many dietitians let that element take care of itself.

LATER FINDINGS

Nine years later the entire scientific world was watching the famous physiological chemists verify the statement made by Emil Kuichling in 1906. Today we know that two lists of foods may offer precisely the same quantities of the different chemical elements and yet the one list may offer foods that are entirely satisfactory from a nutrition point of view, while the other, identical as to protein, fat and carbohydrate, may prove utterly inadequate to sustain complete nutrition.

As to the amount of each element required, the calculations were all made by collecting numerous accounts of what persons in different conditions actually ate.

These men were the two main results of diet studies up to 1915, the determination of the "composition of foodstuffs" and the determination of the "exact amounts required" by human beings.

The next step in advance was the realization that perhaps the instinctive selection might not be the true guide to actual needs.

For this we are indebted to Chittenden of Yale, and scientists are still working on the matter.

The second step in advance was the formulation by Funk of the now well-known vitamine theory of nutrition.

In plain words this means simply that the reason why one of the two lists of foods referred to above is more life-sustaining than the other is because that one is made up of foods containing the life sustaining substances or vitamines.

TRUE PRINCIPLES

This brings us back to our original theme, that of the economy of food. The housewife should be guided by these principles: 1, be sure that the money spent for food is bringing just the amount of food needed by the family; 2, see that the foods purchased contain the needed vitamines.

Attention to those two building principles will mean that $1 will bring in 100 cents' worth of food rather than 95 cents' worth.

ANNOUNCE CELEBRATION

The Motion-Picture Producers' Association yesterday notified the City Council that the motion-picture industry is preparing to hold in Los Angeles in June, 1923, a monster celebration to be known as the American Historical Review and Exposition, commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the Monroe Doctrine.

WINTER FRUITS SETTLED

When the season for fresh fruit is waning we begin to look forward to the long winter, when we must supply the needed fruit elements by means of dried and preserved fruits.

Two standbys for the housekeeper are prunes and apricots.

Each of these fruits contains very valuable salts, and prunes are also of great service as a laxative.

Here are some tested recipes for the use of both prunes and apricots.

Two cups cooked dried apricots, drained and mashed; 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 tablespoon melted shortening, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs until very light. Add sugar gradually, beating with egg beater. Add water, vanilla and shortening, sift flour and baking powder and fold into the batter. Have a shallow baking pan well greased and bottom covered with greased paper. Pour in cake batter and bake in a hot oven about 12 minutes. Turn on a napkin, cut off edges and cover with mashed apricots. Turn the top edge of cake down, pressing firmly. Then pick up corners of napkin and bring toward you. The cake will roll perfectly. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Pineapple Dressing

Cooked prunes, pitted and drained; allow 4 prunes and 1 slice of pineapple for each service. Place the pineapple on crisp lettuce leaf. Fill prunes with a small portion of salad dressing and arrange around the pineapple. Place a spoonful of dressing in the center on the pineapple and sprinkle with chopped walnuts. For dressing melt 2 tablespoons of butter, add 2 tablespoons of flour, half a teaspoon of salt, a quarter teaspoon dry mustard and mix well; cook until frothy, then add 1 cup of pineapple juice and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Pour over 1 well beaten egg or 2 egg yolks. Cool. A half cup of whipped cream may be added.

CANDY DAY CALENDAR SWEETEST

Southland Confectioners Honor One of Important Industries in District

This is national candy day, and it is being celebrated all over the nation under the supervision of the National Confectioners' Association of the United States. In Southern California candy day should be given particularly strong support as the industry contributes to the happiness and prosperity of practically everyone in the community. An example of the degree in which the manufacture of candy figures in the commercial and social life of this section is found in some facts and figures connected with one of the large factories in Los Angeles.

Bishop & Co., employ over 800 people in the factory alone and carry a pay roll that amounts to more than $12,000 weekly. These 800 employees are engaged exclusively in the making of Bishop's products and in giving these figures no account is taken of office employees and sales people.

To show how quickly the consumption of a popular confection will run up into big figures, Bishop & Co. report sales in a few weeks of over eight carloads of the new popular-priced "Rough Dip Chocolates." The well-known Cherinut confection, a 5-cent article, has gone as high as 2,000,000 pieces in one month.

An institution of this kind works on a broad basis. It goes to South America to purchase chocolate beans which are imported through the harbor of Los Angeles and ground in its own chocolate grinding machines. The Calarab fig confections are known all over the world and find an eager market in over thirty foreign countries.

Bishop & Co. are only one of the many great manufacturers of candy in Southern California. So one can appreciate the importance of candy making to the district, both in connection with the number of people employed in candy making and the pleasure of candy eating. "Make Candy Day the Sweetest Day You Have Ever Known," is the slogan. It will be an appropriate day to give candy to friends, sweethearts and relatives.

TWO MEN WANT NAMES CHANGED

Both Harry Walter Drscurecke, chief petty officer on the U.S.S. New Mexico, and Dr. James Papageorgapaulos have names which Americans find difficult to handle out loud. Yesterday both filed petitions to have their names changed. The former selected Harry Walter Drew and the latter James George.

ANSWERS TO FOOD QUESTIONS

Answers to readers' questions regarding diet will be given by Winifred Stuart Gibbs, food specialist, either in this column or by correspondence. Questions should be accompanied by a self-addressed stamped envelope, or only those of general interest will be answered through the mail.

Is flavor important in determining the value of food?
L. K. W.

There is a direct psychic effect to be observed when unattractive food is eaten, and the opposite result of eating well flavored food is equally noticeable. This psychological value is fundamental when considering the digestibility of any foods, since food that appeals to the palate is well on the road to perfect digestion and assimilation. By all means be careful of the palatableness. Good cookery is a factor here, attractive serving another. A salad crisply cold is a more valuable food than one that appears on the table wilted and unattractive, just as a person who likes the flavor of cinnamon and dislikes that of nutmeg will derive more good from his rice pudding if it is flavored to suit him than he will if he forces himself to overcome his dislike of another flavor. This is not catering to "finicky" notions, for it is understood that we are thinking of persons who are reasonable and really in earnest about getting all possible good from their diet.

Is bacon more digestible when crisp?
K. D. S.

Without doubt the best way to serve bacon is crisply fried. Bacon fat is one of the most digestible forms in which to serve this very necessary food element and it is worth while to take considerable pains to have it properly cooked. The point is some times raised that it is wasteful to cook out and discard so much of the fat. The answer is that the fat need not be discarded but may be used for shortening or for sautéing.

Facts worth knowing

1/3 less food value

1/3 more food value

COW BEEF is 70% to 75% meat and 25% to 30% bone. The green food on which the cow has lived creates watery tissues, making the meat uneven and hard to cut. It shrinks and curls when the water is cooked away and has a poor flavor. It comes from animals whose best years have been used in reproducing and milking, and whose age is usually three times the age of a steer. COW BEEF HAS ONE-THIRD LESS FOOD VALUE THAN STEER BEEF AND SHOULD BE SOLD FOR ONE-THIRD LESS.

STEER BEEF is 85% meat and only 15% bone. The rich dry food on which the steer is fed produces oils and fats that are evenly distributed throughout the steer's tissues, making the meat tender, juicy and finely flavored. Steer beef is from young, healthy animals, scientifically fed and raised especially for food. STEER BEEF HAS ONE-THIRD MORE FOOD VALUE THAN COW BEEF. IT COSTS THE PACKER ABOUT ONE-THIRD MORE PER POUND ALIVE, AND IT IS WORTH MORE THAN ONE-THIRD MORE TO YOU.

Learn Why Milcoa is a Sweeter, Better Spread

You will freely acknowledge its milder and more delicate flavor the first time you try it.

A pure vegetable spread is best when fresh.

The difference in spreads is seldom found in the raw materials.

It's frequently due to "indifference" in getting the finished product to the table while it's sweet and good.

You get it sweet.

It would do us no good to use, as we do, the finest materials if we did not speed it on the way to your table while the delicacy of its flavor is at its very height.

To get Milcoa to you sweet, we always make it right in the locality we serve, so it may be delivered fresh to dealers.

Our sixth and newest plant in Los Angeles, necessary to supply the demand, proves the wisdom of our policy of supplying an absolutely fresh, sweet product.

What Milcoa is.

It isn't an imitation of anything; it's just its pure self.

It's made from the dainty white meat of the cocoanut, a small amount of refined peanut oil, cultured pasteurized milk solids and salt.

Milcoa is an improved quality and is a delicious food product—wholesome and nutritious.

What Milcoa is for.

Most people use it as a spread for bread and for cooking and baking.

On account of its mildness and sweetness, Milcoa is put to more uses than any other product of its kind; it's unsurpassed as a shortening for cakes, cookies and all kinds of pastry; its delicate flavor makes it ideal for sauces and as a flavor for vegetables.

Why Milcoa is white

There is a tax of ten cents a pound on artifically colored margarine. Therefore with each package of Milcoa is included a capsule of vegetable coloring matter which can be easily combined with it to give it a yellow color, thereby saving the tax.

How to color it

Remove Milcoa from wrappings and place in a bowl. If cold let stand a short time in a warm room or place bowl for a few minutes in a dish of hot water. With a two or three tined fork make a depression in the margarine, place capsule in the depression, puncture with the fork, press out all the liquid and with the fork work the coloring evenly and thoroughly into the margarine. The process will take less than four minutes. Pack into the carton. Place in a cool place and it will soon be hard and firm and ready for use.

ROTARIANS VISIT PARADISE

Club Members Are Given Object Lesson From Adam and Eve's Prehistoric Exploits

Rotarians of Los Angeles yesterday took a trip to the Garden of Eden. They started at noon from the Alexandria, going on a train of thought conducted by C. H. Burnett, head of the resorts department of the Pacific Electric, who said that, while the Pacific Electric covers all points of interest, the train of thought is a little quicker "and just a bit cheaper."

The object of the visit to Eden was to learn the origin of the classifications of industries, trades and professions. Arrived in Paradise, the party discovered Mrs. Adam, sitting under the forbidden tree, the first prospect of the first clever, though very crooked salesman—the serpentine Satan.

To the pleasant surprise of the Rotarians Mrs. Adam did not appear at all as she has been painted. "The first salesman got his order and we have all been paying for it ever since," said Mr. Burnett. "Then along came Cain and Abel and their dad told them it was up to them to help bring in the bacon. So Cain and Abel became expert hunters and fishers. However, while they were in the forests and on the waters Adam stayed at home and made fish hooks and stone hatchets, at which he was a bear. Right there began the classification of industries which has developed into the complexities of the modern business and industrial world. Today, as in Adam's time, the human family fares best when each individual, in his respective field, does his own work to the best of his ability, keeping ever in mind the general welfare of his fellow-beings."

Company Asks Double Track Harbor Permit

The Pacific Electric Railway Company yesterday applied to the City Council for a franchise to lay and to operate a second track on Front street between Fifth and Sixth streets, and on Sixth street to Pacific avenue, in the Los Angeles Harbor district. The cost of double-tracking the line will be about $120,000.

Residents of the Harbor district long have urged that the company double-track the line in order to meet the needs of the increasing population.

The company asks, as a condition of its double-tracking the line, that the jitney bus competition in this district be eliminated.

The company agrees to install, if deemed necessary by the State Railroad Commission, motor-bus line feeders to connect with the Pacific Electric line.

DOG ARGUMENT ENDS IN SUIT

Damages of $15,198 asked from Dentist After He Drops Charges

A suit for $15,198 damages was filed yesterday by Mrs. Ada Grim and Mrs. Elizabeth Worth against Dr. Henry W. Graham, a dentist, following the hearing of a charge of disturbing the peace made by the defendant against the two women. The purported row is said to have taken place over a dog belonging to Mrs. Grim. The charge against the women was dropped after a hearing in the Police Court.

DENIES ALL KNOWLEDGE OF THEFTS

Mrs. Flaherty Tells How Bank Guard Gave Her $89,500

Denying that she knew the $89,500 was stolen, Mrs. Annette Flaherty yesterday took the stand in her own defense in Judge Shenk's court, where she is charged with receiving stolen property. The prosecution charges that she kept the sum for William H. McFee, aged bank guard, now serving a term in San Quentin.

Mrs. Flaherty testified that she had known McFee and his wife for twenty-five years, and suspected nothing wrong when he asked her to keep for him the purloined money. She said he told her he had won it in a lottery.

She testified that McFee told her he was going to New Orleans and was not coming back, and he wanted her to build a house for herself and Mrs. McFee.

"At the same time," she testified, "he gave me some papers, telling me that they were not important and to throw them away. Perhaps the much discussed key to the safety-deposit box was among them."

McFee again went on the stand yesterday, but refused to testify, other than to say that he had been "bunked" into making statements concerning Mrs. Flaherty.

Wine Dealers Can't Collect on Good Will

Another development marks the policy of the Internal Revenue Department regarding liquor dealers whose business has been wiped out by the prohibition act, in a ruling received yesterday by United States Collector of Internal Revenue Goodcell.

In the case in question a wine dealer made a deduction in his income tax return for good will in his business, which had depreciated on account of dry legislation. The department held that the good will claimed cannot be separated from the taxpayer and is of such a personal character as to be without value as an assignable asset.

In reaching its decision, the Revenue Department says that there is unquestionably no doubt that due to the enactment of adverse legislation the appellant will ultimately be forced to abandon his business, and it is apparent that the natural processes of the prohibition law have finally accomplished what they set out to do, although by reason of temporary liberal administration of the law the surface indications of failure were not finally extinguished until 1921.

Repaving of Angeles Mesa is Indorsed

The executive committee of the Los Angeles Traffic Commission yesterday at its weekly meeting at the Union League Club indorsed the proposed improvement of Angeles Mesa Drive from West Adams street to Slauson avenue. This is an important through highway, and the Automobile Club of Southern California is especially active in its efforts to have the thoroughfare improved.

The committee is working to secure additions to the City Engineer's street replacement and maintenance forces so that the hundreds of holes in the city pavements, due to installations of gas and other service connections, can be filled and the pavements resurfaced. This work is done by the city and paid for by the utilities companies.

The commission believes that the Council should create a revolving fund which would keep the City Engineer's forces at the size required for the work to be done.

HEIRS PAY HIGH TAX

Fortune of Mrs. Alma Haupt Shared by Uncle Sam

An inheritance tax of $12,881 was reported yesterday to the office of State Controller Ray L. Riley upon the fortune of approximately $350,000 left by the late Mrs. Alma Haupt of this city. Mrs. Haupt, who was the widow of Paul Haupt, a pioneer building contractor of Los Angeles, died at her home, 2416 South Figueroa street, in May last. She was 59 years of age and had lived here for the greater part of her life. Principal inheritors of the estate are a son, William P. Haupt, and a daughter, Norma. A sister, Mrs. Pada Wetherell, is bequeathed $15,000 and the will mentions one or two minor legacies.

The bids were referred to the Council's Finance Committee for a report and recommendation. The bidders in addition to agreeing to pay par and accrued interest offered the following premiums:

NEWSPAPER SUED IN HUGE DAMAGE SUIT

The Van Nuys Publishing Company was made a defendant yesterday in a suit for libel filed by Volney H. Craig, a rancher of the San Fernando Valley. He asks for $50,000 damages.

Mr. Craig, who has been active in a number of organizations for the betterment of the community, declares that September 29 last the Van Nuys News published an article which Mr. Craig says injured his good name and reputation. The suit was prepared by Attorney J. H. Alvord.
